SEES CHILDREN PICK APPLES; OPENS FIRE

August Bion Kills Bert Sears, Fatally Wounds Wife and Three Children, Then Ends Own Life.

Peru, Ind., Oct. 6.—August Bion shot and killed Bert Sears, 12 miles east of here today and wounded Mrs. Sears and her three children because the children were gathering apples on a farm Sears had rented from Bion. Mrs. Sears and two of the children may die.

Bion, driving by the orchard on the farm he had rented to Sears, saw the Sears children, Harry, 15; Goldie, 14, and Dorothy, 7, gathering apples. He fired on them with a shot gun. Then he went to the Sears home, shot Sears through the body, killing him instantly, and shot Mrs. Sears.

It is thought that Harry is the only member of the family who will survive his injuries.

Bion's body was found a few hours after the shooting in a field a short distance from the scene of the crime. He had shot himself through the breast with a revolver.

SUMMER CAMP AGAIN NEXT YEAR, IS PLAN

Board of Y. W. C. A. Directors Acts Favorably on Petition.

Upon recommendation by the executive committee, the board of directors of the Young Women's Christian association which met in regular monthly session at the association building, Wednesday morning, decided to again maintain a summer camp next summer. This motion was carried without a dissenting vote. At this time a petition headed, "Are You in Favor of the Camp?" signed by eighty-five girls was presented.

Twenty members of the board were present at this session which opened with devotional exercises led by Mrs. Fred Thieme. A letter of greeting from the former president, Mrs. E. A. Donnan, was read.

Several changes were made in the members of the various committees. Mrs. Frank Rabe was added to the house committee. Mrs. Elizabeth Gardener was made a member of the educational committee. Miss Catherine Brown was transferred from the educational committee to the physical training committee. Mrs. R. Meyers, Mrs. Clinton R. Willson and Mrs. Charles Mize were added to the extension committee.

Mrs. D. M. Doyle, of the membership committee, reported that the "Each win a member" campaign would be prolonged until Oct. 15. Mrs. [illegible] reported that the physical training classes would open next week and if the required number of boys under twelve years of age were secured that a class would be formed for them to meet on Saturday afternoons.

The house committee chairman, Mrs. A. H. Perfect, announced that during the month ninety transients were taken care of 145 nights, the rest room was used fourteen times and the emergency room three times.

Mrs. George Bliss, of the cafeteria committee, reported that 1,101 more meals were served during September than the previous month.

ASKS CITIZENS TO RIDE CARS

Car Jumps Track in Bloomingdale Doing Much Damage.

An appeal directed to the citizens of Fort Wayne was made Wednesday afternoon in a statement issued by James M. Barrett, president of the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company, in which he reviews the circumstances leading up to the strike and the demoralizing effect such a situation as now exists may have upon the city.

President Barrett takes up the cases of the discharged men individually, pointing out the reasons for which they were let out and closes with an appeal to "the sense of right and justice of the people of this city to uphold the company in the exercise of its lawful rights and patronize its cars."

"The company and its officials have been law-abiding and are now only asking the lawful right and privilege of operating in a lawful manner its large properties in which millions of dollars have been invested," Mr. Barrett continues. "To prevent or deny these rights by intimidation, coercion, destruction of its property or violence to its employes serving the public, as well as the company, is not only a legal wrong, but destructive of all government."

Car Jumps Track.

Northbound city car No. 180 jumped the track just north of the Wells street bridge shortly after noon, Wednesday, and but for a pole on the inside of the sidewalk on the east side of the street it would have crashed into the building. No one was injured. The car was badly damaged and it was some little time before the service could be resumed because of broken wires.

A Driving park car struck a buggy Wednesday afternoon at Spy Run and Wagner avenues, frightening the horse and causing it to run away. The buggy was badly damaged.

The Empress theater has given the street car men 1,000 tickets for the two performances next Monday, which they are to sell for 50 cents each. The car men will receive one-half of all the tickets turned in at the theater and the full amount of tickets sold that are not turned in.

Company Still Determined.

Officials of the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company repeated Wednesday morning with perhaps a little more emphasis than on former occasions the declaration that the new union formed by their former employes will never be recognized. They declare most emphatically that the men are "playing a losing game" and that positively nothing can transpire that

REJECTS RALSTON AS UMPIRE IN STRIKE

Traction Company Will Not Let Governor Decide Whether State Board of Local Men Shall Arbitrate Issues.

The Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company, after having the proposal under consideration since last Thursday night, has rejected a proposal made to it through city officials to ask Governor Samuel M. Ralston to act as umpire to decide whether the arbitration of the issues in the street car strike shall be submitted for arbitration to the state public service board or to a board of Fort Wayne men.

The plan to request Governor Ralston's help was approved by the striking carmen.

An answer had been expected daily since last Saturday, but no definite word was given until Wednesday afternoon when counsel for the Traction company said that "today the answer is no."

It had been hoped that a favorable answer would be received and a way found to end the strike.

Proposal Made Thursday.

The proposal that Governor Ralston be asked to act as arbitrator was made Thursday night. Before it could be submitted to President Barrett, of the traction company, that gentleman had left the city for Indianapolis to consult Ferdinand Winters, western counsel for the United States Mortgage & Trust company, of Philadelphia, holders of the bonds of the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company.

Mr. Barrett returned Friday night and the new peace proposal was submitted to him Saturday. He said he would take the proposal under advisement, promising an answer Monday. The answer was deferred until Thursday.

Not to Submit Strike Issues.

It has not been the plan to ask Governor Ralston to arbitrate the issues between the street car company and its striking employes, but solely to decide whether or not these issues shall be usbmitted to the state board of public service commissioners or to a local board of arbitration to be selected by the company and strikers, or according to some other plan that the governor might propose.

It has been the purpose to have the governor's participation cease with the decision of this question and not to burden him with resonsibility for any future disputes or disagreements.

SCULPTOR MULLIGAN ATTENDS MEETING

Charles J. Mulligan, a Chicago sculptor, who has submitted two models for the proposed equestrian statue, was in attendance Wednesday afternoon at a meeting of the Anthony Wayne Monument commission which was held in the relic room on the third floor of the court house. Sculptor Mulligan attended the meeting at the invitation of the commission.

The Nickel Plate will begin operations soon.

RAILROAD IS BLAMED.

Ardmore, Okla., Oct. 6.—The deaths and injuries caused by an explosion of a tank car of gasoline here the afternoon of Sept. 27 were caused through negligence of the Santa Fe Railroad company and its employes, but said negligence was not 'felonious," according to a verdict returned by the coroner's jury today. Two scores of persons met death as a result of the explosion.

LOCATION QUESTION WILL BE DISCUSSED

Plymouth Congregational to Hold Annual Meeting This Evening

Among the many important questions which will be discussed and decided upon at the annual meeting of the Plymouth congregation church members, to be held Wednesday evening at the church, will be the location problem, which has been under consideration since the close of the Lyon tabernacle meetings early this year. The present quarters are not sufficiently large enough to accommodate all.

The officials and pastor of the church, as a committee, have been looking for sites for a new building and have also considered plans for the remodeling of the present structure at Harrison and Jefferson streets. Action will be taken on this matter at the yearly meeting.

The rumor that has been spread about the street during the past day that the Plymouth congregation will purchase the property of another church which is now for sale, is denied. Officials state that although it was an ideal location it would not give them any better accommodations than the present church building they now occupy.

Whether a new location is secured or the present building remodeled, it is the intention to provide quarters for basket ball, a gymnasium and other improvements of this character, including shower baths.

CLINE WILL MAKE RACE

HAS BEEN URGED BY MANY FRIENDS

Congressman to Go Before People in Primaries Next March.

Pursuant to urgent demands made upon him by a large number of substantial democrats of the Twelfth district, Congressman Cyrus Cline definitely announced yesterday that he will be a candidate in the coming primaries for renomination for congress. Mr. Cline made his decision after insistent demands from people from every county in the district who believe the best interests of the district will be served by his return to congress.

Mr. Cline goes before the people of the Twelfth district with a record of efficiency and faithfulness as a public servant that has made him one of the prominent legislators in the national congress. He has been prominently identified with every important legislative enactment passed by the Wilson administration and is regarded in the house as one of the the most ardent supporters of the president.

At this time when the country is confronted almost daily with crises which threaten to involve us in conflicts with foreign powers, when mature judgment and an ability to act based upon a ripe experience in legislative halls is required to safely pilot the ship of state through the troubled waters, there are none who question the wisdom of filling the highest positions in the gift of the nation with men who fully measure up to the requirements. It was because of Mr. Cline's intimate familiarity with the state problems that are now demanding the utmost delicacy in their successful conduct and because of the close fellowship he has enjoyed with the leaders upon whose shoulders falls the responsibility for the nation's safety, it was felt by patriotic Twelfth district democrats that Mr. Cline should be prevailed upon to again become a candidate.

Throughout the country effort is being made by members of all political parties to induce men of legislative experience to enter the contests for seats in congress on account of the particularly intricate problems which are sure to confront the nation. In many localities former members of congress are being urged to seek the toga on that theory.

Especial effort on the part of substantial Twelfth district democrats was made to induce Mr. Cline to announce his candidacy for the reason that during his entire service as the people's repre-

DOPE CASES NOW IN FEDERAL COURT

Robert Jones, colored, was arrested Wednesday morning on an affidavit sworn out in the federal court by Thomas J. McLaughlin, deputy revenue collector, charging him with violation of the United States statute against the traffic in narcotic drugs. Charles Moore, a mulatto, who was arrested Saturday after it had been found he was forging a physician's prescription to procure drugs, will be arrested on a federal charge Thursday morning. Both are now in the county jail.

It is alleged that Moore and Jones, who runs a barber shop in the same room where Moore's shoe shining parlor is located at 1509 Calhoun street, had been obtaining drugs at the Christian Brothers' drug store at Calhoun and Douglas avenue, on forged prescriptions.

B. J. Griswold, T. L. Staples and Page Yarnelle have been appointed as a committee from the Rotary club to co-operate with the committee of the Commercial club in arranging for the meeting and [illegible] the celebration.

ULTIMATUM TO SERBIA FERDINAND'S REPORT

Today's War News Given in Summary.

Bulgaria not only has rejected the demands of Russia but has sent an ultimatum to Serbia concerning Macedonia according to unofficial advices from Petrograd. It is declared that a reply from Serbia within 24 hours is demanded.

German guns broke up yesterday a French attempt to resume the offensive on the front of the former attack in the Champagne, Berlin declares. There was heavy artillery reparation and massing of troops, but whenever the French moved to advance they were stopped by the German artillery fire, heavy losses being inflicted on the attacking troops, the official statement asserts.

The French official report mentions only artillery firing in the Champagne district.

On the eastern front the Germans report having repulsed determined Russian attacks in the Dvinsk region. Initial successes for the Russians are admitted but the situation afterwards turned in favor of Field Marshal von Hindenburg's troops, it is asserted.

According to a Constantinople dispatch to a Berlin newspaper the British consul and consular guards at Ispahan have been killed by Persians. Tribesmen in Persia were recently reported to have overcome the government military forces.

The resigantion of Premier Venizelos and his cabinet has been accepted by King Constantine of Greece. Official advices to this effect were received in London today.

Petrograd, Oct. 6.—Bulgaria has rejected the demands of the Russian government and has sent an ultimatum to Serbia concerning Macedonia, according to information which has reached the Serbian archimandriate, Michael, says a Moscow telegram to the Bourse Gazette. Bulgaria demands that Serbia reply to the ultimatum within twenty-four hours.

It is understood here that the British and French ministers at Sofia have received instructions to leave Bulgaria if Russia severs diplomatic relations with that county. Military action against Bulgaria, however, is not contemplated unless the latter attacks Serbia or takes other measures clearly inimical to the interests of the entente allies.

NO CRIME IN DEATH OF WILLIAM HENSON

That there was no element of foul play in the death of William T. Henson, 140 Baker street, who died in a cell at police headquarters Sunday morning, is the conclusion of Coroner E. H. Kruse, Chief of Police Charles Lenz and Prosecutor S. A. Callahan, following a post mortem examination made by the coroner late Tuesday afternoon. The heart and other organs of the dead man were found in a shocking condition that indicated acute alcoholic poisoning. Henson was taken suddenly ill in the Fryberger restaurant on Harrison street, at 9 o'clock Saturday night, while drinking coffee with Della Zell, a woman he had picked up on the street, collapsed almost immediately and was taken to police headquarters as a drunk. It has not yet been determined whether or not a chemical analysis shall be made of the contents of Henson's stomach.

Della Zell will be further questioned by Chief of Police Lenz Wednesday afternoon. She was so drunk at the time of her arrest Monday night and on Tuesday still suffering so much from her debauch that her interrogation was deferred.

A fellow employe of Henson at the Furnas ice cream factory says Henson was subject to fits and that his seizures were sometimes very severe.

HE HANDED BLUFF BACK

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 6.—Charles A. Bookwalter, republican leader and former mayor of Indianapolis, was called by the state today to testify in the trial of Mayor Joseph E. Bell, charged with election conspiracy. He said he spent most of election day in the Fourth precinct of the Sixth ward, which he regarded as "one of the battlefields of politics in Indianapolis."

The former mayor testified there was a long line of voters there all day. He stated that he saw five men there working that did not belong in the precinct.

"The chairman of the bunch told me to get the h— out of there," he continued. "I said I wouldn't. Then he said, 'start something and it will be 50-50 for you.' I returned the bluff and said, 'If you lay hands on me it will be sixty-forty for you.'"

Mr. Bookwalter said he did not know Wm. Pettit, who testified yesterday that his precinct was the scene of the activity of his "wrecking crew."

Saw No Trouble.

The witness was given a lengthy cross examination, during which he said he did not see any trouble of any kind at the polling place. He saw Mayor Bell at the polls, but that he didn't do anything to intimidate or threaten voters. He also said he did not see the police strike any one or draw their clubs.

"Did you see Mr. Bell threaten any one at the polls," asked M. A. Ryan.

"He certainly did not. He was smiling, seemingly anticipating something that did not happen," replied the witness."

He evidently referred to the election, which was won by the republicans, although the democrats were predicted to win by a large majority.

Mr. Bookwalter's Testimony.

Mr. Bookwalter told of being in the Fourth precinct of the Sixth ward almost all of election day. He told of a

Expects Ft. Wayne Men to Join the Strikers

Schenectady, N. Y., Oct. 6.—The union workers in the Lynn and Pittsfield, Mass., and Fort Wanye, Ind., plants of the General Electric company are likely ata any moment to join the 10,000 strikers from the local plant in their demand for an eight-hour day, it was reported here today.

"J. J. Keppler, vice-president of the International Association of Machinists, said at our executive session today," Harvey A. Simmons, chairman of the union press committee, reported, "that he had received telegrams saying sympathetic action might be expected in the three plants at any time. We estimate that there are 60,000 men employed in the Lynn, Pittsfield, Fort Wayne and Schenectady works and that from two-thirds to three-fourths of them are union men."

Simmons also announced that local union officials were proceeding with their plans to confer with the company officials here. No statement of any kind was forthcoming from the company today.

Employes of the Fort Wayne Electric works today declared that there had been no move toward a strike because of the trouble at Schenectady and that the matter had never come up for discussion at any of the union meetings. About 90 per cent of the machinists in the Fort Wayne plant are unionized.

CONSTANTINE BREAKS WITH HIS ADVISERS

Resignation of Premier Venizelos Comes When King Refuses to Follow Cabinet's Policy,

London, Oct. 6.—King Constantine, of Greece, has accepted the resignation of the Venizelos cabinet, according to an official dispatch which reached London today.

The position taken by King Constantine of Greece, in his interview with Premier Venizelos is said by the Athens correspondent of the Havas agency to have been that he could not pursue the policy of the Venizelos cabinet.

In consequence of the resignation of Premier Venizelos and the other members of the cabinet, the session of the Greek chamber has been adjourned, says a Havas dispatch from Athens.

WAS WHOLLY UNEXPECTED.

Resignation Led to Scenes of Wild Disorder in Chamber.

Athens, Oct. 6.—After his conference with King Constantine, Premier Venizelos returned to the chamber of deputies and made a statement of the causes of the disagreement. He then announced the resignation of the entire cabinet. Sittings of the chamber were suspended.

The resignation of Premier Venizelos was altogether unexpected. He conversed with the correspondent of the Associated Press at noon yesterday in a manner which indicated the utmost confidence in the future course of his government. Meanwhile King Constantine came to Athens from Tatoi, the summer residence of the royal family, and summoned the premier to the palace.

After a terse interview in which there was the plainest speaking, the premier proceeded to the chamber of deputies and announced that he had again disagreed with the king on foreign policy of the country and had presented his resignation and that of his cabinet. This announcement led to a scene of wild disorder in the chamber. The city is greatly excited. There is much discussion of the formation of a coalition cabinet.

An Official Statement.

The following statement was issued officially after a meeting of the cabinet:

"The French minister delivered the following note to Premier Venizelos: 'By order of my government I have the honor to announce to your excellency the arrival at Saloniki of the first detachment of French troops and to declare at the same time that France and England allied to Serbia send their troops to help the latter, as well as to maintain their communications with her, and that the two powers count upon Greece, who already has given them so many proofs of friendship, not to oppose measures taken in the interests of Serbia, of whom she also is the ally.'

Premier Venizelos replied: "By your letter of today you have been so good as to inform me of the arrival at Saloniki of the first detachment of French troops and of the decision of France and England to send their troops to help Serbia, their ally, adding that the powers count on Greece not to oppose measures taken in the interests of Serbia, whereof she also is the ally.

"In answer to your letter I have the honor to declare to your excellency that, being neutral in the European war, the royal government could not possibly authorize the proceeding in question, for it constitutes a breach of Greece's neutrality, the more manifest since it comes from two great belligerent powers. It is therefore the duty of the royal government to protest against the passage of foreign troops across the Greek territory. The circumstances that these troops are solely to aid Serbia, Greece's ally, in no way modifies the legal position of the king's government. For even from a Balkanic point of view Greece's neutrality could not be affected before the actual casus foederis was committed by the danger now threatening Serbia, which caused the dispatch of international troops to her help."

The French and British officers who have already landed have been received most cordially by the local naval, military and civil authorities and have been able to begin work immediately on their arrival. Public opinion is that it is necessary for the entente powers to give assistance to Serbia.

BROTHER OF FATHER PETRILLI WAS LOST

The fear of Father Anthony Petrilli, pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic Italian church, this city, that his brother Leonardo might have been killed when the Benedetto Brin, the prize of the Italian navy, was destroyed by an explosion September 29, was confirmed Tuesday evening when the local priest received a cablegram from his native home which bore the short but concise statement, "Leonardo disappeared."

Rev. Petrilli is of the opinion that his brother, who was an under officer of the sunken battleship, was killed with the captain and the 360 men of the crew and that perhaps he may have been torn to pieces by the force of the explosion and that it will be impossible to recover the body of the young sailor.

Leonardo Petrilli was 20 years of age, but despite his youth had developed into such good shape that he had been placed in command of one of the gun crews manning the heavier batteries. He had a brilliant career ahead of him had it not been for the horrible disaster.

Father Petrilli states that he has another brother who is actively engaged in the great European conflict serving in one of the first line regiments of the Italian army now grappling with the Austrians. Both brothers wrote to their pastor brother. The last letter from the sailor was received two weeks before his death.

SHOWER OF MESSAGES POURING UPON RILEY

Hoosier Poet Deluged With Kindly Expressions for Birthday.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 6.—James Whitcomb Riley, Indiana's beloved poet, is receiving hundreds of messages from all parts of the United States this week congratulating him on his birthday, which will be the occasion of a nation-wide celebration tomorrow. In Indianapolis, where the principal celebration of Mr. Riley's birthday will be held, every arrangement has been completed to make the theatrical performance in the afternoon and the banquet at night the most complete and beautiful tribute that ever has been paid to the Hoosier poet.

No one seems to know just how many years old Mr. Riley will be tomorrow. Asked why he kept his age a secret, he replied: "I never want my friends to think I'm getting old. Asked as to the state of his health the poet said, "I feel like a boy. I haven't felt so strong in years," contiued Mr. Riley. "Every day I drive out in my car and I am enjoying life in spite of the war in Europe. You see I never read the newspapers and don't know what is going on over there. It has always been my aim to avoid things that are disagreeable and cause pain."

Men and women prominent in the world of letters who will attend the celebration of the poet's birthday began to arrive in Indianapolis today. Mr. Riley's old-fashioned red brick house in Lockerbie street has become more than ever before the Mecca of distinguished persons. And the poet is just as lively and happy as when as a barefoot boy he played clown with the rest of "the fellers" up in a hayloft many years ago.

SAYS ALL LOSE IN END ON WALL STREET

Samuel Untermeyer Believes Average Man Should Stay Out.

New York, Oct. 6.—"Never in the history of the stock exchange has the public been threatened by so dangerous a pitfall as that which is now wide open for its victims," said Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the government in the money trust investigation, in a letter to the Rev. C. F. Reisner.

Untermyer said that "it is worse than hopeless," for the average man to try to win a fortune in the stock market, and asserted that "in the end they all lose."

"Above all things," Mr. Untermyer said, "I advise that in making their investments they keep away from the so-called (and in most instances miscalled) war stocks, most of which are selling at greatly inflated prices, based on temporary conditions which are greatly exaggerated and accelerated by pool manipulations and other forms of artificial activity. In some of the prominent instances the present prices reflect, in my judgment, besides these conditions, a feverish wave of wild and senseless speculation that has seized the general public for which the public will, as usual, pay dearly in the end."

NOTE GOES TO ENGLAND SOON

Way Now Paved for Taking Up Interference With Commerce.

Disavowal by Germany Expected to Lead to Early Adjustment.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Germany's disavowal of responsibility for the sinking of the Arabic with accompanying assurances that the possibility of another such incident had been precluded through stringent instructions to submarine commanders, was regarded by officials of the Washington government today as one of the most gratifying results assured by American diplomacy since the European war began.

The disavowal and promise of reparation for the loss of the American lives made in a letter delivered to Secretary Lansing yesterday by Count von Bernstorff the German ambassador, on instructions from Berlin, was taken to forecast an early adjustment of the Lusitania case and other features of the submarine question.

Even More Pronounced.

Optimism over the outlook for complete settlement was even more pronounced in German quarters here. It was pointed out that Ambassador Bernstorff had full authority from his government to act for it in the negotiations and that his determination for an amicable adjustment had been amply demonstrated by the wide concessions made in the case of the Arabic. The crisis in the relations between the United States and Germany growing out of the submarine controversy which came near the breaking point on at least two occasions is regarded as having passed and all that now remains to be arranged in the Arabic case is the fixing of the amount of indemnity. That phase of the case will be taken up orally at a conference at a date yet to be determined, between Secretary Lansing and the German ambassador. The next feature of the issue to be taken up is the Lusitania case. It has been held up until a settlement of the Arabic case had been reached.

Note to England Soon.

With the Arabic case disposed of, the way has been paved for sending the American note to Great Britain on interference with neutral commerce. It is expected to go forward within a few days. Its dispatch has been delayed because President Wilson did not wish to complicate the situation with that growing out of the submarine controversy.

SKINNER COMING HOME.

American Consul General to Discuss Trade Problem.

London, Oct. 6.—Robert P. Skinner, American consul general, will sail for the United States within three weeks on a short leave. Mr. Skinner was unwilling to discuss today the report from Washington that the American note to Great Britain relative to the detention of American goods would be held up until after his return to Washington, saying he had no information to this effect. He added, however, that he expected to discuss trade problems with the American authorities. Representatives here of American shipping interests welcome the news in the hope that Mr. Skinner's visit to the United States may lessen their difficulties.

The main trouble has been the method adopted by the British authorities in releasing cargoes bound for Holland and Scandinavia. More reliance is placed on the personal reputation of the exporters and importers and the belief of the British officials in the good faith of the consigners and consignees than in formal declarations. The great difficulty has been to establish the reputation and integrity of American exporters, who are 3,000 miles away. It is believed some machinery will be set up in the United States to obviate this difficulty. The British policy seems also to operate to prevent the building up of large stocks in Holland and Scandinavia, imports of individual firms being limited accordingly. The difficulty relating to the holding up of perishable cargoes was settled some time ago and there have been no further complaints on this score.

WARDEN IS FEASTED BY FORMER CONVICTS

New York, Oct. 6.—Twent-five former convicts who served their time in Sing Sing or Auburn prisons set an unusual precedent last night by giving a dinner here to Thomas M. Osborne, warden of Sing Sing, who voluntarily served a short time in Auburn prison in order to see prison life from the prisoner's standpoint.

Officials of the national commission on prisons and prison labor also were guests of the former convicts. The purpose was to show Mr. Osborne that the men who once were imprisoned are winning their way back into industrial and social life and to show their gratitude to him.

CHAMP CLARK IN A POSSE AIDS JAILER

Speaker and Son Rally to Frustrate Mob Bent on Lynching.

Bowling Green, Mo., Oct. 6.—For the second time Mrs. W. B. Hawkins, wife of the sheriff of Pike county, saved the life of Harriso.. Rose, a negro prisoner charged with murder, by parleying with a mob which had invaded the Pike county jail at 1 o'clock yesterday morning while the sheriff formed a posse of citizens.

The posse of fifty armed men, among whom were Speaker Champ Clark of the national house of representatives and his son, Bennett, arrived at the jail a few minutes after the mob had fled.

A month ago the sheriff's wife similarly held off a mob until the mayor and prosecuting attorney arrived and persuaded them to depart. Rose, the negro, is charged with stabbing a Clarksville, Mo., farmer to death with a pitchfork.

Monday midnight the mob from Clarksville called on Sheriff Hawkins to surrender Rose, and when he refused they battered down the outer doors of the jail. While two held the sheriff, others held revolvers to his forehead and commanded him to tell where he had hidden the keys to Rose's cell. The sheriff told the mob they would have to break down the jail to get the negro and while they were pounding on the inner jail door with sledge hammers the sheriff escaped and gave the alarm.

Meanwhile other members of the mob first begged and then commanded the sheriff's wife to produce the keys, but their revolvers brought no more terror to her than they had to the sheriff. The mob fled in automobiles when lookouts gave alarm of the posse's coming. Tonight Sheriff Hawkins swore in several deputies to help guard the jail.

If Coffee Came in Capsules

as its drug, caffeine, is frequently sold, coffee drinkers would wake up to the fact that coffee is not a food but a drug.

Yet in spite of the warnings of reputable physicians, many persons fail to realize the harmful effects of caffeine, coffee's subtle, habit-forming drug. Taken regularly this coffee drug—the frequent cause of nervousness, heart-flutter, headache and other ailments—sooner or later gets its hold.

Look coffee in the face—read what physicians and health experts say: (Names on application).

"Coffee is a dope and narcotic almost equal to opium. Slowly but surely it gets control of its victim and holds him in its grasp a pitiful, helpless victim."

"Coffee is a drug. Those addicted to its use are drug addicts."

"Some people get the craving for alcohol by first taking tea or coffee."

"They (the tea and coffee drugs) are comparable to opium in that they induce a habit and should be avoided."

Right now, Mr. Coffee Drinker, is the time to find out whether or not coffee has a hold on you. It's simple and easy—quit coffee ten days and use

A Comprehensive Showing of Autumn Fashions

There is something notably different about the styles we show; so many women have told us that. A different air to the entire garment; a different touch here and there; a feature of fashion just a little in advance; and that is what women want.

Our prices, too, are a little different, a little lower. Manufacturers have made unprecedented concessions as to price on account of the tremendous volume of our business; and this same volume lets us be satisfied with a smaller profit on each garment.

This is truly a wonderful showing, and should be valuable to you as a style guide.

THINK!

God gave us our brains for thought, for reasoning.

Can a man ALWAYS give $150 worth for $50?

OCCASIONALLY, yes, but as a steady thing, NO. And he insults your intelligence by thinking you will fall for such claims.

This store will never be a party to catch sales and large figures in its advertising.

BUT—We do guarantee to have better values ALL THE TIME at our regular prices, than the store with the perpetual sale habit. Compare!

See if our one price isn't lower than the other stores' second or third.

PLEADS GUILTY; GOES TO PEN.

Man Who Shot Ex-Mayor Wood at Warsaw, Causes Surprise.

Warsaw, Ind., Oct. 6.—The trial of Ezekiel Evans, charged with attempting to kill Former Mayor A. G. Wood, of this city last summer by shooting, came to a sudden stop Tuesday afternoon when the defense decided to withdraw his plea of not guilty and enter a plea of guilty. Evans was sentenced by the court to serve two to fourteen years in the penitentiary and was assessed a fine of fifty dollars. The sudden ending of the case came as quite a surprise; however, all who had followed the evidence conceded that the defendant had but slight chances for acquittal.

When Ezekiel Evans, on trial in the circuit court for attempting to murder Captain A. G. Wood, took the stand Tuesday morning all doubt as to his sanity was dispelled. Evans was one of the best witnesses that has taken the stand and told of the different persons for whom he had worked in the past five years and what he received from each. When asked in the cross-examination if he ever attended church, he stated that he often attended and read the Bible. He further stated that he did this because he believed that every man should attend church.

IN COURT OVER TOMBSTONE.

Blackford County People Would Save Price of a Marker.

Bluffton, Ind., Oct. 6.—Walter Haddon and Edith Hartman, of Blackford county, were in court here yesterday, opposing the petition of A. T. Merriman, administrator of the estate of their sister, Mary Haddon, for an order from the court authorizing the expenditure of $250 for a marker over the dead girl's grave. Miss Haddon made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Merriman for some time before her death and was buried on their family lot. Her brother and sister set out that their parents are buried in a Warren cemetery and that a tombstone has been erected for them bearing a blank place for an inscription for the deceased daughter. Instead of having the money spent for a monument they desire that the body be buried on the family's lot at Warren.

MIXED UP IN ACCIDENT.

Montpelier, Ind. Oct. 6.—An automobile, motorcycle and horse and buggy figured in an accident, on Warren avenue, Saturday afternoon. All were headed towards this city. The motorcycle was passing the buggy when the automobile struck the buggy, throwing it around so that it struck the motorcycle rider and threw him to the ground. The automobile went into the ditch but Burson, riding the motorcycle, was slightly bruised and the motorcycle was damaged where the buggy struck it. The automobile was driven by Homer Pontius, of Geneva.

MONTPELIER NOW SALOONLESS.

Montpelier, Ind., Oct. 6.—Montpelier is now without a saloon, the last four having closed their doors in obedience to the option election last May. They cannot legally open their doors again until two years have passed and not then unless the people of the city vote wet in another election.

With Montpelier dry, the last saloons in Blackford county have closed their doors. Hartford City voted dry some time ago and was followed by Montpelier, and to crown the success of the drys in this county, Harrison township was voted dry Saturday evening.

CONFERENCE AT ROANOKE.

Roanoke, Ind., Oct. 6.—The Indiana state conference of the Brethren church is in progress here, the sessions being held in the Brethren church in Roanoke. A large number of delegates are present and the registration is expected to reach 250 by the end of the week. The majority of the Brethren churches of the state are represented. Delegates to the conference are being housed among the members of the congregation and fed in the basement of the church, the church women doing the cooking. Sessions of the conference will last until Friday, the last session being held Friday morning.

COMMISSIONERS TAKE A LOOK.

Albion, Ind., Oct. 6.—After hearing the arguments of attorneys for the G. R. & I. railroad and for the people, relative to the lease of the Sylvan lake water rights, the county commissioners decided to visit Rome City and personally inspect the lake involved. The board went to Rome City yesterday and made the investigation. The county auditor and county attorney accompanied the board. The board resumed its session here in the afternoon, but action on the problem will probably be delayed until the November meeting.

The lad's leg was amputated soon after the accident. His left arm and hand were also injured.

INTERURBAN EMPLOYE HURT.

Decatur, Ind., Oct. 6.—A. C. Jeffery, electrician for the Fort Wayne & Springfield company, was the victim of a painful injury that will keep him from his work for several days. The accident occurred at the car barns of the company where Mr. Jeffery was assisting in the changing of some car wheels from one truck to another one. A heavy wheel was being rolled on the barn tracks when it slipped from there and the sharp flange caught his left foot almost entirely severing the big toe from it.

Terre Haute Official Will Contest Impeachment by Council.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 6.—Final steps in the impeachment case of James M. Gossom as mayor were taken yesterday when Chalmers M. Hamill and Frank S. Rawley, attorneys for Gossom, filed an appeal in the circuit court from the decision of the city council, which voted 6 to 3 to unseat the mayor.

The pleadings in the appeal declare the action to remove Gossom was to be null and void because the council lacked the necessary two-thirds vote of its entire membership of ten. A bond to cover the costs of the appeal was filed by Mayor Gossom and it was approved by Judge Chas. L. Pulliam. The bond was signed by John L. Smith, James Luther and James M. Gossom.

THE SENTINEL'S DAILY SCRIPTURE READING.

Exodus 12:1-13.

1 And the Lord spake unto Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt, saying,

2 This month shall be unto you the beginning of months: it shall be the first month of the year to you.

3 Speak ye unto all the congregation of Israel, saying, In the tenth day of this month they shall take to them every man a lamb, according to the house of their fathers, a lamb for an house:

4 And if the household be too little for the lamb, let him and his neighbour next unto his house take it according to the number of the souls; every man according to his eating shall make your count for the lamb.

5 Your lamb shall be without blemish, a male of the first year: ye shall take it out from the sheep, or from the goats:

6 And ye shall keep it up until the fourteenth day of the same month: and the whole assembly of the congregation of Israel shall kill it in the evening.

7 And they shall take of the blood, and strike it on the two side posts and the upper door post of the houses, wherein they shall eat it.

8 And they shall eat the flesh in that night, roast with fire, and unleavened bread; and with bitter herbs they shall eat it.

9 Eat not of it raw, nor sodden at all with water, but roast with fire; his head with his legs, and with the purtenance thereof.

10 And ye shall let nothing of it remain until the morning; and that which remaineth of it until the morning ye shall burn with fire.

11 And thus shall ye eat it; with your loins girded, your shoes on your feet, and your staff in your hand; and ye shall eat it in haste; it is the Lord's passover.

12 For I will pass through the land of Egypt this night, and will smite all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, both man and beast; and against all the gods of Egypt I will execute judgment: I am the Lord.

13 And the blood shall be to you for a token upon the houses where ye are: and when I see the blood, I will pass over you, and the plague shall not be upon you to destroy you, when I smite the land of Egypt.

Closing Chicago on Sunday.

The order of Mayor Thompson for the closing of the saloons and the bars of hotels and clubs in Chicago on Sunday has plainly given that city a shock that pales the performance of the ordinary earthquake into insignificance by comparison. For more than forty years such a thing has been unheard of in that city. Since the days of the big fire the liquor shops in Chicago have enjoyed untrammeled freedom of operation on the Sabbath day as on any other day of the week, and during every moment of that time they have openly defied a state law on the Illinois statute books which expressly forbade it. To now be compelled to obey the law as others are and have been compelled to obey it is nothing less than outrage in the view of the men whom the new order will curb. They are running about in circles, shrieking with pain and altogether conveying the impression that their heart's blood is about to be shed. They have simply been in the saddle so long that they resent any interference as impertinence and they act as though fully expecting freedom to proceed to shriek at the new order of things. But while the liquor men, under one guise or another, are making all the noise, what of the view of the law-abiding element in Chicago? It must be a positive one and it must endorse the position taken by Mayor Thompson in performing his sworn duty under the law. Is not its desire to see law enforcement entitled to quite as much consideration as is the desire of the other element to break the law? When the air clears a bit we think it will be shown that the real sentiment of Chicago will be found upholding the mayor, and it will be well if the incident demonstrates that no city is big enough to ruthlessly trample state laws and do it indefinitely.

Mr. Cline's Announcement.

Congressman Cyrus Cline has made formal announcement of his candidacy for renomination by the democrats of the Twelfth district at the primary to be held in March next, and while it has been generally conceded that Mr. Cline would again be a candidate, the formal declaration of his entrance into the race will nevertheless be received with much interest by the voters of the district.

The Angola man's record in congress is one to which he may point with justifiable pride. He has been assiduous in his devotion to the interests of his constituents in every county in the district, and has given to the position not only close attention but a very high order of ability. Moreover, the rank he has attained by virtue of his term of service in the house has placed him in a position to be increasingly useful to his district.

The newest assurances of Count von Bernstorff make it clear that Germany accepts the American view of the Arabic case, that it disavows the action of the submarine commander in making the attack and is willing to make such reparation as is possible to the families of those Americans who lost life in the torpedoing of the vessel, at the same time expressing regret for the occurrence. In all ways the German attitude in the matter is now gratifying and doubtless complete adjustment will soon be reached. Meanwhile those determined critics of the president who invariably believe he should have taken some other course than that which he pursues in meeting the steadily recurring problems will doubtless demonstrate their resourcefulness by hunting up something else upon which to advise him.

Speaking before the realty men, General Agent S. K. Blair called attention to the value of railways to Fort Wayne, a matter upon which too much emphasis can scarcely be laid. Fort Wayne is notably fortunate in the matter of its railways, and they have been of incalculable benefit in city building. Mr. Blair's suggestion that still others ought to be given assistance and encouragement in reaching Fort Wayne is one which is so important that it should command immediate and favorable attention.

Attacks upon street cars during the present transportation clash in Fort Wayne have not, as a matter of fact, been especially severe, but that they have occurred at all is regrettable. Adjustment of the difficulty is not going to be brought about in that fashion, and the best interests of all concerned—and that includes the general public—will be served by fairness and law and order.

Glaring headlights have resulted in another auto smash near Fort Wayne. Just how many more will be required before we conclude we have had enough and proceed with the sort of regulation that will put an end to the offending?

VOICES ROUND THE WORLD.

(New York World).

Using world's fairs as landmarks of progress, the Panama-Pacific exposition will be identified with nothing more marvelous than the instantaneous transmission of the human voice partly by wire and partly by radio from New York to San Francisco and thence to Honolulu. Of the possibilities of this discovery little need be added to the remark of Mr. Carty, one of the inventors, who on the Pacific coast maintained a conversation with a reporter for the World in this city—that he had had "better results when talking across nearly 3,000 miles of air" than Prof. Bell achieved when he first projected his voice only a few feet over a wire in the 70s. Almost the same success was had between New York and the Sandwich islands, a distance of 4,600 miles.

It is no doubt true, as Mr. Carty says, that this invention will never displace the existing telephone or wireless telegraphy, but the demonstration already made shows that it must have wide and highly important uses. If men sitting at their desks in New York and Honolulu can speak to each other, oceans and deserts, beleaguered cities and hostile territories, even to the greatest of terrestrial distances, will no longer offer serious obstructions to oral communication. To say nothing of war at sea, for most of the purposes of commerce and life saving the spoken word may now carry further and more distinctly than the mystic symbols of the wireless, with fewer physical limitations than attach to that system.

The secret of this accomplishment is to be given only to the United States navy. Probably at no distant day mankind will have the full benefit of it, but meantime it will serve admirably as a patriotic contribution of science to natonal defense.

ELECTIONS IN 1915.

(Indiana Times).

Electoral campaigns this year are to be few. Five states will elect governors in 1915. Massachusetts, Kentucky, Maryland, Mississippi and New Mexico are on the list.

One of the outstanding features in politics in various states is the confidence of the republicans. In some places, notably in Pennsylvania, where the city election in Philadelphia is full of interest, it is being suggested that the republicans are over-confident. The success of Senator Boies Penrose last year in the state of Pennsylvania, apparently has given the Philadelphia republican organization the idea it can win regardless of merit or deserts. Confidence in the case of the Phlidalephia republicans verges on recklessness.

Massachusetts has had five successive years of democratic governors, but with the reported swindling of the progressive party in that state the republicans are understood to be exceedingly hopeful that they will win this year with McCall. The democrats are just as confident they will re-elect Gov. Walsh. The progressives have a candidate in the field in the Bay state.

Kentucky democrats seem to be in a position to claim Kentucky, though republicans are planning to make a desperate fight for that state. The Kentucky issue is state-wide prohibition, and the democratic nominee, Stanley, is a local option man, who defeated a prohibition opponent in the primary.

SOCIAL SESSION.

Members of Old Fort council, No. 192, Royal League, their families and members of the Lady Wayne council enjoyed a progressive pedro party and a social session Tuesday evening. Supreme Scribe Charles E. Piper and Advisory Scribe Charles Darling were present and addressed the council on the good of the order. Miss Mary Brown rendered a solo, "The Night of Gladness," which was greatly appreciated.

Neighbor Told Her Cure for Lumbago

Rheumatism and lumbago are awful things and cause great pain and misery, but Foley Kidney Pills can rout them.

Mrs. G. H. Eveland, Duncan Mills, Ill., writes the following letter: "I was stricken down with lumbago and was unable to turn myself in bed. A neighbor brought me a half bottle of Foley Kidney Pills, and said she had been similarly afflicted and that they had helped her. So I tried them and was completely relieved by the use of two or three bottles. I have had splendid success with them and have never known them to fail. I most heartily recommend Foley Kidney Pills."

NEW GERMAN STROKE WORRY TO ENGLAND

Finding Wood Pulp Efficient in Making High Explosives.

London, Sept. 25.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press).—The question whether the Germans are finding wood pulp an efficient substitute for cotton in the manufacture of high explosives has been investigated by the "Paper Maker," which has consulted several experts.

Sir William Ramsay says: "I quite agree that it is highly probable that the Germans are making nitro-lignose from wood fibre. This is the traged of our always being too late. I quite agree that we should declare wood pulp contraband but I hesitate to start another campaign; it takes so much time and energy.

"The Germans have plenty of wood; their country is largely afforested. As to the relative efficacy of wood pulp and cotton, I am not expert enough to answer that. All I can say is that I am told by French experts that the ballistic power of nitro-lignose is not equal to that of gun-cotton. But Krupp is turning out any number of guns of all sorts, and, doubtless, they are standardized, as regards sights and chambers, for nitro-lignose."

Another expert, Walter F. Reid, sees no value in declaring wood pulp contraband, for "Germany has such large areas of forest containing suitable woods that the present rate of consumption of explosives could be maintained for years without importation of wood pulp." He adds that one of the most popular smokeless powders has been made of wood pulp for more than 30 years.

Clayton Beadle, a third expert, holds a rather different view, saying the German pulp mills could not produce a product that would reach the requirements of explosives for long, adding "to suddenly drop cotton and switch to something new must spell disaster or at any rate, it would be a most serious handicap, and it has not et been proved that it can be done."

KIPLING'S SON IS SLAIN.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR, THICK, WAVY, FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Draw a moist cloth through hair and double its beauty at once.

Save your hair! Dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Immediate?—Yes! Certain?—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after an application of Danderine. Also try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few week's use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, charming, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.—Advertisement.

ANOTHER BASEBALL SUIT FILED HERE

Bill Essick Wants Wheeling to Pay for Some Players Bought.

Another baseball suit growing out of affairs in the Central baseball league has been filed in the local courts, William E. Essick, owner of the Grand Rapids team and franchise, bringing action in the superior court against the Wheeling Athletic association, owner of the Wheeling team, and Louis Heilbriner, president of the league, as trustee, on complaint in attachment and garnishment proceedings to recover $350. The complaint sets out that the plaintiff and four other persons and associations on March 8, 1915, and prior thereto, were entitled to the services of certain baseball players, which were sold to the Wheeling team for $1,600, payment to be made on or before July 15. Payment was to be made to Louis Heilbrner, president of the league, and the money distributed to the five persons entitled to it. There has been nothing paid, says the complaint, and the plaintiff wants his share with interest. President Heilbroner is made party to the suit because he is custodian of a certified check for $2,000 deposited with him by the Wheeling club as a "guaranty that it would meet its obligations." Out of this guaranty deposit the plaintiff expects to get its pay. Essick himself was sued in the circuit court some weeks ago by Bert Annis, of South Bend, who demanded pay for the Grand Rapids team, of which Annis formerly was owner.

Dager Found Guilty.

Judge Eggeman in the circuit court has found George Dager guilty of obtaining money by false pretenses but has reserved sentence until Friday that the defendant may file a motion for a new trial, a course he is expected to take. The charge was that Dager defrauded Mrs. Leulla Ball Thurber in a real estate transaction that involved a trade of properties. The affidavit alleged grand larceny and false pretenses, the state going to trial on the latter count. The state was permitted to introduce evidence showing that Dager had defrauded Mrs. Elizabeth Kellerman in a real estate deal. The state was represented by Prosecutor H. H. Hilgemann and Deputy Frank R. Dulin, while Emrick & Emrick and R. B. Dreibelbiss appeared for the defendant. Dager is a well known real estate factor.

Notes of the Courts.

Samuel H. Bell and others have begun suit in the superior court against William M. Driver and others, demanding judgment for $1,000 on notes. Breen & Morris appear for the plaintiffs.

In the circuit court judgment for $69.57 has been given the plaintiff in the suit of Sarah Boyer vs. Albert C. Hirschey.

In the suit of August W. Relling, administrator of the estate of Loretta Relling, deceased, vs. the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company for damages, the parties agreed on a settlement of $200 and the superior court rendered judgment accordingly.

In the suit of John Bayer vs. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur F. Koons and Charles M. Goheen the superior court has given the plaintiff judgment for $127.20 against the defendants Koons and Koons.

In the suit of the state ex rel. Minnie Winkelmeyer vs. Fred W. Stein, the superior court has granted a continuance of the case until Nov. 5.

The superior court has granted William Fahlsing a divorce from Iva Fahlsing.

A motion for a change of venue from Allen county has been filed in the circuit court in the suit of Dan F. Bash et al. vs. the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company for $900 damages.

The following judgments have been rendered for plaintiffs in the circuit court: Carolyn Fairbank vs. Edward and John W. White, $1,145.10; Caroline W. Straughan vs. Alexander B. White, et al, $3,450.50; Lola Hopkins vs. Edward White, $693.66.

The suit of the International Business college vs. Henry A. Wiese has been sent to the Adams circuit court on change of venue from the Allen superior court.

T. O. Nelson was admitted to the bar by proceedings in the superior court Wednesday.

The superior court has granted a divorce to Mayme Bucher from Hugh Bucher and another to Clara M. Shanton from Roy M. Shanton.

Koneta Van Doren has brought suit in the superior court for divorce from Clifford Van Doren, alleging cruel and inhuman treatment and failure to provide. They were married in 1912 and there is a three-year-old son of which the wife asks custody. Emrick & Emrick are her attorneys.

WILL NOT REVOKE WARTELL LICENSE

Mayor Does Not Believe Auction Sale Case Warrants It.

Mayor Hosey has practically decided that he will not revoke the auctioneer's license taken out by Benjamin Wartell, a jeweler and pawnbroker, at 928 Calhoun street.

Charges were brought against Wartell before Mayor Hosey, alleging that he had misrepresented goods sold at auction in his store and that an auctioneer's license taken out by Wartell for one auctioneer had been transferred to another auctioneer, whereas there was no authority for transferring such licenses. Mayor Hosey gave a hearing on the charges Tuesday and reserved his decision. Claude E. Brown, Nicholas Kramer and Edward Krider were witnesses. Brown said he had bought a watch which was not as represented, as he found later. Kramer also bought a watch the same evening and later returned to Wartell and protested that the article was not the kind he had been told it was when put up for sale and the purchase price was refunded. Wartell stated that Brown had never made complaint to him and had not demanded his money. The license in question shows that it was transferred in the city comptroller's office from the first holder to the second at Wartell's request. Mayor Hosey holds that Wartell had a right to suppose the transferred license was valid and he will refuse to revoke it as well as refuse to apply the fine of $100 asked for in the complaint. There is nothing in the ordinance relating to auctioneers' licenses that forbids a transfer. Brown will doubtless be able to get his money back if he demands it. Mayor Hosey believes that the determination of cases of alleged fraud should be by the regularly constituted courts and not by himself.

PREPARING FOR DEDICATION.

Meeting in Progress With Chairman Hartman of Committee.

A meeting of the committee in charge of arrangements for the formal dedication of the new Harmar school is in progress in the office of Councilman-at-Large Jacob Hartman, the chairman, Wednesday afternoon, and it is expected that a date for the affair will be chosen and other steps taken to insure a proper celebration of the event. Chairman Hartman has appointed the following chairmen of several sub-committees to forward the arrangements:

Committee on Music—Charles J. Steiss, park board secretary.

Committee on Speakers—A. L. Randall, member of the school board.

Committee on Reception—A. H. Keller, councilman from the Seventh ward.

If a day other than Saturday is chosen for the dedication it is probable that the Harmar school will be dismissed during the afternoon in order that the building maya be thrown open for public inspection. The entire Eighth ward is interested in the celebration, which promises to be a most interesting occasion.

COMMITTEE TO FIND OUT.

At a meeting of about a dozen councilmen and other officials and employes of the city in the council chamber, Tuesday evening, a committee was apopinted to interview those in the municipal service to ascertain their views as to the organization of a Municipal Efficiency club, as proposed by Councilman J. B. Mills, of the Sixth ward. The committee consists of William A. Bayer, president of the city council; A. L. Randall, of the Fort Wayne school board, and Councilman-at-Large Jacob Hartman, with Councilman Mills, originator of the movement, as an ex-officio member. Another meeting will be called to hear a report.

MONUMENT COMMISSION MEETS.

The Anthony Wayne monument commission, created by the city council, is holding a meeting Wednesday afternoon in the historical room in the court house, having been called by President D. N. Foster. The commission's meeting is made more interesting by the presence of Charles J. Milligan, of Chicago, a sculptor, who has submitted two models for the proposed monument to General Wayne, and came here for a hearing. Colonel Foster, during a recent visit to Washington, procured photographs of half a score of the most famous monuments of military men that adorn the squares and circles of the national capital.

THE DEATHS.

FRANKE.

Mrs. Sophia Franke, the wife of Richard Franke, of 2606 South Calhoun street, died Tuesday at Sawyer, Wisconsin, where she was visiting with her daughter. The message announcing the sad news did not state the cause of her death. Mrs. Franke left two weeks ago on an automobile trip into Wisconsin and at that time was apparently in the best of health.

However, several days ago the members of the family received word that she was dangerously ill, but they heard nothing more until they received the shocking news Tuesday evening that she had passed away.

Mrs. Franke was a life long resident of Fort Wayne and a sister to ex-Trustee Henry Branning. Death came at the age of 58 years. The deceased was a member of Emmaus Lutheran church and was well known in the city. Besides the husband she is survived by the following children: Mrs. Woebster, of Sawyer, Wis.; Mrs. William Baade, Sophia Miller, Emma and Henry Miller, of this city. Miss Sophia and Henry left to accompany the remains to this city.

ZUBER.

Mrs. Mina Zuber, widow of John Zuber, who died ten years ago, passed away at the St. Joseph hospital Wednesday morning, where she had been a patient for the past six months suffering from a stroke of paralysis. She formerly resided at 2900 Reynolds street. The deceased was a member of St. Andrew's Catholic church and of the Rosary and Altar societies of the same congregation.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Regitta Lipkin, and three brothers, Joseph Friedmann, of this city, and two who reside in the east.

WILL REVISE HIS BID.

Contractor Max Irmscher, who submitted the only bid for rebuilding the No. 3 waterworks pumping station on South Broadway, will revise his proposal to exclude certain items, such as the plumbing, which the city prefers to do itself. His bid for the work was $1,978. The board had a meeting Wednesday morning and decided to postpone final action until Thursday morning, when Mr. Irmscher will probably be awarded the contract.

will cause them to change their attitude.

New men are being employed every day with the promise of permanent employment and by Saturday the board will be filled and regular runs will be assigned, according to J. J. Brennan, superintendent of transportation.

"Not a single man is wavering," declared Chairman Didier, of the press committee of the street car men's union. "No man will return to work as individuals. It must be all of us or none of us." This statement was sanctioned by other trainmen who heard him make it.

No Cause for Complaint.

"Everything is going along nicely," declared Joseph C. Colgan, member of the general executive board of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes. "We have no cause for complaint with the outlook."

Some talk was heard around the Federation of Labor headquarters, Wednesday, of a sympathetic strike, the statement being made that the company's linemen are ready to walk out at any time the car men request it.

Very few people are riding, although the cars are being run on regular schedule on all lines.

Question of Jurisdiction.

Joseph C. Colgan, J. E. Hooper and C. B. Huston, the three men cited for contempt in the federal court at Indianapolis, returned to Fort Wayne late Tuesday night. Late Tuesday afternoon Judge A. B. Anderson announced that he will enter the plea of the attorneys representing the three men as to whether the court has jurisdiction in the Fort Wayne street carmen's case on October 27. There seems to be some doubt on this point. In the event the court finds that it has jurisdiction the hearing will be heard on October 29. Attorney W. H. Latta, representing the United States Mortgage and Trust company, declared Tuesday that further citations would probably be issued within the next day or two.

Barrett is Answered.

The following statement was issued Wednesday by the officials of the Federation of Labor: "We see that Mr. Barrett says the strike is already settled, but there can be no settlement with organized labor until the men return to work."

More Windows Smashed.

Bricks, stones and beer bottles were hurled at passing cars on the second night that the street cars were operated after dark with the result that window panes were smashed in five cars, but luckily no one was hurt. The aforesaid missiles were hurled at two Huffman street cars, an East Creighton avenue car, a Pontiac car and a West Main street car. A beer bottle was used on the last named car, it being thrown from an automobile near Cherry street.

The throwing of the beer bottle was reported to the police and Henry Vollreide, of High street, was taken to police station, but was later released when he denied any knowledge of the thouble, declaring that his automobile did not pass a city car while he was on Main street and that he had not even seen one.

The bombardment took place between 8 and 9:30 o'clock and by 10:30 o'clock all the cars had been taken in and no attempt was made to operate after that hour.

Will Assign Runs.

Announcement was made Tuesday evening by Superintendent of Transportation J. J. Brennan that on Saturday or Sunday the new men now operating the cars would be assigned regular runs, and will be given permanent jobs. Many of them he says are desirous of moving their families here and will make this city their future homes.

"We have held them off, keeping the jobs for our old men," Mr. Brennan stated, "but the old men have shown no disposition to return and we can not afford to hold the places open longer."

Many Accidents.

Several accidents occurred Tuesday. A car on the Huffman line collided with an automobile driven by Chester Barrett, 614 Archer avenue, the running gear of the machine being damaged and a rear wheel smashed. Paul Bunch, residing on Beach street, reported to the police that his automobile was run into by city car No. 124 near the court house on Main street. Many other minor accidents were reported.

HE HANDED BLUFF BACK

long line of voters there and said the voting was very slow.

"John Banks was very active for the democrats," continued the former mayor. "I told Banks I got mine once and he'd better quit and get away."

"A mild form of intimidation," remarked M. A. Ryan, of the defense and the witness smiled.

Banks is a colored worker and a co-defendant.

Mr. Bookwalter said he saw five men there who did not belong to the precinct, that were active. He said he did not know them, but added that the "chairman of the gang" seemed to know me very well. He said he did not know the democrats.

William Pettit, who testified yesterday that this precinct was the scene of the activities of his "wrecking crew."

Causes Frequent Laughter.

Mr. Bookwalter frequently convulsed the attorneys and spectators with laughter by his replies. He said he saw Mayor Bell at the precinct.

"Mayor Bell was within five feet of me once," the witness said, "but he didn't see me. We were not speaking that day."

Ryan asked the witness, on cross examination, if he had not been in politics for some time and had not made it a business to be a candidate at times.

"I never made it a business, but rather regarded it as a diversion from business," replied Mr. Bookwalter.

"Then you diverted from your business several times?"

"Yes, so often that it almost became a habit."

It was brought out that the precinct is much larger than the law allows and that the voters are about half colored and half white. The witness said it is "one of the battlefields of politics in Indianapolis."

State's Objection Sustained.

The defense then sought to show that there had been lines of voters in the precinct for years, but the objection of the state was sustained after lengthy arguments by both sides.

Mr. Bookwalter said the majority of the colored men in the precinct were considered republicans.

"Is it not true that the democratic challengers in that precinct would necessarily have to exert more activity to prevent illegal voting than the republican challengers," Ryan asked.

"Well, we probably wouldn't lose, if one slipped through," said the witness with a smile. Mr. Bookwalter said he frequently got too close to the polling place and was ordered away as often as any one. He said he apologized, for he knew he was doing wrong. The witness said he did not see the police strike any one or use their clubs. He added that the police stayed farther from the polls than he did. He said he noted Mayor Bell when he came up, "as the mayor of Indianapolis is always an exhibit." He added that he had been "on exhibition some." The witness said he did not see the mayor do anything that he regarded as violation of the law.

"Did you see Mr. Bell threaten any one?" asked Ryan.

"He certainly did not threaten any one. He was smiling. He seemed to anticipate something that didn't happen," replied the witness.

"I think so myself," retorted Ryan. Both were evidently referring to the victory of the republicans in the election which it was believed would be won by

October always starts things going socially as well as in club study circles and the numerous card playing clubs have already begun to make things lively. Many of these clubs have been organized for years and as quite often they are named for day of the week on which they meet, there is sometimes a confusion of what club is meant, when its name only is heard. Among the oldest of these card clubs are the Tuesday Pedro club, the Wednesday Pedro club and the Friday Bridge club. The first of these will hold its first regular meeting next week with Mrs. O. C. Leggett. The first of the Wednesday Pedro club gatherings will be one for the husbands of members to enjoy and will be held on Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Vesey with dinner as the first part of the entertainment. The Friday Bridge club gathered for the first time this season last Friday with Mrs. Margaret S. Olds. The honor guest at the time was Mrs. Charles Guild, of Burlington, Ia. This club was organized about a dozen years ago and of the original eight members, three married and live elsewhere and another member moved away from town soon after the club was formed. Then there are the Tuesday Afternoon bridge club which was entertained this week by Mrs. Edith Andrews, of Lakeside, the Tuesday Auction bridge club, which started off yesterday, too, with Mrs. E. E. Sites as hostess. Another club of fairly good age is the W. D. K. Pedro club, composed of married people and already planning a series of merry evenings with dinner as a beginning each time. The president is Mrs. F. Y. Gross. The Inter Nos card club organized so long ago that the early members, Mrs. J. G. Fratis, and Mrs. J. V. Reul, are not quite sure what year it began. This club has summer meetings as well as a winter series and the last of the warm weather gatherings will be held with Mrs. William Sherbondy on Friday evening. Two weeks later the winter series of meetings will begin. The M. V. is a bridge club eight years old that consists of eight ladies who meet on Tuesday afternoons. They met yesterday with Mrs. Charles Rabus, of Fairfield avenue. A number of small clubs go by names such as the Jolly Eight, the Social Twelve, besides many clubs that are known outside of the members by initial letters of the real name. The South Side Tennis club organized a long time ago, finally became a dinner bridge club with fortnightly meetings which extend all through the winter season. The Friday evening dinner bridge is a club of married people who have not yet started their semi-monthly gatherings. These clubs are some of the oldest of the long list of clubs organized purely for sociability.

Two beautiful parties were given by Mrs. Herbert J. Grosvenor this week, at her home in Suttenfield street. The first was on Monday afternoon, when fifty ladies enjoyed a game of bridge in honor of two visiting guests of the hostess, Mrs. Dugan and Mrs. Schultz, of Richmond. Very beautiful arrangements of flowers, principally gladioli blossoms, were a special delight as well as the excellence of the menu at the luncheon after the game. On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Grosvenor entertained the "Bowser ladies" at an informal sewing party with decorations and other appointments similar to those of the previous day.

S. club. On Monday evening Miss Tiffany was given a shower of gifts at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Kruckeberg, of 1342 East Lewis street, who was assisted by Miss Estelle Bennigan. The company was not a large one. All the decorations and supper appointments were in pink and white.

On the table was a birthday cake ornamented with pink and white candles. Pink baskets of nuts were favors. A toast was written on each card and they were read during the time the guests were eating. There were present Misses Mary Pembroke, Bernadette Mohl, Agnes Brown, Sadie Marsh, Bonnie Petgen, Helen Pembroke, Marie Graney, Ella Fawcett, Hiltrude Mungovan and Messrs. Brenizer-Joly.

A beautiful wedding that took place at the Cathedral on Tuesday morning was that of Miss Bertha Joly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Joly, of Lake avenue, and Mr. Clarence Brenizer, a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Brenizer, of Winter street. Rev. Father Kelly officiated at the nuptial mass at 9 o'clock. Miss Isabel Roy and Mr. Frank Hoy were attendants and Messrs. Leland Parrot and Virgil Roy were the ushers. The church was prettily decorated with palms and flowering plants. The bride wore a handsome gown of embroidered net hung over silk. She wore a veil caught to her hair with a wreath of bride rosebuds and her bouquet was of roses that have a faint touch of color. The bridesmaid was dressed in pink charmeuse and she held pink carnations. After the service, at the church, the bridal party drove to the home of the bride's parents where a breakfast was served to sixty-five relatives and friends. The bride and groom have begun housekeeping at once in their newly furnished home at 701 Madison street. They will be at home to their many friends after October 15. Miss Nina Brenizer, of Spencerville, O., J. McCormick, of Dixon, O., and Mrs. Gray of Convoy, O., were out of town guests.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

"Don't Lie to Your Wife"—Majestic Again Tonight.

Campbell B. Casad, author of "Don't Lie to Your Wife," the three act farce produced by C. S. Primrose, which will come to the Majestic again tonight, is a widely known and versatile newspaper man, and the incidents of the play are nearly all taken from real life during his experiences as a reporter on one of the largest New York dailies, viz., the New York Herald. Charles Dickson, who assisted in writing the farce, is the author of "Mistakes Will Happen," "Incog," "The Three Twins" and others of like caliber. Dave Lewis, who also wrote parts of the farce, has had long experience in the musical comedy and farce comedy field, and with three names like the above to conjure with, it is very probable that a high class piece of laughing workmanship has been developed.

Joseph Santley, Once Our Boy Hero, at the Majestic Saturday.

Do you remember the old days when you used to thrill with delight at "Billy, the Kid" and "Arizona Joe" and "From Rags to Riches?" And do you remember the curly headed youngster who used to be the hero of those "ten, twenty, thirty" melodramas? Well, would you believe that the same youngster is none other than our present matinee idol, Joseph Santley, the star of the rollicking musical revue "All Over Town," coming to the Majestic theater for two performances, matinee and evening, Saturday.

Santley was three years old when he made his first appearance on the stage in "Billy, the Kid." "I defended Laurette Taylor through four gory acts," he says. "Yes, it was all great fun, and I really believe that I am not the only one who regrets that the days of the old melodrama have passed."

AT THE TEMPLE.

A BIG AFTERNOON.

Temple Audience After Laugh With "Third Party" Attend Reception.

It was a big afternoon for the Temple addicts yesterday, as after laughing themselves to the borderland of hysterics at the absurdities in the farce comedy, "The Third Party," practically the entire audience attended the informal reception held by the Temple Players on the stage. Men, women and children alike attend these weekly receptions at which everyone gets a bit better acquainted with these artists who are contributing immeasurably to relieving the tedium of many people's otherwise humdrum lives. They are held each Tuesday afternoon.

"The Third Party" starts a laugh with the rising of the first curtain and closes in a roar, as fire is discovered in the room which has been assigned Rosamond Gaythorne, the pretty actress and "the third party." As the smoke rolls out onto the stage Rosamond, thinking only of saving her clothes, pitches into the room and is carried screaming and kicking to safety by every male member of the cast, except Colonel Redwood (Warren Hoffman), who, storming and fuming about the room, peels off his coat and laboriously dons a pair of white kid gloves as he shouts incessantly "Save the women," for all the world like the new policeman who shouted when he saw a fight start, "'Send for the police."

AT KEITH PALACE

SPECIAL CHILDREN'S MATINEE.

New Palace Will Be Scene of Merry Party Saturday.

A merry party will be held at the New Palace Saturday afternoon when the Alexander Kids will hold a romp on the stage with the children of Fort Wayne as their guests. A special matinee for the youngsters is being arranged and after the usual performance the kiddies will be invited to attend the reception on the stage and meet the clever little girls who are proving one of the week's hits on the Keith program.

The New Palace entertainment this week is a splendid lure for the vaudeville lover as it is a combination of "lots of different things," including Miss Eleanor Gordon's smart little sketch, "The Discovery," a mysterious comedy gem; the Gladiators, a team of athletes whose prodigious strength and remarkable physical development are amazing, and many others.

AT THE JEFFERSON.

"The Fatal Card," the great dramatic triumph by C. Haddon Chambers and B. C. Stephenson, the latest Paramount picture, remains at the Jefferson again today.

No better or more complete a dramatic production has ever been seen on the screen. John Mason in the famous characterization of George Forrester, later known as Marrable, presents a pschological character-study that is simply perfect, while Hazel Dawn, in the role of his daughter, displays the delightful charm and finely developed dramatic power she has indicated in previous Famous Players productions.

Ably directed by James Kirkwood, every element of dramatic interest or power in the original drama has been carefully preserved. Companion picture, Pathe News.

Mrs. Harry A. Perfect was called to Huntington this morning by the death of her mother, Mrs. Wilkerson. Although not in good health for some time, Mrs. Wilkerson's death was wholly unexpected.

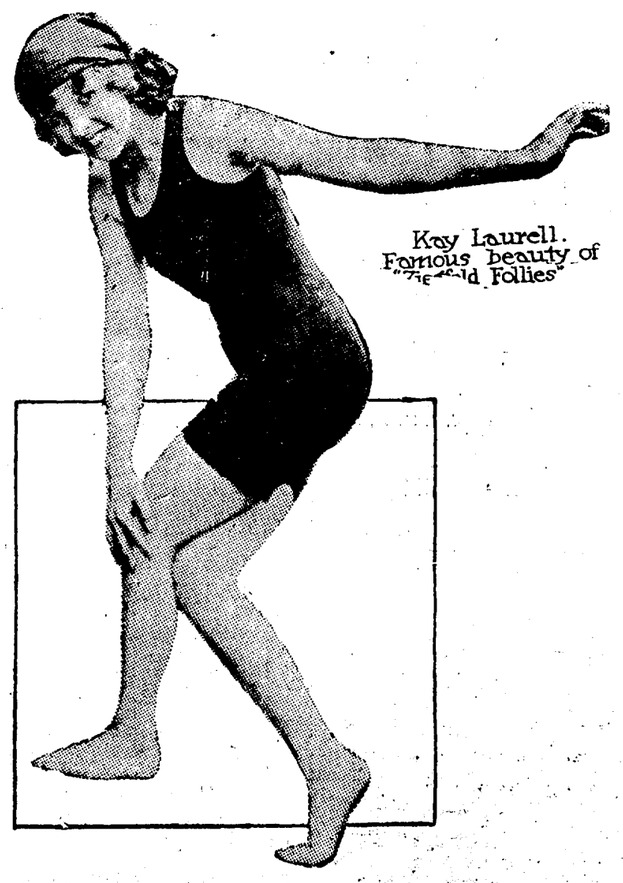
HEALTH TIP FROM ANCIENTS — DISCUS THROWING EXERCISE FINE.



Kay Laurell. Famous beauty of "Ziegfeld Follies"

Practice the postures of the ancient Greek athletes if you would have health, grace and beauty.

One excellent exercise is to go through the motions of throwing an imaginary discus as illustrated in the accompanying picture by America's famous 1915 beauty, Kay Laurell, of "Ziegfeld's Follies."

Take the pose shown in the picture and then energize first one arm and then the other as though one was gathering all one's strength to hurl the discus. Take this pose every morning and night, first pretending to throw with the right and then with the left arm.

WOLF AND DESSAUER HOLD GRAND OPENING

A crowd thronged the Wolf & Dessauer store at its annual fall opening last evening that certainly was flattering and that there will be another one tonight is assured. The store presents a most attractive appearance with its decoration of autumn leaves and real chrysanthemums while the good-looking apparel for women and children, the handsomely dressed living models who are displaying the goods and the fine appearing employes of the store all combine in making the opening one that is metropolitan in every way. Music by the Elks band is a further attraction. Tonight, Indiana's beauty, chosen to represent this state at the Panama-Pacific exposition, will be present. Her name is Miss Segrist and everyone is satisfied that she does the state justice in the matter of good looks. There will be a special feature of dancing this evening by Msis Muriel Larimore. Last night four pupils of Miss Larimore danced very charmingly. They were Helen Pape and Helen Strodel, of this city, and the Misses Niblick, of Decatur. There were also a number of children who acted as models on Tuesday. The windows of the store are very handsome in their display of rich and beautiful fabrics and read-to-wear goods. A "touch of fur," as the modistes say, is seen on everything. 'Everything" means all the new and up-to-date stles in everything from glass dishes in the basement to neckwear, gloves, novelties and dress goods on the main floor to the top floor where one can select housefurnishings of stle and quality. Only don't let the elevators pass the second floor without letting you off for that is where you pick your fall suit or cloak or party dress or hat and waists.

Barcelona, Oct. 6.—Prof. Zola, director of the observatory at Barcelona university, has announced that he discovered on Sept. 15 a new planet in the Pisces constellation. The planet has a rather rapid retrograde movement. Prof. Zola is studying it carefully and hopes soon to be able to give further details regarding his discovery.

A REAL FLESH BUILDER FOR THIN PEOPLE

Thin men and women—that big, hearty, filling dinner you ate last night. What became of all the fat-producing nourishment it contained? You haven't gained in weight one ounce. That food passed from your body like unburned coal through an open grate. The material was there but your food doesn't work and stick, and the plain truth is you hardly get enough nourishment from your meals to pay for the cost of cooking. This is true of thin folks the world over. Your nutritive organs, your functions of assimilation, are probably sadly out of gear and need reconstruction.

Cut out the foolish foods and funny sawdust diets. Cut out everything but the meals you are eating and eat with every one of those a single Sargol tablet. In two weeks note the difference. Let the scales be the judge. Five to eight good solid pounds of healthy "stay-there" fat may be the net result. Sargol aims to charge weak, stagnant blood with millions of fresh new red blood corpuscles—to give the blood the carrying power to deliver every ounce of fat-making material in your food to every part of your body. Sargol, too, mixes with your food, to prepare it for the blood in an easily assimilated form. Thin people tell how they have gained all the way from 10 to 25 pounds a month while taking Sargol and say that the new flesh stays put. Sargol tablets are a careful combination of six of the best assimilative elements known to chemistry. They come 40 tablets to a package, are pleasant, harmless and inexpensive, and Meyer Bros. Drug Co., Dreier Drug Co., D. & N. Pharmacy, The Family Drug Store and all other good druggists in this vicinity sell them subject to an absolute guarantee of weight increase or money back as found in every large package.—Advertisement.

GERMAN AMERICAN NATIONAL BANK

Mr. Edward Leigh Pell Writes:

You think your "little" is not worth saving; but I have noticed that the cigar man and the theater man and the soda water man have such a high opinion of your "little" that each is glad to get his hands on just a small fraction of it in order that he may carry it to HIS bank and have it placed to HIS account. I suppose it is all the same to the bank—your little is going there anyway—but, say! If it is going there anyway, would it not be better to carry it there yourself and have it placed to YOUR credit?

SCHUMANN-HEINK IS HAPPY NOW, SHE SAYS

Noted Diva Delighted at Getting Rid of Rapp Finally.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Mme. Schumann-Heink is happy. For the first time in years, she says, she can go about her duties with a light heart. She further asserts that from now on she doesn't intend to have any trouble of any kind. She has quit reading the papers because she doesn't want to know anything about the troubles in Europe.

The noted singer made these declarations to a reporter last night when interviewed on the decision handed down by the appellate court affirming the divorce decree granted her from her husband, William Rapp, jr.

Now She Can Sew and Cook.

"I am so happy," she said, "to think that I will be troubled no more by that man. Why, do you know that for the last few years I have done nothing but watch for some new development of trouble from that source. Now I can cook and sew and sit and look out of the window or do anything I please.

"All my life I have had troubles. I have been happy, too, but always there was trouble. In spite of it all I have always tried to love my neighbors and bring up my children to be real men and women. Now all of them except my youngest boy, are married and happy.

She Didn't Raise Her Boy, Etc.

"My youngest boy is at Culver and they are making a man out of him. I visited him Sunday and O, I was so proud to see him standing there with the other fine looking boys. He looks like a real soldier. But God forbid that my boy or any of those other boys ever become soldiers. It makes my heart ery out to think that soldiers are necessary. It all seems so foolish.

"You musn't think I'm a fanatic, because right now I have a son and a son-in-law fighting in Europe. But it is all so unnecessary. I was born in Austria and they say that blood is thicker than water, but they don't have to fight. I want peace and I pray for men who advocate peace. That is the reason I prayed for Mr. Bryan. It is also the reason that I refused to shake hands with Mr. Roosevelt. He is so blustering and so warlike and so fiery.

An American First.

"I am an American and I probably would do as all other American mothers would do if the United States should have a war. I have five sons and my five sons would go to fight for the United States—not for Germany or Austria or any other country.

"O, I love America and Americans. They are so good, and when I am singing and I look down at their faces I feel as if I could go down and throw my arms around the whole audience. But they might not stand for it.

Has Had Three Husbands.

"You know I've had three husbands and they might think it funny. There I go bringing up unpleasant subjects again. Don't you know that lots of people think I'm out looking for another husband. God forbid. My last experience has given me enough trouble. The things I have undergone with that man are hardly unbelieveable.

"I want to forget all about it. During the last year I have tried to forget, but every time the bell rang I just sat in my room waiting for the maid to come and say, 'Madame, another newspaper man wants to know something about the divorce.'

"Now it's over and I can sit and look out of the window and think about pleasant things and be happy and snug all by myself."

For Indigestion.

Never take pepsin and preparations containing pepsin or other digestive ferments for indigestion, as the more you take the more you will have to take. What is needed is a tonic like Chamberlain's Tablets that will enable the stomach to perform its functions naturally. Obtainable everywhere.—Advertisement.

RUN DOWN BY AUTOMOBILE.

Huntington, Ind., Oct. 6.—Clarence Teusch, who was injured when an auto truck belonging to the Huntington brewery company and driven by Jacob Hartman, passed over his neck and shoulders at Washington and Jefferson streets yesterday noon was in a critical condition last evening. Accordidng to the statement of the attending surgeon the boy had sustained a broken collar bone, and showed symptoms of concussion of the brain.

Chronic Constipation.

"About two years ago, when I began using Chamberlain's Tablets I had been suffering for some time with stomach trouble and chronic constipation. My condition improved rapidly through the use of these tablets. Since taking four or five bottles of them my health has been fine," writes Mrs. John Newton, Irving, N. Y. Obtainable everywhere.—Advertisement.

STURGEON NOT INDICTED.

Grand Jury Reported He Acted in Self-Defense in Killing Adams.

Franklin, Ind., Oct. 6.—The grand jury of the September term of the Johnson circuit court made a report finding that Frank O. Sturgeon, who shot and killed Charles Adams last Saturday night, acted in self-defense, and that there was not sufficient evidence on which to return an indictment against Sturgeon. The court ordered Sturgeon released from jail, where he has been held awaiting the result of the investigation of the jury. After his release from jail he was hurried to the home of his mother, Mrs. Robert S. Sturgeon, living a mile south of Franklin, in an automobile. He made no statement except to say he was sorry he had killed Adams.

Yet today, despite its superiority, this store will sell that well known cabinet at a price even less than the ordinary kind.

Never Before Was This Cabinet Sold for So Little

Thousands upon thousands of women have bought these same cabinets at the regular prices because they are the best cabinet value on the market today at the regular price. But now, at this special sale price, and terms, great numbers of women who have denied themselves the comfort and convenience of this wonderful cabinet will order one sent to their homes immediately

The Above Illustration Is An Exact Reproduction of This Cabinet

This illustration was drawn over a photographic blue print and shows this cabinet in its exact proportions and in every detail. We emphasize this point because not always are the kitchen cabinets illustrated the ones that are sold at the special prices. Our policy of exact illustrations and exact descriptions has resulted in public confidence in our advertising until this store has earned the reputation of "The Store Where the Ads Come True."

Bring this advertisement with you to compare the illustration with the actual cabinet.

Our Only Worry Is That We Won't Have Enough to Supply the Demand

When you consider the reputation of this cabinet, realizing that it is the latest 1915-1916 model with every latest improvement, and that the special sale price is several dollars under the lowest price ever quoted on this cabinet, you'll understand why we are worried about our ability to supply the demand that will be created by them.

The First Orders Placed Will Be Delivered First

To be among the first to receive your cabinet you must place your order early. This remarkable low price and the fact that Hadley terms are made to suit your convenience will cause such a tremendous sale of these cabinets that we will have a hard time delivering them all, and therefore, suggest that you place your order early if you want to begin enjoying your cabinet at once.

BULLET TAKEN FROM HEART OF SOLDIER

German Surgeons Succeed in a Most Amazing Operation.

Berlin, Sept. 20.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press).—The opening of a chamber of the heart and extracting a bullet is reported by Prof. Freund and Dr. Casperon in the current number of the Munich Medical Weekly. The patient was a young soldier who had recovered from a bullet wound through the liver. Upon X-ray examination preceding his discharge from the hospital, a foreign object was discerned in the heart. It moved synchronously with the heart's pulsations, and the physicians decided that it was a shrapnel bullet.

To prevent possible dangerous complications it was determined to remove the bullet. The breast was opened, the pericardium slit sufficiently to permit the heart to be brought forward, a quick incision was made in the right ventricle and the bullet was immediately found and removed. Much blood was lost, but the bleeding stopped after prompt stitching, and the patient made a complete recovery.

The bullet, which weighed twelve grams, had taken a most erratic and extraordinary course. It struck the soldier on the left shoulder from above, as he was storming forward, inflicting but a flesh wound. It passed down and diagonally across the body, barely marking the skin, was deflected by a cartridge box and entered the liver, passing completely through it into the vena cava, one of the two trunk veins that empty into the heart. The blood stream conveyed it thence into the right ventricle of the heart.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

EVEN MONEY ON THE WORLD SERIES GAMES

Odd of 13 to 10 Placed Several Days Ago—Phils Look Stronger.

Philadelphia, Oct. 6—With but two days remaining until the opening contest for baseball supremacy of the world, the National league champion Phillies hoped to complete their regular playing schedule in a double-header with Brooklyn today and set about final reparations for the struggle with the Boston Americans. There is a feeling of confidence in the Phillies camp as to the result of the series. Captain Luderus declared that he feels sure his team will come out victors, although he admitted it would probably be a close race. Alexander and Chalmers are almost certain to win their games, he believes, while both Mayer and Rixey stand an excellent chance to humble the Bostonians. The strength of their opponents in all departments was not lost sight of, Luderus added, and "most anything can happen in such a short series." While the few bets that were placed several days ago were laid at odds of 13 to 10, with the Red Sox the favorites, several wagers were placed last night at even money.

NORWEGIAN STEAMER ESCAPES.

Drammensjord's Cautain Says He Was Chased by Submarine.

New York, Oct. 6.—The Norwegian steamer Drammensfjord arrived today from Sandefjord, Norway, and reported having been chased by a German submarine in the North sea, between Bergen and Kirkwall. Captain Stensmark said he escaped by driving his vessel at full speed and at the same time sending wireless calss which brought British patrol. The submarine then gave up the chase.

Captain Stensmark said a steamer of the same line as the Drammensfjord was sunk by a submarine several weeks ago, and he had been warned that submarines were on the lookout for his vessel.

SOX INFIELDER WAS A CHAMPION HURDLER.

"Jannie" Janvrin, the Red Sox utility infielder, was a champion athlete before he became a member of the American league champion ball club. He was a track athlete and the champion interscholastic hurdler.

The Red Sox picked the youngster from a high school baseball team, farmed him out for a season, then brought him back and used him in every infield position, including first base. He can fill in anywhere around the diamond.

BRAINS PLUS THE ARM PLUS THE PUNCH—THESE ARE THE BIG ASSETS OF THE PHILIES FOR THE WORLD SERIES BATTLES.

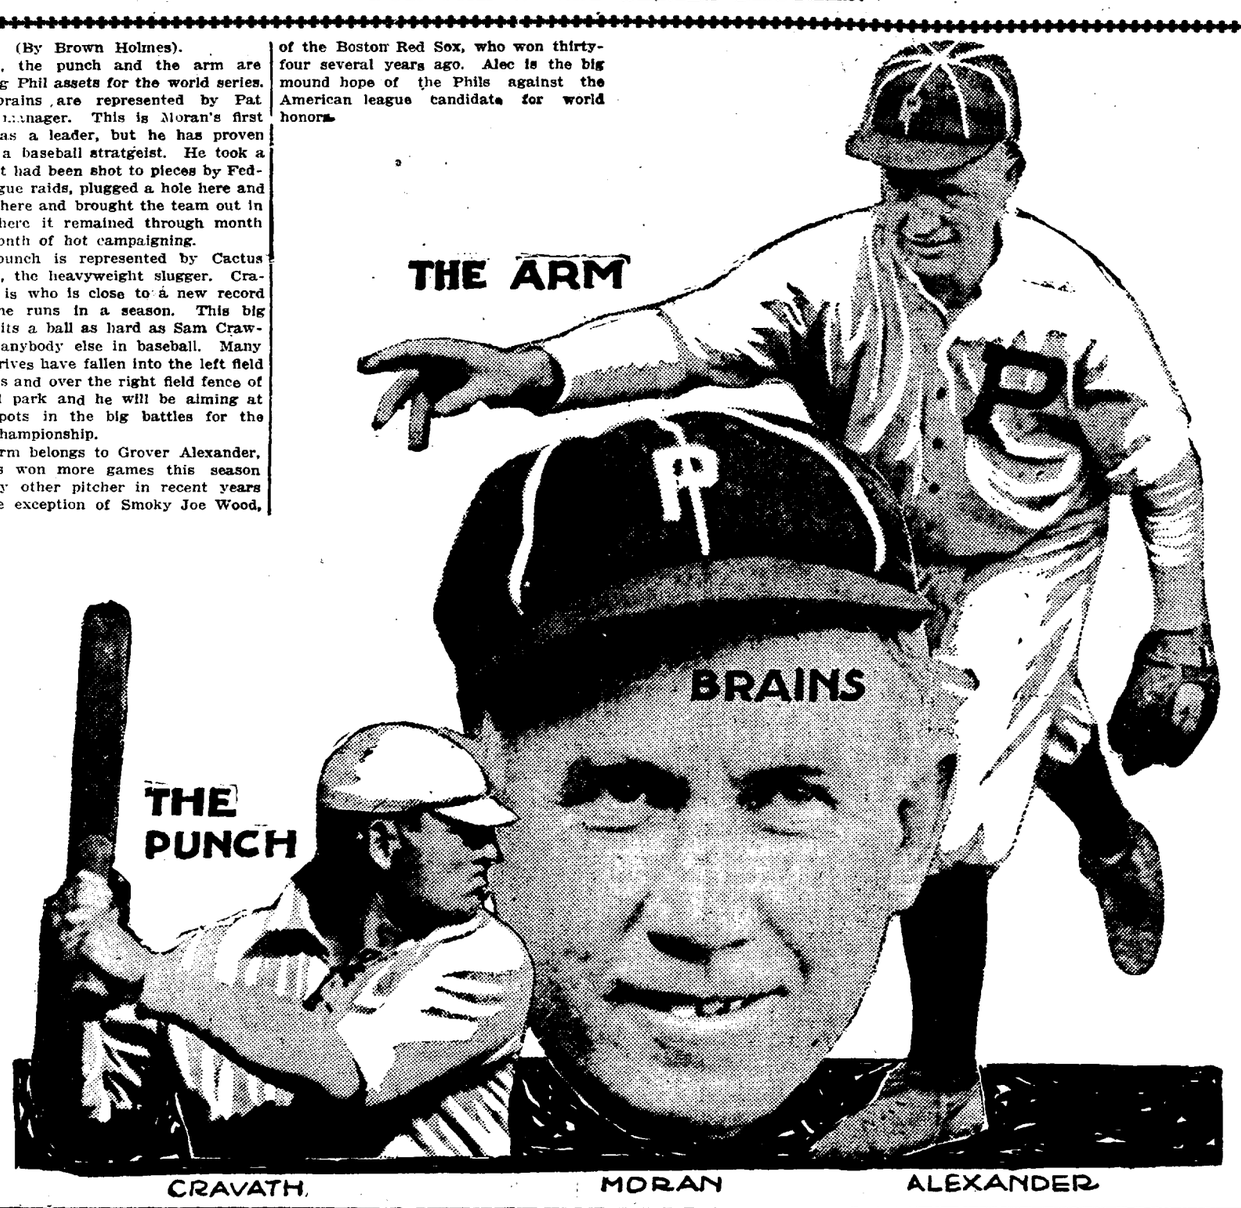
(By Brown Holmes).

Brains, the punch and the arm are three big Phil assets for the world series.

The brains are represented by Pat Moran, manager. This is Moran's first season as a leader, but he has proven himself a baseball stratgeist. He took a club that had been shot to pieces by Federal league raids, plugged a hole here and a hole there and brought the team out in front where it remained through month after month of hot campaigning.

The punch is represented by Cactus Cravath, the heavyweight slugger. Cravath it is who is close to a new record for home runs in a season. This big fellow hits a ball as hard as Sam Crawford or anybody else in baseball. Many of his drives have fallen into the left field bleachers and over the right field fence of the Phil park and he will be aiming at these spots in the big battles for the world championship.

The arm belongs to Grover Alexander, who has won more games this season than any other pitcher in recent years with the exception of Smoky Joe Wood, of the Boston Red Sox, who won thirty-four several years ago. Alec is the big mound hope of the Phils against the American league candidate for world honors.



THREE FINGER BROWN IN GRAND COME-BACK

Hurls Chifeds to Pennant and Crowds Remember Good Old Days.

The air is not so full of Alexander, Shore and Leonard but what there is room for tribute to one of the old guard, a pitcher who was a hero at this period of years past, and still good, has won another pennant.

Miner Brown, who put the Cubs in the world series of 1906, 1907 and 1908, has put the Chicago Whales on top in the Federal league.

Brown has been out of the limelight several years. Not because he lacked the heart, the head or the arm, but because his left knee, injured while he was trying to win a game for the Cubs, refused to hold him up after he was shunted from the club he made famous.

The three-fingered wonder won seventeen games for the Whales. He lost only eight. Most of his defeats came in the first half of the season, before he was able to use his knee properly. Most of his victories came in the last half of the season.

Stout hearted as ever, Brown was the pitcher Manager Tinker called on when a game had to be won. Did the St. Louis club crowd toward the top? Brownie was assigned to the job of stopping them. Did the Kansas City club threaten? Brown set them back. As in the old days, when in 1907, he pitched five of the last seven games played by the Cubs, he was the man in the pinch.

This was Brown's thirteenth season in the majors. He won't be in the world series, nor even in the Chicago city series, but he's a baseball hero. He's still one pitcher who can win a pennant for his ball club.

CHANDLER'S NEWEST IDEA.

Inventor Says He Can Detect Aisnips by Microphone.

New York, Oct. 6.—Edward F. Chandler, inventor of a system of harbor defenses now being tested by the United States navy by the detection of the approach of submarines with the aid of water microphone, announced today that he had perfected a method of detecting and treating airships by the michrophone. Mr. Chandler said that one of the greatest applications of the airship finder would be a defense against night raidrs such as the Germans have made upon London with Zeppelins. Mr. Chandler said that he could easily discover the range, heignt, speed and direction of a dirgible or other aircraft in the darkest night.

WHITTED GETS RICH WITH EVERY CHANGE.

Every time George Whitted, Phil outfielder, moves he makes money. He was shifted from the St. Louis Cardinals to the Boston Braves last season just in time to cop several thousand dollars world series coin.

When he was shifted to the Phils this season friends mourned. Boston was picked to get into the series again. But the Braves are out and Whitted is in.

Dugey, Phil sub, was with the Braves last season, too.

UNDERGOES AN OPERATION.

Mrs. J. M. VanCamp, of San Antonio, Tex., who has been visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Charles Bash, jjr., of Kinnaird avenue, was taken suddenly ill, Tuesday, and had to be removed to Hope hospital, where she underwent an operation. She was reported as getting along nicely Wednesday.

BOSTON WILL HAVE NO TIME FOR REST

And Will Have But One Workout on Phil National Field.

New York, Oct. 6.—A workout on Friday morning preceding the first game of the world's baseball championship will be the only opportunity which the Boston Americans will have for practice on the field of the Philadelphia Nationals. Owing to the postponement of yesterday's game between the New York and Boston American league clubs it will be necessary for the Red Sox and Yankees to play two games here today and one tomorrow in order to complete their schedule. This means that the Red Sox will not have a day's rest before the beginning of the world's series.

Carrigan had not disclosed today the name of the pitcher who would oppose Philadelphia in the opening game and there was a great deal of speculation on that point. "I realize that we must face Grover Cleveland Alexander in the opening game Friday," said Carrigan, "and I also know just how wonderfully clever is the curve ball genius of the National league. It seems we must beat Alexander in that first game and we have devised a means which we think will accomplish it. Should we beat Alexander in the opening game the rest will be a lot easier than I have figured. If we fail it will give us a line on Alexander which will make his second game doubly hard to win. Outside of Alexander I don't think any of the Philadelphia pitchers compare with my men."

Carrigan added that he had so much confidence in every one of his pitchers that he would not be afraid to pick any one of them to pitch in the world's series and that he considered the rest of his club the peers of any other ball players.

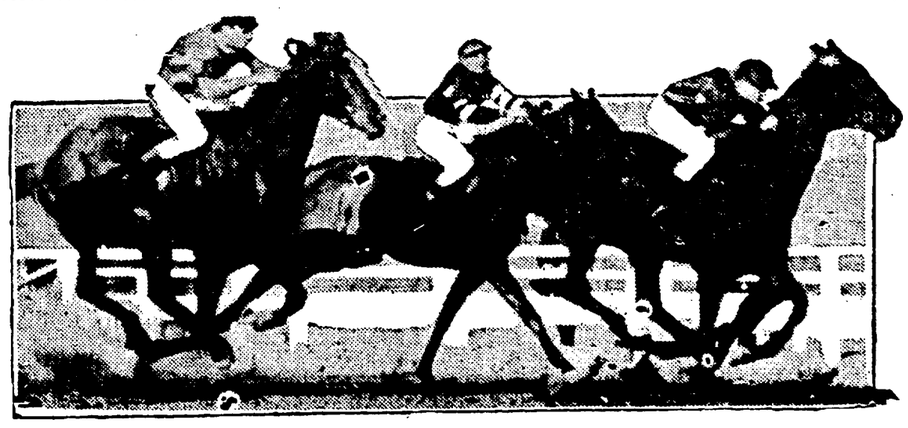
EXPOSITION HORSE RACES DIM HOPES OF RESTORING SPORT OF KINGS IN WEST.



An Exciting Finish at the Recent Exposition Races.

San Francisco, Oct. 6.—Proponents of horse racing and a modified system of betting hoped to reclaim California to the small coterie of states now permitting the sport of kings, through the influence of the recent exposition meet here.

It was intended that this should be a sort of popularizing prelude to efforts that will be made at the next state legislature to revive the racing game.

That the flagrant operations of bookmakers at the exposition course, however, has had exactly the opposite effect is today the belief of many who had hoped to bring the ponies back.

Certainly it has stirred up new antagonism against such proposed legislation.

The state of California, represented at the exposition through a commission, received from the fair authorities a promise that no taint of gambling should bring a breath of criticism against the horse racing.

But from the first day of the meet—attended by crowds that equalled the throngs at famous old Emeryville in its palmy days—the state law was evaded by "the bookies" through oral pool making. A big gambling stake was in constant circulation.

Veterans of the paddock were discreet, but the youngsters flushed with their first winnings, boasted loudly of their gains and aired their superficial knowledge of the "inside."

These vauntings reached the ears of the state commission.

Arthur Ariett, one of the commissioners, found that oral bookmaking was flourishing, and addressed a scorching letter to the exposition heads, reminding them of their solemn promise.

Rudolph Spreckles and other prominent citizens also took a rap at the situation. But the damage, so far as public opinion and antagonism to race track betting was concerned, had been done.

The races themselves, though devoid of any great sensations, were notable. Over 200 fast horses were entered, with some of the best jockeys and drivers in the world up.

There was a revival of the old thrill that had brought its daily thousands to historic Emeryville, across the bay from San Francisco—Emeryville, that put the kibosh on the game on this coast through the violent intemperance of its gambling.

Old track followers were in the crowd, eager, covetous, aflame with the excitement of the professional. Novices, catching the intoxication, rattled their silver; women as well as men. Society smiled on the races. Everywhere it was predicted that the game was coming back in California; that the "Puritans" and "reformers" would be overwhelmed by the revived pro-racing and pro-gambling spirit.

And now the betting fervor is demonstrating itself by wagers laid on the fate of modified race track gambling, probably the pari-mutual system, at the next state legislature. Thousands of dollars are being offered that the game will come back, and the takers are few.

Coroner E. H. Kruse will probably return a finding that the accident at Brackenridge street and Fairfield avenue several days ago, in which Alexander B. PRESIDENT WILL VOTE FOR EQUAL SUFFRAGE

Wilson Favors the Ballot for Women in His Home State.

Washington, Oct. 6.—President Wilson will vote for the woman suffrage state constitutional amendment in New Jersey, his home state, at the special election October 19. He said today he would vote, not as the leader of the democratic party, but as a private citizen. Mr. Wilson said he believed the question should not be made a party issue and should be decided by the states, not the national government. The following statement was given out at the white house:

"I intend to vote for woman suffrage in New Jersey because I believe the time has come to extend that privilege and responsibility to the women of the state; but I shall vote, not as the leader of my party in the nation, but only upon my private conviction as a citizen of New Jersey called upon by the legislature of the state to express his conviction at the polls. I think that New Jersey will be greatly benefited by the change.

"My position with regard to the way in which this great question should be handled is well known. I believe that it should be settled by the states and not by the national government and that in no circumstances should it be made a party question, and my view has grown stronger at every turn of the agitation."

Secretaries Garrison, McAdoo, Redfield and Wilson, who will also vote on the question in the near future, have declared in favor of equal suffrage.

CITY OUSTS WOMAN MORALS GUARDIAN

Hoopeston, Ill., Oct. 6.—By a vote of 5 to 3 the Hoopeston city council decided to dispense with the services of Mrs. Agnes Frisinger, police matron during the past five months and whose term of office expires on Nov. 1.

There is much indignation today among the women of Hoopeston over the action of the council and they threaten to take the matter up and compel the board to reconsider their action.

Mrs. Frisinger came to Hoopeston last spring from Chicago where she had been connected with Hull House.

She caused the resignation of two members of the police force, including the chief. With a flashlight and a revolver she went sleuthing at all hours of the night.

A short time ago the mayor was going home from his office late at night. As he went to his home he was stopped by the matron, who was in hiding behind a box car along the railroad tracks. She finally allowed him to go.

PARADE OF CHILDREN BRINGS DRY VICTORY

Danville, Ill., Oct. 6.—"Dry" victories in local option elections held yesterday in Pittsboro and Brownsburg are attributed largely to the efforts of women and children of Pittsboro, who paraded their own streets and then invaded the other town, four miles away. Brown township, including Brownsburg, with two saloons, voted "dry" by 45. Middle township, including Pittsboro, went "dry" by 16, a gain of 104 over the majority two years ago.

School children marched or rode in automobiles in the parade in Pittsboro in the morning, with a number of men and women riding horses. The automobile and horse procession continued to Brownsburg to assist in the demonstration there. Women served lunch at the polls and almost every home in Pittsboro was represented in the parade or at the refreshment stands.

Says Railroads Add Millions to Value of Property in Fort Wayne.

Declaring that Fort Wayne has the best railroads of any in Indiana and that they add millions of dollars to the value of property in this city, S. K. Blair, general agent of the Nickel Plate railroad, was the principal speaker Tuesday evening, at the regular weekly meeting and dinner of the Fort Wayne Real Estate exchange at the Wayne hotel.

While railroads, banks, real estatemen or any other class of business alone can not make the city the cooperation of all of these is necessary. He declared that a city's growth depends largely upon the kind of railroads and the direction in which they run and in this respect Fort Wayne is exceedingly fortunate.

Other speakers during the evening were W. E. Doud, George Ashley and Frank H. Hilgeman. Scott R. Brewer, executive secretary of the Indiana Real Estate association, was unable to be present, but a telegram was received from him stating that he would be here Thursday to meet with the board of directors and chairmen of the various committees to make final plans for the state convention to be held in this city.

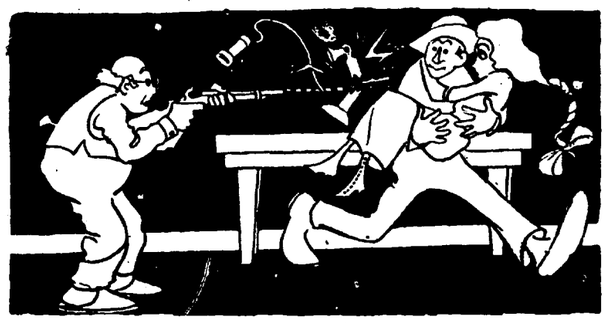
PAPA IS POOR MARKSMAN; HIS SHOT AT ELOPERS ONLY HELPS THEM.



Harvard, Ill., Oct. 6.—When Joe Elardi, 29, eloped with Mary Graziano, 14, he didn't reckon with the shotgun of Mary's father.

But Cupid did and with more, too.

Graziano lives on a farm near here. Elardi is his partner and was refused the hand of Mary, though she loved him, because Graziano thought him too old.

Elardi determined to kidnap her and, entering the home at midnight, seized the perfectly willing Mary and started off.

Graziano was awakened. In his night clothes he hurried out of his room with his shotgun and fired at the fleeing pair in the hallway. The shot, instead of hitting Elardi, cut the telephone. With phone communications cut off, the excited father, unable to rouse his neighbors and secure their aid in cutting off the escape of the pair, could call only on his farm hands to give chase. They refused.

Mary's name is now Elardi.

ARREST ON SIGHT IS NEW ORDER TO POLICE

Chief Healey Will Enforce Sunday Closing at Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—"Arrest on sight" was the orders given to commanding officers of Chicago's police stations by Chief of Police Healey after a conference today concerning violators of the Sunday saloon closing law, which goes into effect at midnight, Saturday.

Notice is to be served on every license holder—exclusive clubs, summer gardens, cafes and saloons—that all bars must be closed for twenty-four hours, beginning Saturday midnight. The police captains were told to serve notice on all of the 7,152 license holders immediately so that none could plead that he was not allowed ample time in which to carry out the drastic closing order of Mayor Thompson.

That the mayor's order has had an immediate effect on the financial conditions of summer gardens was indicated when one of the largest filed a petition for a receiver yesterday. It could not continue to operate, it was said, with the Sunday liquor business cut off.

TICKETS TWO FOR STATE PENAL FARM

Kelsey Lewis, Thief, and Joe Morgan, Alcoholic, in City Court.

Kelsey Lewis, a young colored man who has been in the city for two weeks, was found guilty in the city court, Wednesday morning, of petit larceny and was fined $10 and costs and given ninety days at the state penal farm. His sentence will keep him there 110 days. Lewis was arrested at the Wabash depot and he was just about to take a train for Danville, Ill., when Detective Sergeant Charles Spillner pinched him, having bought a ticket for that city. He was charged with stealing $6 from the clothing of Ed Sperr, an employe in the Shryock garage, Tuesday morning. Lewis had been employed there for a few days as a laborer. He strenuously denied his guilt, but the circumstantial evidence was strong, it being shown that he had left the garage in the morning, saying he was going to get something to eat. He had $1.50 due him in wages which he did not ask for.

Hopes to Help Joe Morgan.

Judge Kerr made good the promise he made Joe Morgan, a young but incorrigible booze-fighter, when he was in the city court less than three weeks ago and turned loose with the warning that his next appearance would get him a term at the state penal farm. He was arrested Tuesday evening drunk and Wednesday morning pleaded guilty to that charge with three previous convictions. Judge Kerr told him he had investigated Morgan's court record and found conviction after conviction until he had lost patience for further search. The court fined him $100 and costs and added thirty days at the penal farm, which will keep him there 140 days unless the fine is paid.

Other City Court Cases.

John Dairy, who had not been drunk for a year prior to his arrest a week ago, was in court thoroughly sober after his period of enforced abstemiousness in jail and looking more like himself. He was turned loose to show how he is going to perform.

Dave Herbert, who says he is a molder and hails from Cincinnati, went to jail for eleven days o na drunk charge. He had been making an indecent spectacle of himself on the street when Officer Madden arrested him.

John Steinman, a jitney driver, was charged with exceeding the speed limit and the case was continued until Thursday. He was in collision Sunday at Calhoun and Washington streets with the car driven by W. F. Geller, proprietor of the Broadway bakery. He was arrested by order of Chief Lenz.

John Varner, who was arrested on a drunk charge at the instance of his wife, was given an indefinite continuance on his promise to keep sober and treat his family well. He is the father of six children, the oldest of them eleven years of age.

The case against Robert Jones, a colored man charged with obtaining goods by false pretenses, was continued until Thursday and his bond fixed at $1,000. He was arrested with Charles Moore, another negro, for obtaining narcotic drugs at the Christen drug store by means of prescriptions to which the name of Dr. Dean Metcalf had been forged. The continuance was taken to await the otucome of federal proceedings against the two men for violating the United States laws relating to the sale of narcotics.

Harry Lyons, a drunk who had also been an invalid for several days, was allowed to go, as were Omar Ward and Thomas Ward—not of kin, so they said—who were arrested for vagrancy several days ago.

BLAMES JITNEY DRIVER.

Henry Duell, who resides near the Four Mile house on the Lincoln highway, reports to the police that a rig in which he and his father were riding was run into by an automobile driven by Clyde Blaising, who operates a jitney bus between Fort Wayne and New Haven, at Maumee and Lumbard streets, and that both he and his father were thrown from the vehicle, the elder Duell receiving painful injuries. Chief Lenz notified his officers to instruct Blaising not to operate his bus inside the city limits until he is given permission.

Bayer Building Under Consideration by the Eagles

Tonight the Fort Wayne Order of Eagles will decide on their new clubhouse, lodge rooms and its location. Several propositions will be considered, among them the Bayer building at the corner of Wayne and Barr streets. It is now a two and one-half story building and in the event the lodge would purchase this property and complete the third story it will make one of the attractive buildings of the city. However, it no doubt is large enough at present without completing the third story.

The building is centrally located. It is one block from the city hall, within two blocks of all the theaters and accessible from all points of the city.

A handsome sum can be realized from rentals on the first floor, also from the lodge room on the third floor when not used by the lodge. The second floor can be used for club rooms and parlors.

A more ideal location would be hard to find.

Mrs. Stewart asserts that Barrett strangled her mother and Stewart pushed her into the auto which was speedily driven to the country. When twelve miles from the city the driver had tire trouble and when making repairs, the party was overtaken by an automobile driven by the sheriff and deputies. Mrs. Stewart recently filed suit for divorce in the court here.

Charles Platt, father of one of the boys, has started a search for them. The boys took a light sorrel horse and a dark buggy from the elder Mr. Platt in beginning their journey. Mr. Platt was told by a friend of his son that it was the intention of the two to sell the horse and the buggy to obtain money to take them to the west. The father when here, was unable to learn anything concerning them.

NEW FIGHT LOOMS OVER WATER POWER

Historic Dam at Rome May Bring Forth New Wrangle.

That the old water power at Sylvan lake, Rome City, may be the occasion of another legal wrangle as to its ownership is indicated in developments of the past few days which have brought to local newspapers an advertising notice from Indianapolis people who assert they are heirs of the original owners of the water power lease.

The history of the water power is an interesting one as it is recalled by Attorney W. S. O'Rourke, of this city, whose professional interests have led him to an investigation of the situation. The dam was constructed back in the 40's by the state as a part of extensive waterway development plans, and it was designed as a source of water supply for the Wabash and Erie canal. The state overreached itself financially, however, and the complete project was never carried through.

Frank Comparet, of Fort Wayne, was the builder of the dam, but was unable to collect for his work. Later his heirs sued the state, and in the settlement, J. K. Edgerton, of Fort Wayne, was named as commissioner to deed five acres of land at Rome City, including the dam, to the state. In 1850 the state legislature gave the dam and water power to the commissioners of Noble county, with the provision that the revenues should go to the common school fund. Noble county leased it to John Weston for a period of ninety-nine years at an annual rental of $30. It was later sublet a number of times, finally passing into the hands of Jacob Geisendorf, and the lease ultimately passed into the hands of the Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad. When the latter road was building in 1865 it was confronted with the possibility of having to divert its line about the lake or build extensive trestle work. J. K. Edgerton, then president of the company, solved the problem by securing the passage of a law permitting railroad companies to use public dams as right-of-way contingent upon the maintenance of the property by the railroad. In this way the railroad was enabled to build upon the dam.

Fort Wayne cottage owners, with others at Rome City, have been protesting against the annual practice of the railroad in lowering the water in Sylvan lake, and the matter has been taken up by the commissioners of Noble county. In the years that have passed and the entangled leaseholds upon the property, much of this history was lost, and the present commissioners of Noble county were greatly surprised a few days ago when informed by Attorney O'Rourke that they were the owners of the water power at Rome City.

The Lutheran Hospital Alumni association will hold its regular business and social meeting at the hospital Wednesday evening.

NOTED "ZAZA" NOT AT ALL LIKE CHARACTER

Interesting Glimpse Into Life of Mrs. Leslie Carter.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 6.—Wrapped in a most un-Zaza like kimona with her feet in flopping velvet slippers, Mrs. Leslie Carter, now playing a tabloid "Zaza" in vaudeville, recently presented herself in a new role in the privacy of her dressing room.

"If the public could only know me like this!" she exclaimed, "all my life in the eyes of the world I have been the real Zaza! I have been accredited with a flame colored disposition and life to match my hair and my play, and no one has ever dreamed what I am really like."

Outside the theatre there lounged crowds of curious spectators.

"They are waiting to see me come forth in a velvet wrap and costly furs," she said, "and they probably expect me to enter a taxi and be driven to an elaborate dinner. Now, as a matter of fact, I never leave my dressing room between the matinee and the evening performance. And I do not eat dinner."

Mrs. Carter suddenly arose and drew the kimona tightly around her uncorseted figure, then whirled gracefully several time round the room.

"See! I have still the figure of a girl, have I not? I eat only one meal a day—after the theatre at night. In the morning I drink a single cup of coffee and that is all that passes my lips till my work is over. I do it partly for my figure, bu tprimarily for my work. Art is not created on a full stomach.

"You can see how different my life is from the career of a Zaza. I work and study and work again. For recreation I like horses and dogs——"

"And men?" it was suggested.

"No—not many," was the quick and apparent genuine response. "Not many men and not many women. I learned early in life to wrap myself away from the world at large, and this was partly for protection. As I mingled among people I heard terrible things about myself—the idle, unknowing things people say of stage women. I early learned that I was supposed to out-Zada all my most sensational heroine roles. It hurt me and I withdrew from the world at large."

A FINE TREATMENT FOR CATARRH

EASY TO MAKE AND COSTS LITTLE

Catarrh is such an insidious disease and has become so prevalent during the past few years that its treatment should be understood by all.

Science has fully proved that Catarrh is a constitutional disease and therefore requires a constitutional treatment. Sprays, inhalers, salves and nose douches seldom if ever give lasting benefit and often drive the disease further down the air passages and into the lungs.

If you have Catarrh or Catarrhal deafness or head-noises, go to your druggist and get one ounce of Parmint (Double strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved, take one tablespoonful 4 times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head-noises, clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and mucus stop dropping into the throat.

This treatment has a slight tonic action which makes it especially effective in cases where the blood has become thin and weak. It is easy to make, tastes pleasant and costs little. Every person who wishes to be free from this destructive disease should give this treatment a trial.—Advertisement.

FORCED TO MARRY GIRL.

Roy Bever Tells Story to Court and Judge Annuls Marriage.

Rushville, Ind., Oct. 6.—The story of a forced marriage was told on the witness stand in the circuit court by Roy Bever, of Rushville, which resulted in Judge Sparks annulling the marriage of Bever and Clarissa Perkins Bever, of Connersville.

Bever testified that Walter Lambert, of Connersville, came to the home of Oliver Joliff, south of Brookville, where Bever was visiting, one night last June, and represented himself to be a deputy sheriff. He was accompanied by the Perkins girl. Lambert swore, and said he had a warrant for Bever's arrest on a serious charge. Bever declared he went back to Connersville at midnight with Lambert and the girl, they called the county clerk of Fayette county out of bed, obtained a marriage license and/he and the Perkins girl were married.

Bever's wife defaulted, saying that she did not care to live with Bever and never desired to marry him, but she was summoned and made to testify by Judge Sparks.

WOMEN STRIVE FOR HIGHER EDUCATION

Marked Change is Noted in the Universities of Germany.

Berlin, Sept. 20.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press).—Women have taken advantage as never before of the absence of men from the various German universities to strive for the higher education that not so many years ago was denied them.

During the last semester which fell entirely in peace times, 4,130 women were registered at the various institutions. This number has increased to 4,570 during the past year, constituting a percentage increase of women attending German universities of from 6.74 to 8.54. In the entire past six years the percentage had increased only 2.7.

The actual increase in point of numbers is not as great in two earlier years, when the figures jumped by 680 and 478 respectively. The 1915 figures, however, have been held down somewhat by the absence of the Americans, Russians, English and Swiss women who customarily are enrolled and who, during the war, have been absent.

The number of women studying medicine shows the largest increase, rising from 974 to 1,150. Five years ago there were but 512. There are 2,258 studying philology and history, against 2,120; 862 studying mathematics, against 761; 170 studying political science, against 132; 73 studying law, against 57; 42 studying dentistry, against 51; 7 studying theology, against 16; and 12 studying pharmacy, against 14.

The southern German universities have suffered losses, and the Prussian institutions have gained in number of women students. The attendance includes: 1,023 at Berlin, 492 at Bonn, 338 at Munich, 227 at Marburg, 252 at Heidelberg, 242 at Goettingen, 240 at Muenster, 230 at Leipsic, 225 at Breslau, 171 at the new University of Frankfort, 151 at Freiburg, 150 at Koenigsberg, 137 at Jena, 122 at Halle, 98 at Kiel, 78 at Greifsald, 50 at Tuebingen, 56 at Strassburg, 43 at Wuerzburg, 32 at Giessen, 28 at Erlanger and 34 at Rostock.

The number of women students at German technical schools has increased this year to 119, as against 82 last year, and 68 two years ago. Of these, 20 are taking architecture, 28 chemistry and pharmacy, two engineering, four electrotechnic, and 65 languages.

STOCKMAN IS INDICTED.

Charged With Poisoning a Farm Neighbor's Jersey Cows.

Kokomo, Ind., Oct. 6.—The Howard county grand jury returned an indictment charging Thomas Ruse, farmer and stockman, with poisoning the dairy cattle of Aaron Deardorff, a neighbor. The alleged crime was committed on June 19, last. Six fine Jersey cows died. Paris green had been put in their feed. Ruse was suspected by Deardorff from the first. There had been differences growing out of business jealousies. Ruse expected the indictment. While the case was being investigated, he went before the grand jury against the advice of his counsel and protested that he knew nothing about the poisoning.

BOMB PUT IN BAKER'S OVEN.

Gary Police Have Another Mystery—Slight Damage Done.

Gary, Ind., Oct. 6.—The Gary police are confronted with another bomb mystery. A partly exploded bomb in the ovens of the Miller & Narvaish bakery, at Tolleston, near the home of the Rev. Edmund Kayser, slain five weeks ago, did slight damage. Michael Adonowies is suspected. Lack of a fuse prevented a full explosion of the bomb, which was disguised as a log.

"ADMIT THE BEARER"---A SINNER

"So, John, you've got fairly into the kingdom. You have been long seeking, how did you get in at last?"

"Oh, it was the simplest thing in the world; it was just by presenting the right ticket. I held it out, the door was opened, and I was in. And—the strange thing is, I found that the ticket of admission had been in my possession from childhood, and I had carried it in my breast pocket for the last twelve months, and never had the sense to use it."

"That is strange, for you were so anxious to get in. What kind of a ticket was it, and what was written on it?"

"Why, it was as plain a ticket as you ever bought for a public meeting, and it had nothing on it but the words,—

"Admit the Bearer,
A SINNER."
Luke 18. 13, 14.

"Was that all?" "Yes. And what kept me so long from getting in was, that I always added something to the words on the ticket, when I presented it. Whenever the Lord saw anything of my adding, it was refused. The first time I went, I wrot at the bottom, 'But not so great a sinner as many of my neighbors.' That would not do, so I rubbed it out and put down, 'But is doing the best he can to improve.' That would not do either, so I became more anxious, and prayed and wept awhile, and then, under the words, 'Admit the bearer, a sinner,' I wrote, 'Who is praying and weeping for his sins.' Even that wouldn't do. After that I began to despair, and wrote down, 'Too great a sinner to be saved.' That only made matters worse, and I had almost given up, when I looked at Christ and heard him say, 'I am the door; by Me if any man enter in, he shall be saved' (John 10. 9), and 'Him that cometh to Me I will in no wise cast out' (John 6. 37), 'And ye will not come unto Me, that ye might have life' (John 5. 20), and those precious words, 'Whosoever will, let him take of the water of life freely' (Rev. 22. 17). I looked again at that parable of the Pharisee and Publican, and I saw that it was simply as a sinner that he went and was justified. He did not make his sins too great to be forgiven, nor too little to need forgiveness. He went just as he was, 'a sinner,' and trusting to the promised grace of God, he went down to his house 'justified.' I remembered that Jesus had said, 'I came to call sinners to repentance,' so pulled out the old ticket, and without adding a word, presented it. It was accepted and I entered."

Reader! go thou and do likewise, and, as God is true, thou also art justified.

POOR RICH AND RICH POOR.

Do you know why Jesus is so rich in love? It is because he gave so much. "For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for your sake he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich."

My Passport to Glory

When, in the darkness of the midnight train, the conductor's lamp is seen glimmering from carriage to carriage, does he hold it to your face to learn who you are, in order to be satisfied of your right to proceed? No! he lets its light fall on the ticket which you hold out to him, and if that is right, you are right, no matter who you are—rich or poor, rude or noble. So Christ, and Christ alone, is our passport to glory. Never can we say, Lord, look upon me, for I am holy—never; but upon Christ, who is my passport. Unworthy? Most assuredly you are. And, if you live to be the veriest saint, you will be unworthy still. God has chosen to save you. It is not a question of what you deserve, but what Christ deserves. It makes all the difference when, instead of putting your own value upon the work of Christ, and accepting it merely as meeting our need, we learn God's estimate of that work.

"Be not afraid, only believe."

And that is the secret of getting rich—giving to others. Jesus said, "It is more blessed to give than to receive." Solomon, the wise king, wrote: "There is that scattereth, and yet increaseth; and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty. The liberal soul shall be made fat; and he that watereth shall be watered also himself." "There is that maketh himself rich, yet hath nothing; there is that maketh himself poor, yet hath great riches." Here we have it in scripture, the "poor rich" man, and the "rich poor" man.

THE STAR OF BETHLEHEM

WHAT SHALL THE HARVEST BE?

At the outbreak of the war between the northern and southern states, L——, a young man, the son of a clergyman, joined the federal army, and not long after was appointed first lieutenant. The regiment to which he was assigned was principally composed of young men who had the reputation of being "hard drinkers."

Up till joining the army, L—— had never tasted intoxicating drink, and the first glass he had he relished, and longed for more. In the same week that he had liquor for the first time, on three evenings he went to bed drunk. His mother hearing of his conduct, expostulated with him, and urged him to give it up altogether; but he replied that the officers all drank, and if he did not he would be considered singular, and would be looked down upon; and the result was, before he was 21 years of age, he was one of the worst gamblers and heaviest drinkers in the army. The appetite for drink, day by day, and month by month, increased, until at last it became uncontrollable, and he indulged in it without restraint.

On being married he resolved he would renounce drinking for the sake of his wife, whom he dearly loved. One evening he said to himself, "This is my last drink; I won't take any more;" but, alas! little did he know the power of the chains that bound him.

"I shall never forget," to quote his own words, "that terrible struggle; I shall never forget the despair that settled upon me after I made my first endeavor to quit drinking. During the course of my life I have passed through moments of personal danger; I have stood in places more than once where I expected the next moment would bring me face to face with my God, but I never felt such fear, I never felt such a shrinking of the heart as I did that day when I found I could not leave my cups alone—that I could no longer say, 'I will take a drink or I will leave it alone as it suits my pleasure.' Then I realized that my appetite had become my master and that I was bound by it. From that day forward I fought against it; year by year I never gave way one foot; I never gave one inch without making a struggle, for I knew that my appetite was taking me to a terrible doom, and sometimes I succeeded for a time. Once I quit for nine months; and again for three months; and again for weeks. But every time I quit—every time I tried to stop—I got down again. There was all the time in me a gnawing, craving, growing appetite for drink. I could not resist it, and though for a while I would abstain, yet, by and by, I would go down again."

Saved From Committing Suicide.

After being ten years in the army he resigned his commission and led a life of dissipation and debauchery. Every now and again he made resolutions to amend his ways and "turn over a new leaf," but soon he was as bad as ever, and eventually his wife and children, on account of his conduct, separated from him.

While in the city of Washington, his eldest child, a girl ten years old, said to her mother, "Mamma, I would like to go to Washington to take care of papa."

"No, said her mother, "there is no use in you going; father would abuse you."

"Oh, no, mamma," said the child, "papa won't hurt me; and, besides, there is no one to care for him. I do wish to go."

Mother's consent having been obtained, she proceeded to Washington, and reached the house where her father was staying, and found the way to his bedroom. On awakening from a drunken sleep he found his little girl by the bedside tenderly watching over him. One evening while returning to his lodgings, having been more successful in gambling than usual, he said to himself, "After all, of what use is the money to me? Tomorrow it will be all gone. I am going down, down!" At the remembrance of his past conduct, his life of sin and misery, despair took possession of him, and he resolved he would put an end to his wretched existence.

With this object in view he purchased a bottle of chloroform, and on reaching his lodgings retired to his bedroom, undressed, and went to bed with the poison in his hand.

Just as he was about to plunge into eternity his child knocked at the door, and opening it, said, "I want to sleep with you tonight, papa."

"I want you to go to your own bed-

"Papa, I want to Stay With You."

room and sleep there," was the father's reply.

"But papa," said the dear girl, "I want to stay with you; I have been thinking of mamma all day, and I'm so lonesome"; and, getting into the bed beside her father, she put her arms round his neck, and he had not the courage to put her away.

Thus was he mercifully spared from rushing unprepared into the presence of a holy and sin-hating God. Ofttimes his little guardian angel would put her arms round his neck, and say, "If you will only believe in Jesus, papa, He will make you a good and sober man."

What Shall the Harvest Be?

Deeper and deeper he sank in the moral scale, and gave free reins to his lusts and passions. Finally he left Washington and removed to the city of Chicago. Here he resolved that he would never touch a drop of drink; but not very long after he was overtaken, and became worse than ever.

"It is of no use in me trying to stop drinking," he said; "I cannot."

Into the lowest depths of vice he went, drinking, playing cards, and gambling. Sometimes he had food to eat, and sometimes he had none; sometimes he had plenty of money, and at other times he was without a cent; sometimes he had a bed to lie on, and at other times he had to sleep wherever he could get a place to lay his head; but there never was a time when he could not get drink.

Bloated and besotted he entered a large building in the city of Chicago, which was being used for gospel preaching, and taking a seat in one of the back galleries he watched the people as they entered. When the hour arrived there was a dead silence; all eyes were turned towards the platform, and in a clear, full voice a hymn was sung, the refrain of which was,

"Oh, what shall the harvest be?
Oh, what shall the harvest be?"

The question, "Oh, what shall the harvest be?" was carried home in wondrous power to L——'s conscience. Bygone days were recalled. He remembered his father's prayers and his mother's tears; his wife's pleadings and entreaties, and his child's tender care and love; his sin and folly, vows and resolutions, and he was stung to the quick.

"What shall the harvest be? What shall the harvest be? rang in his ears and made him tremble. He knew that the harvest for him, if he continued in sin, would be a dreadful one—an eternity of misery and despair in the lake of fire. The address followed the singing, but he heard it not. His whole being was absorbed by the question, "What shall the harvest be?" During the night while in bed, he seemed to hear one asking, "What shall the harvest be?" and in the darkness he fancied the words were written on the walls in letters of fire. Whatever he did, wherever he went, the question followed him. He did his very best to forget; he strove hard to banish all thoughts of the harvest of anguish, agony, and remorse that awaited him. But it was of no use. The arrow was fastened in a sure place, and do what he might he could not get rid of it. Again he plunged into dissipation and debauchery, but in the saloons and gambling hells the words were always before him, and he became greatly agitated and alarmed.

Unsaved reader, have you thought of the reaping time that lies before you? Remember what Jehovah has said, "Be not deceived. God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." (Gal. vi. 7 8). Throughout your lifetime you have been sowing seed and, oh! let me ask, "What shall the harvest be?" Think of your past life all stained with guilt, all criminal with rebellion. Look forward to the day when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ. When you stand before the great white throne, and have your sins brought to your recollection—sins of omission and commission; sins of thought, word, and deed—what will you say? When you hear the sentence passed upon you, "Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire," how will you feel? Horror, gloom, and despair will take possession of your spirit, and you will be speechless. You will then see that you might have been in heaven, that the Lord Jesus had earnestly desired to save you, and that it was all your fault. If you continue neglecting or rejecting the salvation of God you will be damned to all eternity, for He has said, "The wicked shall be turned into hell, and all the nations that forget God." Psalm ix 17.)

Victory.

The thought of the harvest of shame and misery that awaited him became so insupportable that L——, determined he would bear it no longer, and he resolved to go to the tabernacle where the gospel services were being held, and see if anything could be done for him. It never entered into his mind that he could receive the full and free forgiveness of all his sins without first becoming "good." He had supposed that in order to become a christian he must renounce his bad habits, reform his ways, and amend his life, and God would save him.

One evening at the close of the gospel address he found his way into the "inquiry room," and was spoken to by an earnest christian worker, who sought to show him his guilt and danger.

"Oh!" was the reply, "you don't mean to tell me that; I know what a sinner I am."

"Don't you wish, then, to become a christian?"

"I do; but I cannot stop drinking—I have tried it and cannot stop, and I don't believe that there is any hope for me."

"If you believe in the Lord Jesus," said the servant of the Lord, "He will take the appetite away."

This was something altogether new to L——.

"I had never," to use his own words, "dreamt of such a thing—I had never heard such a thing as that the Lord Jesus would save a drunkard in his drunkenness, and make him whole every whit."

That night, when the gospel was presented to him in its simplicity and fulness, he believed it and rejoiced in the knowledge of sins forgiven. He believed that the Lord Jesus bled and suffered for him on the cross of calvary: that He had paid the ransom price with His precious blood, and by receiving the "glad tidings" made known to him in the word, he was saved and had eternal life. ((John iii. 16, 36; v. 24).

Several years have passed since that happy day when Jesus washed his sins away. During that time he has been manifesting the change wrought on him, by works of faith and labours of love. At the present time he preaches the gospel of the grace of God, and the writer, when in Chicago recently, had the pleasure of hearing him. Since that memorable night he declares that he never had the slightest desire for drink. The appetite has been completely taken away, and he seeks wherever he goes to

"—Tell to all around.
What a dear Saviour he has found."

Reader, whatever you are, or have been, God is sincerely desirous of saving you now. Religious or irreligious, moral or immoral, educated or illiterate, "Ye must be born again" John iii. 7). You may or you may not have been addicted to drinking; but one thing is certain, you need the precious blood of the Lord Jesus. You may again and again have "tried" to become "religious," to "give up" your bad habits, or break away from your companions, but you have miserably failed, and you think there is no use "trying" again. Renounce all such foolish efforts. Take your place as a lost, hell-deserving sinner, and receive the gift which God is beseeching you to accept, "The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life." (Rom. vi 23).

MY FIRST LESSON IN FAITH

"My first lesson in faith," said a devoted minister of the gospel, "was when I was a little boy. My father was one of the early volunteers within the war of the rebellion. He had purchased a few acres of land, with a small house situated upon a bleak hillside. Even this home was not entirely paid for when our country's call echoed over hill and valley, and my father, aroused through his patriotism, left us for the seat of war.

"There were five of us left within the little house; my mother, who was always a frail woman, one sister who was the eldest of us children and just married, her husband also enlisting, a brother younger, and a little sister who was the pet of the family.

"My father lived only a few months, died of home-sickness the same as many another one of whom I have known, and was laid away where we could never visit his grave. Just about this time my sister's husband was among the missing, after one of the many large battles.

"Before the poignancy of my sister's grief had lost its keenness, she sickened with a fever and died. My mother seemed benumbed by her grief, sitting in a kind of a listless way, until our dear little Delia, who was the sunshine of our home, sickened and died so suddenly we grew appalled. Soon after this my mother had a slight stroke of paralysis, which not confining her to her bed for a great length of time, still rendered her unfit for labor. We found great difficulty in procuring even the necessaries of life.

"My brother was too young to work, and I could do but little. One day my mother showed me how to stir up a batter for griddle cakes out of a little meal, and bake them. After eating the cakes, for this was all we had, she called us boys to her side and said, 'My children, we have no more provisions in the house; neither can I obtain any unless the Lord helps us to them. I am going to ask Him now, and you kneel down with me while I ask.'

"So we knelt while my mother poured out her soul in prayer. I have heard a great many prayers, yet I think I never heard one so full of faith as that. Little boys as my brother and myself were, we were both melted to tears long before she finished. Arising, my mother sang a beautiful hymn; afterward saying, 'I am sure the Lord is about to answer my prayer, and my little boys will have bread.'

"It was not more than a couple of hours before there came a rap on the door, and going to open it, I saw a young man who came in, saying to my mother, 'Father was looking over his accounts today, and found he was owing your husband seven dollars; he thought maybe you would need it, so I came over with it.'

"My mother could not restrain her tears of thankfulness, even until the man was gone. It was a debt my father had tried to get years before, and as my mother said, 'It's all owing to the Lord's causing him to pay it to us to supply our needs.'"

back; tell me I'm not going to die, Father," he said, "'twas you who taught me this, you who led me on in this way; and now you say I'm going to die. Stand back!" he shrieked; "I will not die!" And a torrent of invective issued from his fever-parched lips, so terrible in their madness that it seemed like a wail from the sea of woe. No wonder the poor mother was borne, fainting from the room, and the father's brow was corrugated, while great drops of agony rested there. Oh, that infidel father! How must his heart have bled in that dreadful hour, when, in the midst of dire cursings, his gifted son fell back a corpse!

A BURNT HEN.

During a long, dry summer in the northwest of America, a prairie fire suddenly sprang up in a district where there were many settlers; it raged along the country, burning in its course several farm-yards and wooden houses—in some cases the farmer and family being unable to escape.

After the fire had passed over, a relief party rode out from a neighboring town, to see if any one might perchance have escaped the flames and would be requiring relief. Riding past a charred cottage, one of the men saw what appeared to be a black hen sitting on the ground. On going to it, he found that it evidently had been a hen, but was quite dead, the head and back being burned to almost a cinder, but the bird sat in such a striking way, with her wings partly spread out, that he gave her a kick with his foot, when three little chickens ran out.

Bravely the poor mother hen had covered them, in face of the roaring fire; and bravely she had sat still in the midst of the scorching flames, choosing rather to be burned to death than that one of them should perish.

This true story shows us how the Lord, who planted this instinct in the heart of the timid hen, to defend her young in the hour of danger, would bring with great force to our memory His words, as He wept over Jerusalem: "How often would I have gathered thy children together, as a hen doth gather her brood under her wings, and ye would not!" Had the little chickens taken no heed to their mother's cry of "Chich, chick, chick," when she saw the fire coming, or had they said to themselves: "We shall be safer in the farmer's house; see the big strong walls; they can better resist the flames than our poor, weak mother," they would certainly have perished.

He Will Not Turn Us Aside

A landholder in a European country was fond of the chase, and near his estates the woods abounded with wild deer. One day walking across a field he heard the baying of hounds, and presently saw a little fawn fleeing before them. It was nearly spent; its tongue was hanging from its mouth, and its sides were white with foam. Nearer and nearer came its foes. In a frenzy of fear, it just managed to leap the fence near the man, and stood trembling, and casting wide, frightened eyes in every direction. Soon a hound leaped the fence at a little distance, but the poor little creature was too exhausted to run further. It came and fell in a heap at the feet of the human being at hand, as if pleading for protection. His heart was filled with pity for the little fawn, and for half an hour he fought off the dogs. The helpless had appealed to his strength. After dispersing the persistent hounds, he lifted the small creature to his shoulder, and carried it home. It was his; purchased by battle with its foes. A few months afterward, there might have been seen on that estate, a beautiful, graceful young deer playing with the children, and evidently very much of a family pet. So our helplessness appeals to Christ's power, and He will turn none aside who come to Him for succor.

Spurning the Remedy

A man said to me not long ago, "Do you think there is any justice in my being condemned because a man sinned six thousand years ago I don't believe a word of it." Now let me say, there will be no one lost on account of Adam's sin. But I hear some one say, "That's a plain contradiction. You have said we should be, and now you tell me we shall not be."

Let me see if I can illustrate it. Suppose I am dying of some terrible disease, say consumption, and I am given up by the physicians, who say I must die. But there comes a man whom I have known for years, and he says, "You are a dying man!" I say to him, "I know it; I don't want any one to tell me that." He says to me, "But there is a remedy." I say, "I don't believe there's any remedy; I have tried all the leading physicians and they say there is no hope."

"I tell you there is a remedy!" says he, "twenty years ago I was as far gone as yourself, and I was given up by all the physicians to die, but I took that medicine (and he holds it out to me), and it cured me. Listen now—there is the medicine, it shall not cost you a farthing, just take it, and you will get well." But I do not take it, though I have every reason to believe the man is speaking the truth. To be sure I shall die of consumption, but that is not the reason why I die; it is because I spurn the remedy. And if men die eternally, it will not be God's fault, but because they have despised the remedy. They are not lost because they are sinners, but because they reject the Saviour.

PASTOR AND HIS LABOR SERMON

It is unfortunate that while very few workingmen reject Jesus Christ as the Son of God, they have thought of him as coming on a purely social or economical mission. True, Christ came to free the slave of labor. But Christ also came to free the slave of sin. Indeed, that was his chief mission.

Christ himself said: "I am come to call sinners to repentance." There is no greater obstacle in the way of solving the labor question than sin. If sin could be eradicated the labor question would be solved. Admitting this, you must see that the preacher who boldly performs his duty by denouncing sin in every form, the sin of both the employer and the employe, is a friend of labor, even though he never preaches a so-called labor sermon.—Rev. Charles Stelzle.

The Little Girl's Prayer

This is a true story of a little girl named Alice, who had been surrounded with plenty and had known no care until she was about eight years old. Then her father decided to go west and try a new country. Everything was sold except a good wagon and a fine team of horses. With these the father decided to travel through the country to the place he wanted to go with his wife and five children. After a long, tiresome journey they reached their destination. The country, of course, being new, was very thinly settled. As only a few people lived there, few crops had been raised. Soon the money of the newcomers was gone, one of the horses died, and one adversity followed another. The first year there was a drought. The next spring the father planted his crop, but it seemed as if there would be another drought.

When the father came in one evening he said, "If it doesn't rain soon, we won't raise anything this year, and we will all starve."

Oh, how this touched the heart of Alice, who was next to the oldest of the children! By this time there was another baby brother. How could she see these brothers and sisters whom she loved so dearly starve to death?

She went into a dark corner of the room and cried and prayed. Her mother had taught the children to pray that little prayer which begins, "Now I lay me down to sleep," but this time Alice prayed more than that.

When supper was ready the mother wanted to know where Alice was. She finally found her and asked what was the matter, but Alice would not tell. Nor would she eat any supper. Anxiously she waited for them to go to sleep. All the family slept in one room. When all was quiet she slipped out of bed.

She knelt by the side of the bed and began to pray. She asked God to let it rain so the children would not starve. While she prayed, a beautiful light brighter than diamonds came from heaven down to her beddside. It was like a shining path (lightning). Oh! how happy she was! She had asked the Lord for rain, and He was going to let it rain. She was so happy that she could scarcely keep still. She feared to make a noise that would awaken her father, for he was a very stern man and she was afraid of him.

She got in bed and listened for the raindrops. She knew it was going to rain. In a few moments raindrops pattered on the roof. She was so happy she could scarcely contain herself. Finally, she went to sleep.

Next morning there was a surprise for her father. He wondered why it had rained when there was no sign of it the evening before. Now there would be a crop and all would be well.

He Died as He Lived

"Begone!" cried a young skeptic to a clergyman: "I want none of your cant," when he showed him the great need of repentance. "I am not going to die, and, if I were, I would die as I have lived." The physician came, to whom he said, "O tell me I'm not dying; I will not die!" "My poor friend, I cannot speak falsely to you; your soul will, ere long, be with your God." "My God!" he said. "I have no God save the world; I have stifled conviction, I have fought against God I have resisted my mother's pleadings; and now you tell me that I must die. Do you know," he added in an awful whisper, "all that means? If I die today I shall go to hell! Take it

GOD WAS WITH HIM

Away on the Black Mountains in India, inhabited by black tribes of heathen, a young man learned to read the bible. He was charmed with the story of Jesus, and said, "No more Mohammed for me," declaring his faith in Christ. His father, when he saw his son's change in life, threatened to shoot him on the spot, but his mother persuaded his father into offering him three months to consider his position, after which time, he said he would shoot him if he did not give up his faith. During this time he grew unwell, and the father said the illness was a punishment for his sin, so that after all he would not need to kill him. But he recovered, and his cousin, who did not want to see him die, pressed him to flee when he was well enough, which he did, and arrived at the headquarters of the church missionary society's work in Punjab. There the missionaries took care of him for a few weeks, but one day, in a bazaar the boy caught sight of his father, for he had been tracking him. He fled for his life to the doctor's house, and the missionary reasoned with the father, and took care of him for some days. Then they said to him, "Will you read this book?" handing him a copy of the New Testament. "Yes," he replied, "I will if you wish me to; that is not much to ask." He read it, and was so interested that he returned to the doctor, and said, "I have never read anything like it. I see it is the New Testament. Is there an older one? If so, let me have that as well." He was given a complete bible, and after eight months his hard heart melted, and at the age of seventy-two he was like a little child. He had been a murderer, but at that great age he had his sins washed away in the blood of Jesus, and went back to his own black tribe a witness for Christ.—Christian Worker.

"Chew Your Food" is Cardinal Rule for Health

DIGESTION.

There would be fewer dyspeptics if people saw to it that digestion begins in the mouth.

The more thoroughly food is chewed the more thoroughly does it become mixed with saliva, which partly digests the starchy elements of the food.

Worry is one of the great causes of indigestion and anything that disturbs the happiness or equanimity of the mind either before or immediately after a meal is apt to lay the foundation of indigestion.

Too much alcohol, tea, coffee or tobacco, excessive eating of fried foods and pastry, irregularity of meal times, overwork and want of proper exercise are other "good" causes of indigestion.

There are also certain ailments of the human system which bring on dyspepsia. Among these are eye strain, diseases of the heart, liver and kidneys, nervous troubles, and last but not least, decaying teeth.

Extremely hot or extremely cold liquids or solids are aids to indigestion, because when they enter the stomach they seriously interfere with the activity and digestive power of the various juices.

Wrong use of the common frying pan is also a sure way of bringing on stomach disorders. Food, fried for a long time in the ordinary frying pan becomes hard, toughened and saturated with grease so that when it enters the stomach the digestive juices have but comparatively little effect on it.

The proper amount of meat for daily food to consumption may be inherited, general way. Persons living and working a great deal in the open air needs and their system can stand a great amount of fish and eggs. But people living more or less sedentary lives will find their general health better if they eat but sparingly of such heat making foods.

TUBERCULOSIS.

People most liable to be infected by the germ of tuberculosis are those who live unhygienic lives, or who are compelled in order to a livelihood, to work amidst unhealthy surroundings.

Overcrowded, unventilated dwellings, offices, and workshops, sedentary occupation with lack of exercise, trades causing much dust, which, by irritating the lungs, produces favorable conditions for the growth of the germ, poor food and insufficient clothing, uncleanliness of person and surroundings, are all factors in predisposing persons to consumption; but it must be remembered that nothing can actually cause consumption except the entrance of the germ into the body.

It is commonly said that certain families inherit tuberculosis, and it is beyond doubt that a constitution predis-

Andrew Yaggy, of Woodburn, was a but the real reason that generation after generation in some families has died of the disease is generally that the sick members of the family have infected the well.

No matter where the germs are accidentally lodged, whether on floors, sidewalks, vehicles, on clothing or utensils, their vitality is fostered by dirt, dampness and darkness. On the other hand, sunshine, pure air and cleanliness are most valuable means of resisting and destroying the infection and of curtailing the disease when early recognized.

But the only sure way of preventing infection is to destroy all the sputum of every consumptive, for it is almost always by means of the sputum that a consumptive infects another person.

GERMANY YIELDS ON EVERY VITAL POINT

Disavows Attack on Arabic and is Willing to Pay Indemnity.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Germany has completely acceded to the American demands for settlement of the Arabic case. The imperial government in a letter presented by its ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, to Secretary Lansing, disavows the sinking of the vessel, announces that it has so notified the submarine commander who made the attack, expresses regrets for the loss of American lives and agrees to pay an indemnity to their families.

Official Washington was both gratified and relieved by the diplomatic victory. The communication delivered by the ambassador pursuant to general instructions from his government spread absolute confidence that there would be no more submarine controversies between the United States and Germany, for the document reveals that stringent orders have been given to submarine commanders to prevent a recurrence of such incidents as the Arabic. Since this case embraces the principles for which President Wilson contended in his notes following the torpedoing of the Lusitania and the Falaba, the concessions made by Germany to the American viewpoint were generally regarded as paving the way for amicable settlement of all the cases which have threatened severance of diplomatic relations between the two countries.

Text of the Letter.

Secretary Lansing gave out the text of a letter received today from Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, which was as follows:

"My Dear Mr. Secretary:—Prompted by the desire to reach a satisfactory agreement with regard to the Arabic incident, my government has given me the following instructions:

"The orders issued by his majesty the emperor to the commanders of the German submarines, of which I notified you on a previous occasion, has been made so stringent that the recurrence of incidents similar to the Arabic case is considered out of the question.

"According to the report of Commander Schneider of the submarine which sank the Arabic and his affidavit, as well as those of his men, Commander Schneider was convinced that the Arabic intended to ram the submarine.

"On the other hand, the imperial government does not doubt the good faith of the affidavit of the British officers of the Arabic, according to which the Arabic did not intend to ram the submarine. The attack of the submarine was undertaken against the instructions issued to the commander. The imperial government regrets and disavows this act and has notified Commander Schneider accordingly.

"Under these circumstances my government is prepared to pay an indemnity for American lives which, to its deep regret, have been lost on the Arabic. I am authorized to negotiate with you about the amount of this indemnity.

"I remain, my dear Mr. Lansing, yours very sincerely,

OLD FOLKS NEED "CASCARETS" FOR LIVER, BOWELS

Salts, calomel, pills act on bowels like pepper acts in nostrils.

Get a 10-cent box now.

Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.

So old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets, and they cost only 10 cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.—Advertisement.

PROPER SELECTION OF SEED CORN

There Are Three Important Factors Which Aid in Increasing Corn Yields—First, the Soil: Second, Proper Tillage; Third, the Proper Selection (Which Should be in the Field) and Storing of Seed Corn.

By C. P. BULL and L. H. ROBBINS.

In case one has no "special seed plot," in which his best and earliest maturing ears were planted, it is then necessary that his seed corn be selected from the field. The most practical method to do this is to go through the field with a sack tied across one's shoulder and select the choicest and best-matured ears. Two rows of corn may easily be examined at once. During the process of selection, consideration of the strength and character of the stalk, the height of the ear from the ground, and the size of the shank, should be noted. A stalk does not necessarily have to be large to be a big producer. A tall splindling plant lodges very easily. The stalk should be of good size and strong at the base, gradually tapering, and not necessarily tall. Strong, vigorous stalks of medium height, usually produce the best and earliest-matured ears. The ear should be attached to the stalk by a medium-sized shank, which is long enough to allow the tip of the ear to hang down.

All ears in a corn-field will not mature at the same time. A variation of fifteen days in maturing of ears in a field is not uncommon. One of the reasons why a good selection of corn can not be made from the shock, or from the field late in the fall, is that one is not able to tell the time the ear matured.

Desirable ears may mature ten or fifteen days later than the average freezing-time; and, if those are selected, they will insure a late-maturing crop. Again, if corn is left unhusked until late, the husks prevent the ear from drying out properly; and, as a consequence, it is likely to be frozen before it is husked, or at least before it has had time to dry out after husking.

In the choice of corn for seed, one selects the ears that he believes will give him the largest yield of good corn the following year. It is a good plan to choose an ear of corn that is as near the type wanted as possible; then keep this ear from year to year, or until you get a better one. At any rate have a sample ear that you can look at occasionally to help you in following one type. Keep this type-ear handy when selecting corn in the fall; and in the spring, when the final selection is made, it is well to compare all ears carefully with the type-ear.

A common practice is to select ears that are too large. It is much better to grow three medium-sized mature ears to the hill than it is to grow three larger immature ears per hill. As a general rule, the larger the cob and the deeper the kernel, the longer it will take the ear to mature.

Indications of maturity are looseness of kernels on the cob, a high percentage of moisture, chaffiness (or thin, small, poorly developed kernels), adherence of the tip cap to the cob, and generally a large amount of white starch.

It may be well to emphasize the fact again that many are inclined to select ears that are too large. This is a very natural thing to do, because everyone likes large ears of corn better than small ones; but it is yield per acre rather than large ears that determines profit. And if one allows himself to select ears so large that they will not mature, he is the loser thereby.

It has been learned, by many tests, that ears of a certain form yield more than other ears different from the standard form. Ears of corn likely to give best results, carry the butt diameter well towards the tip; they are free from indentations or other irregularities that would tend to decrease the yield of the ear; they have straight, regular rows of uniform kernels, and have kernels extending well over the tip and butt.

It costs just as much to grow an ear of corn that has kernels covering three-fourths of the cob as it does to grow one with kernels covering the whole cob. The kernel contains most of the feeding value. The cob is of very little value as food, hence the rows of kernels should round well down over the butt and extend well over the tip (not necessarily clear over) thus insuring a good proportion of corn to cob. The rows should run straight from the butt to the tip; because, in crooked rows, there are more irregular kernels, and kernels of irregular size make it impossible to plant a uniform number in each hill.

To get the most feeding value out of an ear of corn there should be no space between the kernels at the cob. It is the tip of the kernel—the end that contains the germ—that is richest in food nutrient. Pointed, chaffy tips indicate low feeding value and poor germinating power. Every precaution should be exercised to select seed corn that will grow and produce strong, vigorous plants. Space between the kernels at the cob, and lack of furrow, usually indicate a low proportion of corn to the cob, immaturity and poor vitality. The tip of the kernel should be wide, allowing room for a long, broad and deep germ.

Nothing will aid more in making a high yield of shelled corn than a deep, well-formed kernel. But do not select a too deep kernel; because the deeper the kernel, the greater is the length of time required to mature it; and, above all other things, maturity is the first consideration. To secure uniform planting, the kernels of selected seed corn must be all of nearly the same size, not only on one ear, but throughout the whole selection.

A few ears of yellow corn, in a field planted to white corn, means there is a mixture and that seed from that field will not be pure. Pure-bred corn, like pure-bred cattle, always sells better; not necessarily on account of superiority in the individual, but because it is well known that a pure-bred plant or animal will be likely to transmit its character to its offspring, while scrubs or mixed varieties may not. Intelligent crossing of either plants or animals often brings good results, but it is seldom that an unskillful cross brings increased production. Field mixtures of corn (crosses) are usually associated with decreased yields and anything but uniformity. A breeder of corn should have his ideal type of corn in mind, and breed towards that ideal; and the longer one selects to one type, the more certain he is that his crop will be like the seed he planted. The shape of the ear, the shape of the kernel, and color of the grain, should adhere closely to the type of corn desired. If mixtures of shades or colors appear, one may be sure that his corn needs more rigid selection. Variation in color of cob indicate a mixture of varieties. White corn should have a white cob; yellow, a red cob; and white-capped yellow, a red cob.

Ears with large cobs are to be avoided, on account of being hard to dry. A great variation exists in the amount of corn to cob different ears will shell. The variation usually comes between seventy and ninety per cent corn and ten to thirty per cent cob. From this it is seen that if one feeds one lot of hogs a bushel of corn that is but seventy per cent shelled corn, and another lot a bushel which is ninety per cent shelled corn, one lot will get forty-nine pounds of shelled corn and the other lot sixty-three pounds. Indications of per cent of corn to cob are size of cob, depth of kernel, furrow space, and space between the kernels at the cob.

One does not have to own a large fruit farm to enjoy excellent fruit of his own raising.

Thrift and Beauty on the Farm

No farmer is doing justice to his family or to himself unless he provides a comfortable abode. When a dwelling is snug and sanitary, it may just as well have a touch of cheerfulness and beauty about it.

A farm home does not have to be of great cost to be beautiful. Nature does much more for the rural family than for dwellers in the city. It is easy to embellish a frame cottage or a log cabin with woodbine or ivy. It costs nothing to have lilacs and roses in the yard, and surely the smallest of farms can spare the half acre needed for a green lawn with shade trees and flower beds.

A good home, therefore, has elements of beauty around it, although it may be plain and inexpensive. This should be considered a birthright of farm boys and girls, and it is high time for American farmers to realize that they cannot keep young people in the country unless the farm dwelling is made reasonably attractive.

The farmer of the soil is only serving his own material interests when he gives some time and thought to the adornment of his premises, in addition to providing stout walls and tight roofs against stormy weather. He should keep in mind the fact that his best assets are a tasteful dwelling and a happy family. His life is a failure unless he can show these, no matter how large his farm, nor how great his bank account.

It is worth while for farmers to make lawns and gardens, because these things will add to the attractiveness and comfort of home. It is not necessary to be extravagant. One can be progressive in spirit and show taste around the dwelling without wasting money.

A garden is easily made a source of profit as well as a thing of beauty, for flowers and vegetables pay better than almost any other kind of products. In order that the practical shall not be wholly sacrificed to the sentimental, the front yard may serve as part of the orchard

THE MYSTERY OF BIRD MIGRATION

Interest in Bird Migration Goes Back to a Remote Period—Marvelous as Were the Tales of Spring and Fall Movements of Birds as Told by Early Observers, Yet Hardly Less Incredible Are the Ascertained Facts.

By W. W. COOKE.

Bird migration has proved a fascinating subject for speculation and study from earliest times. Long ago it was noticed that birds disappeared in fall and reappeared in spring, but not knowing where they spent the intervening period, many fanciful theories were advanced to account for their disappearance, as hibernation in hollow trees or in the mud of streams or ponds. Within the century, stories were current of whole flocks that were seen to disappear beneath the waves of the Mediterranean to winter in its depths. With later years, however, has come a fuller knowledge of migration, especially of the particular region in which each species passes the cold season. But fuller knowledge has served to increase, rather than lessen, interest in the subject. More persons today are watching birds and noting their times of arrival and departure than ever before. Indeed, the Biological Survey has received migration notes from more than 2,000 different observers, showing how widespread is the recent development of this important phase of nature study.

The Survey has been collecting data on bird migration for more than 25 years. Investigations by its field naturalists extending over the North American continent from Panama to the Arctic circle have resulted in voluminous notes, and in addition the assistance of ornithologists throughout the country has been enlisted, so that each year reports are received in spring and fall from hundreds of experienced observers. Lighthouse keepers have also supplied valuable information concerning the destruction of birds at their lights. The facts gathered—500,000—from these various sources, form the largest amount of data on bird migration ever collected in this country, and permit broader and safer generalizations than have hitherto been possible.

For more than 2,000 years the phenomena of bird migration have been noted; but while the extent and course of the routes traversed have of late become better known, no conclusive answer has been found to the question, why do North American birds migrate? Two different and indeed diametrically opposite theories have been advanced to account for the beginnings of these migrations.

According to the more commonly accepted theory, ages ago the United States and Canada swarmed with non-migratory bird life, long before the Arctic ice fields advancing south during the glacial era rendered uninhabitable the northern half of the continent. The birds' love of home influenced them to remain near the nesting site until the approaching ice began for the first time to produce a winter; that is, a period of inclement weather which so reduced the food supply as to compel the birds to move or starve. As the ice approached very gradually, now and then receding, these enforced retreats and absences—at first only a short distance and for a brief time—increased both in distance and duration until migration became an integral part of the very being of the bird. In other words, the formation of the habit of migration took place at the same time that changing seasons in the year replaced the continuous semi-tropical conditions of the preglacial eras.

As the ice advanced southward the swing to the north in spring migration was continually shortened and the fall retreat to a suitable winter home correspondingly lengthened, until during the height of the glacial period birds were for the most part confined to middle and South America. But the habit of migration had been formed, and when the ice receded toward its present position the birds followed it northward and in time established their present long and diversified migration routes.

Thus those who argue that love of birthplace is the actual impulse to spring migration call attention to the seeming impatience of the earliest migrants. Ducks and geese push northward with the beginnings of open water so early, so far, and so fast that many are caught by late storms and wander disconsolately over frozen ponds and rivers, preferring to risk starvation rather than to retreat. The purple martins often arrive at their nesting boxes so prematurely that the cosy home becomes a tomb if a sleet storm sweeps their winged food from the air. The bluebirds' cheery warble we welcome as a harbinger of spring, often only to find later a lifeless body in some shed or outbuilding where the bird sought shelter rather than return to the sunny land so recently left.

As a matter of fact, however, only a small percentage of birds exhibit these preseasonal migration propensities. The great majority remain in the security of their winter homes until spring is so far advanced that the journey can be made easily and with comparatively slight danger; and they reach the nesting spot when a food supply is assured and all the conditions of weather and vegetation are favorable for beginning immediately the rearing of a family of young.

If, however, a longing for home is considered the main incentive to their northward flight, there arises the question as to why birds desert that home so promptly after the nesting season is over. Data recently collected at the Florida lighthouses show that southward migration begins at least by the 10th and probably as early as the 1st of July. Indeed, most birds start south as soon as the fledglings are able to shift for themselves. The orchard oriole, the redstart, and the summer warbler of central United States, and the nonpareil of the south, all begin their southward journey early in July, long before the fall storms sound a warning of approaching winter and when their insect menu is particularly varied and abundant.

According to the opposite migration theory, the birds' real home is in the southland; all bird life tends by overproduction to overcrowding; and, at the end of the glacial era, the birds, seeking in all directions for suitable breeding grounds with less keen competition than in their tropical winter home, gradually worked northward as the retreat of the ice made habitable vast reaches of the virgin country. But the winter abiding place was still the home, and to this they returned as soon as the breeding season was over. Thus, in the case of the orchard oriole mentioned above, many individuals that arrive in southern Pennsylvania the first week in May leave by the middle of July, spending only 2½ months out of the 12 at the nesting site.

Whichever theory is accepted, the beginnings of migration ages ago undoubtedly were intimately connected with periodic changes in the food supply. While North America possesses enormous summer supplies of bird food, the birds must return south for the winter or perish. The overcrowding which would necessarily ensue should they remain in the equatorial regions is prevented by the spring exodus northward. No such movement occurs toward the corresponding southern latitudes. South America has almost no migratory birds, for bleak Patagonia and Tierra del Fuego offer no inducements to these dwellers of the limitless forests of the Amazon.

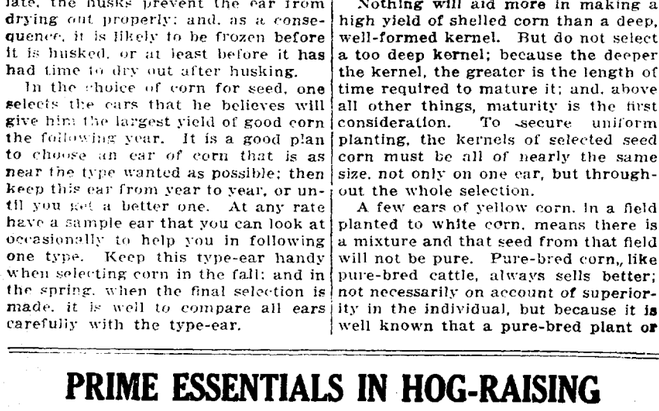
The conclusion is inevitable that the advantages of the United States and Canada as a summer home and the superb conditions of climate and food for the successful rearing of a nestful of voracious young far overbalance the hazards and disasters of the journey hither.

PRIME ESSENTIALS IN HOG-RAISING

By S. C. MILLER

There are three essentials for health, thrift, and gain to be considered in the management of hogs, in order to obtain the best results; these are clean food, pure water, and dry, comfortable sleeping places.

It is a law of nature that the excrement of all animals is poisonous to themselves, and while pigs may profitably follow cattle, it is of vital importance that their food be not contaminated with their own excrement.



First Prize Small Yorkshires.

The food of the pig should be as clean as for any other farm animal—that is, it should not be mixed or contaminated with any substance that contains no food value. Dirt and filth taken into the stomach along with food, impair digestion and reduce the gain; they also affect the appetite and general health of the pig. Then, too, a considerable part of the food consumed is required to develop energy to separate and expel the indigestible matter.

This means that pigs should never be fed on the ground in a yard or pen where their own excrement abounds. Feeding on the meadows or pastures, moving about from place to place is a good way in summer. In the winter, of course, feeding from the cribs is necessary, and to insure cleanliness at that time, there should be a feeding floor which should be cleaned after every feed.

Over 40 per cent of a fat pig is water and a reduction of water supply below the natural requirements, will reduce the gain just as surely as a reduction of food will. Well or spring water is better than water from ponds or streams. Standing, or stagnant water about the barns or lots should not be tolerated. Pigs should have clean, pure water always at hand, day and night; they drink but little at a time, yet often, and if it is not always accessible, they will not get as much as is required for normal development.

Anything that can be done to increase the comfort of the pigs will add to the gain and profit in feeding.

Good care of pigs means good breeding, good feeding, constant watchfulness, more labor, closer attention to little details, and finally, more dollars in the pocketbook.

Feed the old and young sows separately, as the old ones may hurt the younger ones, and they will get more than they should. The mature sows are more desirable, but it is always necessary to grow a few gilts to replace some of the older ones.

Breeders should prize above all others those big, growthy, long-bodied, rather loosely made young sows, no matter if they have big ears and rather coarse heads.

Avoid being a market-chaser, and sell when the hogs are ready to go; that is, when they have reached a condition when it is no longer profitable to feed them, except for speculative purposes.

It does not require great ability in figures to show that there is a great deal of waste in selling hogs when they are only half fed out.

It seldom pays to feed corn to pigs after they are ready to be marketed. Corn is not as perishable as fat hogs. It can be kept until the market advances.

As a general proposition the pig of 200 to 250 pounds is what every grower should aim at, and it is the pig that pays both killer and feeder better than any other.

Nicotine Spray Will Destroy Insects

A concentrated nicotine solution of which there are several brands on the market, properly applied, is fatal to the larvae of the cucumber beetle which sometimes does a large amount of damage to cucumbers whether in the cold frame or in the field. One teaspoonful of a 40 per cent solution of nicotine to a gallon of water is enough.

The gardener should look for the larvae of the beetle just at the surface of the soil. When he discovers them he should pour his nicotine solution on carefully with a narrow half pint cup, being sure to let it run down all sides of the stalk.

Fighting the larvae of the cucumber beetle is better than fighting the adult beetle itself, as the adults work chiefly on the leaves and do not get at the vital parts of the plant.

Extract of tobacco containing 40 per cent nicotine in the form of nicotine sulphate will destroy plant lice or aphids on trees and shrubs, if properly used. This material is on the market. One-half pint of this in 50 gallons of water is very effective if sprayed on the plants in such a way that every insect is touched with a small particle of the spray. This material is even more effective if mixed with whale oil soap—one pound of whale oil soap to ten gallons of the diluted nicotine solution.

PLAN NOW FOR THE FUTURE.

The time to build up a reserve, a safeguard for the future, is now when you are strong and able to work and sacrifice. You don't know about the future, but you do know that now, today, you are able to earn and save. Make the most of your present opportunity and prepare yourself for greater ones later on.

FORCED COWS GIVE OUT QUICKLY

By M. KELLY

In the feeding of a herd of dairy cattle we must consider that the animals have been artificially bred and developed until they stand before us very unbalanced and abnormal animals. The feeding of dairy cattle has been largely from the standpoint of production at the pail, and not attention and study enough have been devoted to the selection of foods best adapted to the health of the cows, and to the calves they are carrying.

On the other hand, there are many dairymen who are feeding for production and not for profit. You may ask if feeding for production is not feeding for profit. Not always. It is not the men securing the most milk who are making the most clear money from their dairy business. There is a limit as to how much feed the cows can utilize at a profit, just the same as there is a limit to how much grain feed the cows can consume without doing serious injury to their digestive systems.

When we speak of the productive qualities of the cow, we should not fail to keep in mind that productive qualities include the calf as well as the milk. Whenever we conduct our feeding on any other basis than this, we are doing it at the expense of the vitality and health of our cows as well as the calves they are carrying.

It is not alone for present results that we are feeding, but for the development of the calf that is to some day take the place of its dam in the herd. The old saying that "a calf well born is half grown" is eimnently true, and no calf is well born from a cow that is not fed a nourishing ration while she is carrying it.

The danger of this is greater among dairy cattle than among other breeds of cattle, for the reason that they possess an inherent quality of throwing their food into milk. Cows that are carrying calves should be fed plenty of bone and muscle forming foods in connection with some form of good nourishing, succulent foods, either roots or ensilage.

The dairy cow should have a period of rest after each milking season, so that she may have time to build up her energies and nourish her calf. She will need a period of rest after she drops her calf, so that she may be in good, vigorous condition when bred. Cows need rest, and, time to regain their normal condition before they are bred again. Have you ever stopped to think how fast we are running the cow-machine when we force her to keep up a heavy flow of milk, beside nourishing a calf, during the larger portion of the year? Is it any wonder that dairy farmers are alarmed over the health of their herds, and are sending for tuberculin, hypodermic syringes, and thermometers, when they are forcing their cows to their utmost capacity?

A Beautiful Jersey Cow.

Is it strange that they have abortion, defective teats and udders, and other ailments, when we compel them to put all their energies into producing dairy products for us? What we need in the dairy business is plain cow sense, and a knowledge of the laws of health and vitality in our dairy herds.

The layers of fat on the hog will aid him in withstanding the cold, but he has to have a warm place to sleep in the cold weather. You can not afford to let him run down.

The farmer must not treat lightly the market problem. It is a problem worth your while to study.

We observe that some of the magazines are telling "how the farmer's wife can earn money," just as though she were not every day earning a great deal more than she gets.

Usually a mixture of grasses will give more hay or pasture than a single crop.

In the matter of diseases of fowls we should not forget that prevention is the main point. Little things remedied in time will save great losses later.

The young trees should be banked with earth, which will keep water from settling about them.

Vines need constant watching. Assist the twiners and tendrils to find the strings. Pinching off the faded bloom and trimming now and then keeps a trellis of Japanese morning glories in richer bloom.

The greatest single factor in national economics is transportation, and the greatest single factor in economical transportation is good roads.

Honey should be stored in a cool, dry place.

It is natural and easy to follow the line of least resistance. But it is doing the hard things that develops strength and character.

Salt and vinegar will remove stains from discolored teacups.

Poverty and riches are relative terms. That is, some persons can be rich with a thousand dollars and some poor with fifty thousand.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Wheat values bulged today, influenced by a continued falling off in receipts northwest and by the meagerness of arrivals here. Opening prices, which ranged from ⅛c to ½c higher, with December at 99⅞c to $1.00¼, and May at $1.00½ to $1.00¾, were followed by decided further upturns.

The close was strong and higher than before, with December at $1.06 and May at $1.07⅞, a net general advance of 6¼c to 7⅝c.

Widespread frost gave strength to the corn market. After opening ⅛c to ½c higher, prices scored a material further advance.

The close was strong, 1¾c to 2¾c net higher.

Oats rose with other grain.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Oct. 6.—Measures taken by the stock exchange yesterday to curb riotous speculation in war shares resulted in an irregular opening today. Some of those issues, especially Continental Can, Railway Steel Springs, Republic Steel, General Electric and Goodrich were down one to two points, while Industrial Alcohol, American Coal Products, American Car and Distillers' securities were that much higher. International Nickel selling ex-dividend of 10 per cent. stock dividend, rose a fraction. United States Steel on an offering of 4,000 shares, was half a point lower at 78⅝. New York Central, Union Pacific and Pennsylvania were firm features of the railway business.

The rise in the railways stiffened prices until another avalanche of selling overtook the market, wiping out a considerable part of the gain in railways and forcing some specialties below yesterday's lowest figures. Crucible Steel curmpled rapidly, losing over ten points from its opening price of 96¾. Bethlehem Steel stood out with its new high record of 401. Bonds were irregular.

Lowest levels were reached in the final hour on the heaviest selling of the session. Rallies of one to four points were scored. The closing was heavy.

sentative there has not been a breath of suspicion linking him with an unholy alliance of any character. While in the series of federal investigations made in recent years scores of congressmen, irrespective of political affiliations, have been caught in the mesh and charged either with flagrant violation of the confidences of their constituents of unsavory alliances with special interests, the finger of suspicion has never pointed at the Twelfth district representative.

The years of experience in congress during which time he has been a careful student of governmental affairs have splendidly equipped Mr. Cline for effective service in the future. During that time his faithful and efficient service has been rewarded by such committee appointments which carry with them responsibility of the highest character and he has risen splendidly to the responsibility thus assumed. During the last session of congress he was an important factor in the carrying out of the program outlined by the Wilson administration and at all times has held a place high in the esteem and confidence of the president.

When important measures involving the interest of the masses of American people were before the house of representatives, Mr. Cline di dnot neglect an opportunity to support them.

At all times Mr. Cline has been accessible to citizens of the district who desired any service performed. He has found pleasure in acting promptly, when called upon for the performance of a service whether it was in the line of his official duty or not. No person has commanded him without enlisting his best efforts and this feature of Mr. Cline's official career stands out prominently in his record as a public servant.—Advertisement.

Help You Dye

Renew the life of your shabby laces, dresses, ribbons, feathers, etc., by using the right kind of dye on them. Here are a few suggestions for inexpensive dyes for almost any kind of article.

EASY DYES cost 15c. They work instantaneously and require no acids or salts to "set" them. They are particularly good for feathers and textiles, are easily applied and give excellent results.

DYOLA is a 10c dye. It is good for silks, woolens, cotton or mixed goods.

PUTNAM'S DYES are also 10c, and are recommended for any kind of fabric.

ANGEL DAINTY is another 10c dye good for all kinds of fabrics. May be used to advantage on laces, organdies, curtain draperies, tidies, dresses, waists, etc.

DIAMOND DYES, 10c dyes, come in all colors for all purposes.

Dry Cleaners

Many articles are only soiled and do not need dyeing. A good dry cleaner will then answer the purpose best. We carry a large stock of the best dry cleaning compounds, some to be used with gasoline, others that do not require gasoline. These latter are non-combustible and for that reason are prefered by many.

CLOSING ORDER TO HIT BLIND TIGERS

Drastic Action Expected to Follow a Killing at Muncie.

Muncie, Ind., Oct. 6.—As the result of the killing of Isaac Cox, laborer, in a free-for-all fight at the rear of an elleged blind tiger, Prosecutor J. Frank Mann will file temporary charges of manslaughter against Mike and Albert Brumback, James Dawson and Harrison Williams, four of the men taken into custody Sunday evening. Roy Cremean lived in the house where the men are said to have started their quarrel, and is charged with operating a blind tiger.

Coroner J. F. Downing, at the conclusion of an autopsy held over Cox's body yesterday, stated that death was due to a hemorrhage at the base of the brain. The prosecutor's office is said to have obtained strong evidence that Cox was struck a fatal blow with a pair of knucks by Mike Brumback.

The general belief is that authorities will order the closing of all blind tigers and gambling rooms, as the citizens have become greatly aroused over the sixth homicide within two months, and there is talk that if "a closing" order is not issued impeachment proceedings will be started against certain officials.

WARRANT ISSUED SECRETLY.

Former Prosecuting Attorney is Accused at Laporte.

Laporte, Ind., Oct. 6.—It became known here today that a warrant was issued secretly several days ago for the arrest of Walter Fabing, of Valparaiso, member of a prominent and wealthy family of that city and formerly prosecuting attorney of Porter county, who is charged here with forgery and at Valparaiso with embezzlement. Fabing came here about ten days ago and is said to have added a cipher to a check, getting $200. It is also charged that Fabing is a defaulter for a large amount to the Loyal Order of Moose lodge at Valparaiso. He was treasurer of the lodge. Mrs. Fabing recently appealed to friends to aid her in finding her husband. She fears he may have committed suicide.

August Bion Kills Bert Sears, Fatally Wounds Wife and Three Children, Then Ends Own Life.

Peru, Ind., Oct. 6.—August Bion shot and killed Bert Sears, 12 miles east of here today and wounded Mrs. Sears and her three children because the children were gathering apples on a farm Sears had rented from Bion. Mrs. Sears and two of the children may die.

Bion, driving by the orchard on the farm he had rented to Sears, saw the Sears children, Harry, 15; Goldie, 14, and Dorothy, 7, gathering apples. He fired on them with a shot gun. Then he went to the Sears home, shot Sears through the body, killing him instantly, and shot Mrs. Sears.

It is thought that Harry is the only member of the family who will survive his injuries.

Bion's body was found a few hours after the shooting in a field a short distance from the scene of the crime. He had shot himself through the breast with a revolver.

SUMMER CAMP AGAIN NEXT YEAR, IS PLAN

Board of Y. W. C. A. Directors Acts Favorably on Petition.

Upon recommendation by the executive committee, the board of directors of the Young Women's Christian association which met in regular monthly session at the association building, Wednesday morning, decided to again maintain a summer camp next summer. This motion was carried without a dissenting vote. At this time a petition headed, "Are You in Favor of the Camp?" signed by eighty-five girls was presented.

Twenty members of the board were present at this session which opened with devotional exercises led by Mrs. Fred Thieme. A letter of greeting from the former president, Mrs. E. A. Donnan, was read.

Several changes were made in the members of the various committees. Mrs. Frank Rahe was added to the house committee. Mrs. Elizabeth Gardener was made a member of the educational committee. Miss Catherine Brown was transferred from the educational committee to the physical training committee. Mrs. R. Meyers, Mrs. Clinton R. Willson and Mrs. Charles Mize were added to the extension committee.

Mrs. D. M. Doyle, of the membership committee, reported that the "Each win a member" campaign would be prolonged until Oct. 15. Miss [illegible] reported that the physical training classes would open next week if the required number of boys under twelve years of age were secured that a class would be formed for them to meet on Saturday afternoons.

The house committee chairman, Mrs. A. H. Perfect, announced that during the month ninety transients were taken care of 145 nights, the rest room was used fourteen times and the emergency room three times.

Mrs. George Bliss, of the cafeteria committee, reported that 1,101 more meals were served during September than the previous month.

Car Jumps Track in Bloomingdale Doing Much Damage.

An appeal directed to the citizens of Fort Wayne was made Wednesday afternoon in a statement issued by James M. Barrett, president of the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company, in which he reviews the circumstances leading up to the strike and the demoralizing effect such a situation as now exists may have upon the city.

President Barrett takes up the cases of the discharged men individually, pointing out the reasons for which they were let out and closes with an appeal to "the sense of right and justice of the people of this city to uphold the company in the exercise of its lawful rights and patronize its cars."

"The company and its officials have been law-abiding and are now only asking the lawful right and privilege of operating in a lawful manner its large properties in which millions of dollars have been invested," Mr. Barrett continues. "To prevent or deny these rights by intimidation, coercion, destruction of its property or violence to its employes serving the public, as well as the company, is not only a legal wrong, but destructive of all government."

Car Jumps Track.

Northbound city car No. 180 jumped the track just north of the Wells street bridge shortly after noon, Wednesday, and but for a pole on the inside of the sidewalk on the east side of the street it would have crashed into the building. No one was injured. The car was badly damaged and it was some little time before the service could be resumed because of broken wires.

A Driving park car struck a buggy Wednesday afternoon at Spy Run and Wagner avenues, frightening the horse and causing it to run away. The buggy was badly damaged.

The Empress theater has given the street car men 1,000 tickets for the two performances next Monday, which they are to sell for 50 cents each. The car men will receive one-half of all the tickets turned in at the theater and the full amount of tickets sold that are not turned in.

Company Still Determined.

Officials of the Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company repeated Wednesday morning with perhaps a little more emphasis than on former occasions the declaration that the new union formed by their former employes will never be recognized. They declare most emphatically that the men are "playing a losing game" and that positively nothing can transpire that

REJECTS RALSTON AS UMPIRE IN STRIKE

Traction Company Will Not Let Governor Decide Whether State Board of Local Men Shall Arbitrate Issues.

The Fort Wayne and Northern Indiana Traction company, after having the proposal under consideration since last Thursday night, has rejected a proposal made to it through city officials to ask Governor Samuel M. Ralston to act as umpire to decide whether the arbitration of the issues in the street car strike shall be submitted for arbitration to the state public service board or to a board of Fort Wayne men.

The plan to request Governor Ralston's help was approved by the striking carmen.

An answer had been expected daily since last Saturday, but no definite word was given until Wednesday afternoon when counsel for the Traction company said that "today the answer is no."

It had been hoped that a favorable answer would be received and a way found to end the strike.

Proposal Made Thursday.

The proposal that Governor Ralston be asked to act as arbitrator was made Thursday night. Before it could be submitted to President Barrett, of the traction company, that gentleman had left the city for Indianapolis to consult Ferdinand Winters, western counsel for the United States Mortgage & Trust company, of Philadelphia, holders of the bonds of the Fort Wayne & Northern Indiana Traction company.

Mr. Barrett returned Friday night and the new peace proposal was submitted to him Saturday. He said he would take the proposal under advisement, promising an answer Monday. The answer was deferred until Thursday.

Not to Submit Strike Issues.

It has not been the plan to ask Governor Ralston to arbitrate the issues between the street car company and its striking employes, but solely to decide whether or not these issues shall be submitted to the state board of public service commissioners or to a local board of arbitration to be selected by the company and strikers, or according to some other plan that the governor might propose.

It has been the purpose to have the governor's participation cease with the decision of this question and not to burden him with responsibility for any future disputes or disagreements.

RAILROAD IS BLAMED.

Ardmore, Okla., Oct. 6.—The deaths and injuries caused by an explosion of a tank car of gasoline here the afternoon of Sept. 27 were caused through negligence of the Santa Fe Railroad company and its employes, but said negligence was not "felonious," according to a verdict returned by the coroner's jury today. Two scores of persons met death as a result of the explosion.

LOCATION QUESTION WILL BE DISCUSSED

Plymouth Congregational to Hold Annual Meeting This Evening

Among the many important questions which will be discussed and decided upon at the annual meeting of the Plymouth congregation church members, to be held Wednesday evening at the church, will be the location problem, which has been under consideration since the close of the Lyon tabernacle meetings early this year. The present quarters are not sufficiently large enough to accommodate all.

The officials and pastor of the church, as a committee, have been looking for sites for a new building and have also considered plans for the remodeling of the present structure at Harrison and Jefferson streets. Action will be taken on this matter at the yearly meeting.

The rumor that has been spread about the street during the past day that the Plymouth congregation will purchase the property of another church which is now for sale, is denied. Officials state that although it was an ideal location it would not give them any better accommodations than the present church building they now occupy.

Whether a new location is secured or the present building remodeled, it is the intention to provide quarters for basket ball, a gymnasium and other improvements of this character, including shower baths.

CLINE WILL MAKE RACE

Congressman to Go Before People in Primaries Next March.

Pursuant to urgent demands made upon him by a large number of substantial democrats of the Twelfth district, Congressman Cyrus Cline definitely announced yesterday that he will be a candidate in the coming primaries for renomination for congress. Mr. Cline made his decision after insistent demands from people from every county in the district who believe the best interests of the district will be served by his return to congress.

Mr. Cline goes before the people of the Twelfth district with a record of efficiency and faithfulness as a public servant that has made him one of the prominent legislators in the national congress. He has been prominently identified with every important legislative enactment passed by the Wilson administration and is regarded in the house as one of the the most ardent supporters of the president.

At this time when the country is confronted almost daily with crises which threaten to involve us in conflicts with foreign powers, when mature judgment and an ability to act based upon a ripe experience in legislative halls is required to safely pilot the ship of state through the troubled waters, there are none who question the wisdom of filling the highest positions in the gift of the nation with men who fully measure up to the requirements. It was because of Mr. Cline's intimate familiarity with the state problems that are now demanding the utmost delicacy in their successful conduct and because of the close fellowship he has enjoyed with the leaders upon whose shoulders falls the responsibility for the nation's safety, it was felt by patriotic Twelfth district democrats that Mr. Cline should be prevailed upon to again become a candidate.

Throughout the country effort is being made by members of all political parties to induce men of legislative experience to enter the contests for seats in congress on account of the particularly intricate problems which are sure to confront the nation. In many localities former members of congress are being urged to seek the toga on that theory.

Especial effort on the part of substantial Twelfth district democrats was made to induce Mr. Cline to announce his candidacy for the reason that during his entire service as the people's repre-

DOPE CASES NOW IN FEDERAL COURT

Robert Jones, colored, was arrested Wednesday morning on an affidavit sworn out in the federal court by Thomas J. McLaughlin, deputy revenue collector, charging him with violation of the United States statute against the traffic in narcotic drugs. Charles Moore, a mulatto, who was arrested Saturday after it had been found he was forging a physician's prescription to procure drugs, will be arrested on a federal charge Thursday morning. Both are now in the county jail.

It is alleged that Moore and Jones, who runs a barber shop in the same room where Moore's shoe shining parlor is located at 1509 Calhoun street, had been obtaining drugs at the Christian Brothers' drug store at Calhoun and Douglas avenue, on forged prescriptions.

Every loyal citizen of Fort Wayne has a duty to perform in attending the mass meeting to be held this evening at the Commercial club at 8 o'clock to talk over plans for the centennial celebration to be held in this city next year.

The call for the meeting was issued some days ago by Samuel M. Foster, J. Ross McCulloch and Charles L. Biederwolf, and upon its outcome will largely depend the part Fort Wayne will take locally in marking the one hundredth anniversary of Indiana's admission to the union as a state.

B. J. Griswold, T. L. Staples and Page Yarnelle have been appointed as a committee from the Rotary club to co-operate with the committee of the Commercial club in arranging for the meeting and also for the celebration.

ULTIMATUM TO SERBIA FERDINAND'S REPORT

Today's War News Given in Summary.

Bulgaria not only has rejected the demands of Russia but has sent an ultimatum to Serbia concerning Macedonia according to unofficial advices from Petrograd. It is declared that a reply from Serbia within 24 hours is demanded.

German guns broke up yesterday a French attempt to resume the offensive on the front of the former attack in the Champagne, Berlin declares. There was heavy artillery reparation and massing of troops, but whenever the French moved to advance they were stopped by the German artillery fire, heavy losses being inflicted on the attacking troops, the official statement asserts.

The French official report mentions only artillery firing in the Champagne district.

On the eastern front the Germans report having repulsed determined Russian attacks in the Dvinsk region. Initial successes for the Russians are admitted but the situation afterwards turned in favor of Field Marshal von Hindenburg's troops, it is asserted.

According to a Constantinople dispatch to a Berlin newspaper the British consul and consular guards at Ispahan have been killed by Persians. Tribesmen in Persia were recently reported to have overcome the government military forces.

The resignation of Premier Venizelos and his cabinet has been accepted by King Constantine of Greece. Official advices to this effect were received in London today.

Petrograd, Oct. 6.—Bulgaria has rejected the demands of the Russian government and has sent an ultimatum to Serbia concerning Macedonia, according to information which has reached the Serbian archimandriate, Michael, says a Moscow telegram to the Bourse Gazette. Bulgaria demands that Serbia reply to the ultimatum within twenty-four hours.

It is understood here that the British and French ministers at Sofia have received instructions to leave Bulgaria if Russia severs diplomatic relations with that county. Military action against Bulgaria, however, is not contemplated unless the latter attacks Serbia or takes other measures clearly inimical to the interests of the entente allies.

NO CRIME IN DEATH OF WILLIAM HENSON

That there was no element of foul play in the death of William T. Henson, 140 Baker street, who died in a cell at police headquarters Sunday morning, is the conclusion of Coroner E. H. Kruse, Chief of Police Charles Lenz and Prosecutor S. A. Callahan, following a post mortem examination made by the coroner late Tuesday afternoon. The heart and other organs of the dead man were found in a shocking condition that indicated acute alcoholic poisoning. Henson was taken suddenly ill in the Fryberger restaurant on Harrison street, at 9 o'clock Saturday night, while drinking coffee with Delia Zell, a woman he had picked up on the street, collapsed almost immediately and was taken to police headquarters as a drunk. It has not yet been determined whether or not a chemical analysis shall be made of the contents of Henson's stomach.

Delia Zell will be further questioned by Chief of Police Lenz Wednesday afternoon. She was so drunk at the time of her arrest Monday night and on Tuesday still suffering so much from her debauch that her interrogation was deferred.

A fellow employe of Henson at the Furnas ice cream factory says Henson was subject to fits and that his seizures were sometimes very severe.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 6.—Charles A. Bookwalter, republican leader and former mayor of Indianapolis, was called by the state today to testify in the trial of Mayor Joseph E. Bell, charged with election conspiracy. He said he spent most of election day in the Fourth precinct of the Sixth ward, which he regarded as "one of the battlefields of politics in Indianapolis."

The former mayor testified there was a long line of voters there all day. He stated that he saw five men there working that did not belong in the precinct.

"The chairman of the bunch told me to get the h— out of there," he continued. "I said I wouldn't. Then he said, 'start something and it will be 50-50 for you.' I returned the bluff and said, 'If you lay hands on me it will be sixty-forty for you.'"

Mr. Bookwalter said he did not know Wm. Pettit, who testified yesterday that his precinct was the scene of the activity of his "wrecking crew."

Saw No Trouble.

The witness was given a lengthy cross examination, during which he said he did not see any trouble of any kind at the polling place. He saw Mayor Bell at the polls, but that he didn't do anything to intimidate or threaten voters. He also said he did not see the police strike any one or draw their clubs.

"Did you see Mr. Bell threaten any one at the polls," asked M. A. Ryan.

"He certainly did not. He was smiling, seemingly anticipating something that did not happen," replied the witness."

He evidently referred to the election, which was won by the republicans, although the democrats were predicted to win by a large majority.

Mr. Bookwalter's Testimony.

Mr. Bookwalter told of being in the Fourth precinct of the Sixth ward almost all of election day. He told of a

Expects Ft. Wayne Men to Join the Strikers

Schenectady, N. Y., Oct. 6.—The union workers in the Lynn and Pittsfield, Mass., and Fort Wayne, Ind., plants of the General Electric company are likely at a any moment to join the 10,000 strikers from the local plant in their demand for an eight-hour day, it was reported here today.

"J. J. Keppler, vice-president of the International Association of Machinists, said at our executive session today," Harvey A. Simmons, chairman of the union press committee, reported, "that he had received telegrams saying sympathetic action might be expected in the three plants at any time. We estimate that there are 60,000 men employed in the Lynn, Pittsfield, Fort Wayne and Schenectady works and that from two-thirds to three-fourths of them are union men."

Simmons also announced that local union officials were proceeding with their plans to confer with the company officials here. No statement of any kind was forthcoming from the company today.

Employes of the Fort Wayne Electric works today declared that there had been no move toward a strike because of the trouble at Schenectady and that the matter had never come up for discussion at any of the union meetings. About 90 per cent of the machinists in the Fort Wayne plant are unionized.

CONSTANTINE BREAKS WITH HIS ADVISERS

Resignation of Premier Venizelos Comes When King Refuses to Follow Cabinet's Policy,

London, Oct. 6.—King Constantine, of Greece, has accepted the resignation of the Venizelos cabinet, according to an official dispatch which reached London today.

The position taken by King Constantine of Greece, in his interview with Premier Venizelos is said by the Athens correspondent of the Havas agency to have been that he could not pursue the policy of the Venizelos cabinet.

In consequence of the resignation of Premier Venizelos and the other members of the cabinet, the session of the Greek chamber has been adjourned, says a Havas dispatch from Athens.

WAS WHOLLY UNEXPECTED.

Resignation Led to Scenes of Wild Disorder in Chamber.

Athens, Oct. 6.—After his conference with King Constantine, Premier Venizelos returned to the chamber of deputies and made a statement of the causes of the disagreement. He then announced the resignation of the entire cabinet. Sittings of the chamber were suspended.

The resignation of Premier Venizelos was altogether unexpected. He conversed with the correspondent of the Associated Press at noon yesterday in a manner which indicated the utmost confidence in the future course of his government. Meanwhile King Constantine came to Athens from Tatoi, the summer residence of the royal family, and summoned the premier to the palace.

After a terse interview in which there was the plainest speaking, the premier proceeded to the chamber of deputies and announced that he had again disagreed with the king on foreign policy of the country and had presented his resignation and that of his cabinet. This announcement led to a scene of wild disorder in the chamber. The city is greatly excited. There is much discussion of the formation of a coalition cabinet.

An Official Statement.

The following statement was issued officially after a meeting of the cabinet:

"The French minister delivered the following note to Premier Venizelos: 'By order of my government I have the honor to announce to your excellency the arrival at Saloniki of the first detachment of French troops and to declare at the same time that France and England allied to Serbia send their troops to help the latter, as well as to maintain their communications with her, and that the two powers count upon Greece, who already has given them so many proofs of friendship, not to oppose measures taken in the interests of Serbia, of whom she also is the ally.'

Premier Venizelos replied: 'By your letter of today you have been so good as to inform me of the arrival at Saloniki of the first detachment of French troops and of the decision of France and England to send their troops to help Serbia, their ally, adding that the powers count on Greece not to oppose measures taken in the interests of Serbia, whereof she also is the ally.

"In answer to your letter I have the honor to declare to your excellency that, being neutral in the European war, the royal government could not possibly authorize the proceeding in question, for it constitutes a breach of Greece's neutrality, the more manifest since it comes from two great belligerent powers. It is therefore the duty of the royal government to protest against the passage of foreign troops across the Greek territory. The circumstances that these troops are solely to aid Serbia, Greece's ally, in no way modifies the legal position of the king's government. For even from a Balkanic point of view Greece's neutrality could not be affected before the actual casus foederis was committed by the danger now threatening Serbia, which caused the dispatch of international troops to her help."

The French and British officers who have already landed have been received most cordially by the local naval, military and civil authorities and have been able to begin work immediately on their arrival. Public opinion is that it is necessary for the entente powers to give assistance to Serbia.

BROTHER OF FATHER PETRILLI WAS LOST

The fear of Father Anthony Petrilli, pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic Italian church, this city, that his brother Leonardo might have been killed when the Benedetto Brin, the prize of the Italian navy, was destroyed by an explosion September 29, was confirmed Tuesday evening when the local priest received a cablegram from his native home which bore the short but concise statement, "Leonardo disappeared."

Rev. Petrilli is of the opinion that his brother, who was an under officer of the sunken battleship, was killed with the captain and the 360 men of the crew and that perhaps he may have been torn to pieces by the force of the explosion and that it will be impossible to recover the body of the young sailor.

Leonardo Petrilli was 20 years of age, but despite his youth had developed into such good shape that he had been placed in command of one of the gun crews manning the heavier batteries. He had a brilliant career ahead of him had it not been for the horrible disaster.

Father Petrilli states that he has another brother who is actively engaged in the great European conflict serving in one of the first line regiments of the Italian army now grappling with the Austrians. Both brothers wrote to their pastor brother. The last letter from the sailor was received two weeks before his death.

SHOWER OF MESSAGES POURING UPON RILEY

Hoosier Poet Deluged With Kindly Expressions for Birthday.

Indianapolis, Ind., Oct. 6.—James Whitcomb Riley, Indiana's beloved poet, is receiving hundreds of messages from all parts of the United States this week congratulating him on his birthday, which will be the occasion of a nation-wide celebration tomorrow. In Indianapolis, where the principal celebration of Mr. Riley's birthday will be held, every arrangement has been completed to make the theatrical performance in the afternoon and the banquet at night the most complete and beautiful tribute that ever has been paid to the Hoosier poet.

No one seems to know just how many years old Mr. Riley will be tomorrow. Asked why he kept his age a secret, he replied: "I never want my friends to think I'm getting old. Asked as to the state of his health the poet said, "I feel like a boy. I haven't felt so strong in years," continued Mr. Riley. "Every day I drive out in my car and I am enjoying life in spite of the war in Europe. You see I never read the newspapers and don't know what is going on over there. It has always been my aim to avoid things that are disagreeable and cause pain."

Men and women prominent in the world of letters who will attend the celebration of the poet's birthday began to arrive in Indianapolis today. Mr. Riley's old-fashioned red brick house in Lockerbie street has become more than ever before the Mecca of distinguished persons. And the poet is just as lively and happy as when as a barefoot boy he played clown with the rest of "the fellers" up in a hayloft many years ago.

Samuel Untermeyer Believes Average Man Should Stay Out.

New York, Oct. 6.—"Never in the history of the stock exchange has the public been threatened by so dangerous a pitfall as that which is now wide open for its victims," said Samuel Untermyer, counsel for the government in the money trust investigation, in a letter to the Rev. C. F. Reisner.

Untermyer said that "it is worse than hopeless," for the average man to try to win a fortune in the stock market, and asserted that "in the end they all lose."

NOTE GOES TO ENGLAND SOON

Disavowal by Germany Expected to Lead to Early Adjustment.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Germany's disavowal of responsibility for the sinking of the Arabic with accompanying assurances that the possibility of another such incident had been precluded through stringent instructions to submarine commanders, was regarded by officials of the Washington government today as one of the most gratifying results assured by American diplomacy since the European war began.

The disavowal and promise of reparation for the loss of the American lives made in a letter delivered to Secretary Lansing yesterday by Count von Bernstorff the German ambassador, on instructions from Berlin, was taken to forecast an early adjustment of the Lusitania case and other features of the submarine question.

Even More Pronounced.

Optimism over the outlook for complete settlement was even more pronounced in German quarters here. It was pointed out that Ambassador Bernstorff had full authority from his government to act for it in the negotiations and that his determination for an amicable adjustment had been amply demonstrated by the wide concessions made in the case of the Arabic. The crisis in the relations between the United States and Germany growing out of the submarine controversy which came near the breaking point on at least two occasions is regarded as having passed and all that now remains to be arranged in the Arabic case is the fixing of the amount of indemnity. That phase of the case will be taken up orally at a conference at a date yet to be determined, between Secretary Lansing and the German ambassador. The next feature of the issue to be taken up is the Lusitania case. It has been held up until a settlement of the Arabic case had been reached.

Note to England Soon.

With the Arabic case disposed of, the way has been paved for sending the American note to Great Britain on interference with neutral commerce. It is expected to go forward within a few days. Its dispatch has been delayed because President Wilson did not wish to complicate the situation with that growing out of the submarine controversy.

SKINNER COMING HOME.

American Consul General to Discuss Trade Problem.

London, Oct. 6.—Robert P. Skinner, American consul general, will sail for the United States within three weeks on a short leave. Mr. Skinner was unwilling to discuss today the report from Washington that the American note to Great Britain relative to the detention of American goods would be held up until after his return to Washington, saying he had no information to this effect. He added, however, that he expected to discuss trade problems with the American authorities. Representatives here of American shipping interests welcome the news in the hope that Mr. Skinner's visit to the United States may lessen their difficulties.

The main trouble has been the method adopted by the British authorities in releasing cargoes bound for Holland and Scandinavia. More reliance is placed on the personal reputation of the exporters and importers and the belief of the British officials in the good faith of the consignors and consignees than in formal declarations. The great difficulty has been to establish the reputation and integrity of American exporters, who are 3,000 miles away. It is believed some machinery will be set up in the United States to obviate this difficulty. The British policy seems also to operate to prevent the building up of large stocks in Holland and Scandinavia, imports of individual firms being limited accordingly. The difficulty relating to the holding up of perishable cargoes was settled some time ago and there have been no further complaints on this score.

WARDEN IS FEASTED BY FORMER CONVICTS

New York, Oct. 6.—Twent-five former convicts who served their time in Sing Sing or Auburn prisons set an unusual precedent last night by giving a dinner here to Thomas M. Osborne, warden of Sing Sing, who voluntarily served a short time in Auburn prison in order to see prison life from the prisoner's standpoint.

Officials of the national commission on prisons and prison labor also were guests of the former convicts. The purpose was to show Mr. Osborne that the men who once were imprisoned are winning their way back into industrial and social life and to show their gratitude to him.

Speaker and Son Rally to Frustrate Mob Bent on Lynching.

Bowling Green, Mo., Oct. 6.—For the second time Mrs. W. B. Hawkins, wife of the sheriff of Pike county, saved the life of Harriso.. Rose, a negro prisoner charged with murder, by parleying with a mob which had invaded the Pike county jail at 1 o'clock yesterday morning while the sheriff formed a posse of citizens.

The posse of fifty armed men, among whom were Speaker Champ Clark of the national house of representatives and his son, Bennett, arrived at the jail a few minutes after the mob had fled.

A month ago the sheriff's wife similarly held off a mob until the mayor and prosecuting attorney arrived and persuaded them to depart. Rose, the negro, is charged with stabbing a Clarksville, Mo., farmer to death with a pitchfork.

Monday midnight the mob from Clarksville called on Sheriff Hawkins to surrender Rose, and when he refused they battered down the outer doors of the jail. While two held the sheriff, others held revolvers to his forehead and commanded him to tell where he had hidden the keys to Rose's cell. The sheriff told the mob they would have to break down the jail to get the negro and while they were pounding on the inner jail door with sledge hammers the sheriff escaped and gave the alarm.

Meanwhile other members of the mob first begged and then commanded the sheriff's wife to produce the keys, but their revolvers brought no more terror to her than they had to the sheriff. The mob fled in automobiles when lookouts gave alarm of the posse's coming. Tonight Sheriff Hawkins swore in several deputies to help guard the jail.

If Coffee Came in Capsules

as its drug, caffeine, is frequently sold, coffee drinkers would wake up to the fact that coffee is not a food but a drug.

Yet in spite of the warnings of reputable physicians, many persons fail to realize the harmful effects of caffeine, coffee's subtle, habit-forming drug. Taken regularly this coffee drug—the frequent cause of nervousness, heart-flutter, headache and other ailments—sooner or later gets its hold.

Look coffee in the face—read what physicians and health experts say: (Names on application).

"Coffee is a dope and narcotic almost equal to opium. Slowly but surely it gets control of its victim and holds him in its grasp a pitiful, helpless victim."

"Coffee is a drug. Those addicted to its use are drug addicts."

"Some people get the craving for alcohol by first taking tea or coffee."

"They (the tea and coffee drugs) are comparable to opium in that they induce a habit and should be avoided."

Right now, Mr. Coffee Drinker, is the time to find out whether or not coffee has a hold on you. It's simple and easy—quit coffee ten days and use

A Comprehensive Showing of Autumn Fashions

There is something notably different about the styles we show; so many women have told us that. A different air to the entire garment; a different touch here and there; a feature of fashion just a little in advance; and that is what women want.

Our prices, too, are a little different, a little lower. Manufacturers have made unprecedented concessions as to price on account of the tremendous volume of our business; and this same volume lets us be satisfied with a smaller profit on each garment.

This is truly a wonderful showing, and should be valuable to you as a style guide.

Coats of corduroy, plush, pompadour plush, Kitty Gordon Cloths and new novelty weaves. Many smart fur-trimmed models; exclusive styles; $19.75 to $65.

Our showing of $19.75 suits is unequaled for style, variety and quality. Many new fur trimmed models.

Party and evening dresses in the daintiest, most exclusive styles, each with an air all its own; $8.75 to $65.

THINK!

God gave us our brains for thought, for reasoning.

Can a man ALWAYS give $150 worth for $50?

OCCASIONALLY, yes, but as a steady thing, NO. And he insults your intelligence by thinking you will fall for such claims.

This store will never be a party to catch sales and large figures in its advertising.

BUT—We do guarantee to have better values ALL THE TIME at our regular prices, than the store with the perpetual sale habit. Compare!

PLEADS GUILTY; GOES TO PEN.

Man Who Shot Ex-Mayor Wood at Warsaw, Causes Surprise.

Warsaw, Ind., Oct. 6.—The trial of Ezekiel Evans, charged with attempting to kill Former Mayor A. G. Wood, of this city last summer by shooting, came to a sudden stop Tuesday afternoon when the defense decided to withdraw his plea of not guilty and enter a plea of guilty. Evans was sentenced by the court to serve two to fourteen years in the penitentiary and was assessed a fine of fifty dollars. The sudden ending of the case came as quite a surprise; however, all who had followed the evidence conceded that the defendant had but slight chances for acquittal.

When Ezekiel Evans, on trial in the circuit court for attempting to murder Captain A. G. Wood, took the stand Tuesday morning all doubt as to his sanity was dispelled. Evans was one of the best witnesses that has taken the stand and told of the different persons for whom he had worked in the past five years and what he received from each. When asked in the cross-examination if he ever attended church, he stated that he often attended and read the Bible. He further stated that he did this because he believed that every man should attend church.

IN COURT OVER TOMBSTONE.

Blackford County People Would Save Price of a Marker.

Bluffton, Ind., Oct. 6.—Walter Haddon and Edith Hartman, of Blackford county, were in court here yesterday, opposing the petition of A. T. Merriman, administrator of the estate of their sister, Mary Haddon, for an order from the court authorizing the expenditure of $250 for a marker over the dead girl's grave. Miss Haddon made her home with Mr. and Mrs. Merriman for some time before her death and was buried on their family lot. Her brother and sister set out that their parents are buried in a Warren cemetery and that a tombstone has been erected for them bearing a blank place for an inscription for the deceased daughter. Instead of having the money spent for a monument they desire that the body be buried on the family's lot at Warren.

MIXED UP IN ACCIDENT.

Montpelier, Ind. Oct. 6.—An automobile, motorcycle and horse and buggy figured in an accident, on Warren avenue, Saturday afternoon. All were headed towards this city. The motorcycle was passing the buggy when the automobile struck the buggy, throwing it around so that it struck the motorcycle rider and threw him to the ground. The automobile went into the ditch but Burson, riding the motorcycle, was slightly bruised and the motorcycle was damaged where the buggy struck it. The automobile was driven by Homer Pontius, of Geneva.

MONTPELIER NOW SALOONLESS.

Montpelier, Ind., Oct. 6.—Montpelier is now without a saloon, the last four having closed their doors in obedience to the option election last May. They cannot legally open their doors again until two years have passed and not then unless the people of the city vote wet in another election.

With Montpelier dry, the last saloons in Blackford county have closed their doors. Hartford City voted dry some time ago and was followed by Montpelier, and to crown the success of the drys in this county, Harrison township was voted dry Saturday evening.

CONFERENCE AT ROANOKE.

Roanoke, Ind., Oct. 6.—The Indiana state conference of the Brethren church is in progress here, the sessions being held in the Brethren church in Roanoke. A large number of delegates are present and the registration is expected to reach 250 by the end of the week. The majority of the Brethren churches of the state are represented. Delegates to the conference are being housed among the members of the congregation and fed in the basement of the church, the church women doing the cooking. Sessions of the conference will last until Friday, the last session being held Friday morning.

COMMISSIONERS TAKE A LOOK.

Albion, Ind., Oct. 6.—After hearing the arguments of attorneys for the G. R. & I. railroad and for the people, relative to the lease of the Sylvan lake water rights, the county commissioners decided to visit Rome City and personally inspect the lake involved. The board went to Rome City yesterday and made the investigation. The county auditor and county attorney accompanied the board. The board resumed its session here in the afternoon, but action on the problem will probably be delayed until the November meeting.

CHILD DIES OF INJURIES.

Goshen, Ind., Oct. 6.—Eugene Egner, four-year-old son of Charles Egner, residing in this city, and who was shot in the left leg by his six-year-old brother Sunday afternoon as they played with a shotgun which they found at the home of Michael Anglemyer, where they were taken by their parents during a visit, died in Goshen hospital at 6 o'clock last evening. The lad's leg was amputated soon after the accident. His left arm and hand were also injured.

INTERURBAN EMPLOYE HURT.

Decatur, Ind., Oct. 6.—A. C. Jeffery, electrician for the Fort Wayne & Springfield company, was the victim of a painful injury that will keep him from his work for several days. The accident occurred at the car barns of the company where Mr. Jeffery was assisting in the changing of some car wheels from one truck to another one. A heavy wheel was being rolled on the barn tracks when it slipped from there and the sharp flange caught his left foot almost entirely severing the big toe from it.

AGED MAN RECOVERS SIGHT.

Bluffton, Ind., Oct. 6.—To have been blind for several years and then to have his eyesight restored through an operation on his eyes was the wonderful experience of Joseph Unrue, 81 years old, of Warren. The operation which gave back to Mr. Unrue the invaluable sight of his eyes was performed at the Grant county hospital by Dr. Joseph Maurer, of Marion, and Dr. Sprowl, of Warren.

ARRESTED FOR BOOTLEGGING.

Charles Gay, Guy Olinger and George Clark, all bona fide residents of North Manchester, were placed in the Wabash county jail by Chief of Police Bolte and Sheriff Coble yesterday after affidavits had been filed against the above named men for selling liquor without a license upon affidavits filed by Marshal Strickler of that place. All three men will be arraigned in Mayor Wilson's court.

MAYOR GOSSOM FILES APPEAL.

Terre Haute Official Will Contest Impeachment by Council.

Terre Haute, Ind., Oct. 6.—Final steps in the impeachment case of James M. Gossom as mayor were taken yesterday when Chalmers M. Hamill and Frank S. Rawley, attorneys for Gossom, filed an appeal in the circuit court from the decision of the city council, which voted 6 to 3 to unseat the mayor.

The pleadings in the appeal declare the action to remove Gossom was to be null and void because the council lacked the necessary two-thirds vote of its entire membership of ten. A bond to cover the costs of the appeal was filed by Mayor Gossom and it was approved by Judge Chas. L. Pulliam. The bond was signed by John L. Smith, James Luther and James M. Gossom.

THE SENTINEL'S DAILY SCRIPTURE READING.

Exodus 12:1-13.

1 And the Lord spake unto Moses and Aaron in the land of Egypt, saying,

2 This month shall be unto you the beginning of months: it shall be the first month of the year to you.

3 Speak ye unto all the congregation of Israel, saying, In the tenth day of this month they shall take to them every man a lamb, according to the house of their fathers, a lamb for an house:

4 And if the household be too little for the lamb, let him and his neighbour next unto his house take it according to the number of the souls; every man according to his eating shall make your count for the lamb.

5 Your lamb shall be without blemish, a male of the first year: ye shall take it out from the sheep, or from the goats:

6 And ye shall keep it up until the fourteenth day of the same month: and the whole assembly of the congregation of Israel shall kill it in the evening.

7 And they shall take of the blood, and strike it on the two side posts and the upper door post of the houses, wherein they shall eat it.

8 And they shall eat the flesh in that night, roast with fire, and unleavened bread; and with bitter herbs they shall eat it.

9 Eat not of it raw, nor sodden at all with water, but roast with fire; his head with his legs, and with the purtenance thereof.

10 And ye shall let nothing of it remain until the morning; and that which remaineth of it until the morning ye shall burn with fire.

11 And thus shall ye eat it; with your loins girded, your shoes on your feet, and your staff in your hand; and ye shall eat it in haste; it is the Lord's passover.

12 For I will pass through the land of Egypt this night, and will smite all the firstborn in the land of Egypt, both man and beast; and against all the gods of Egypt I will execute judgment: I am the Lord.

13 And the blood shall be to you for a token upon the houses where ye are: and when I see the blood, I will pass over you, and the plague shall not be upon you to destroy you, when I smite the land of Egypt.

Closing Chicago on Sunday.

The order of Mayor Thompson for the closing of the saloons and the bars of hotels and clubs in Chicago on Sunday has plainly given that city a shock that pales the performance of the ordinary earthquake into insignificance by comparison. For more than forty years such a thing has been unheard of in that city. Since the days of the big fire the liquor shops in Chicago have enjoyed untrammeled freedom of operation on the Sabbath day as on any other day of the week, and during every moment of that time they have openly defied a state law on the Illinois statute books which expressly forbade it. To now be compelled to obey the law as others are and have been compelled to obey it is nothing less than outrage in the view of the men whom the new order will curb. They are running about in circles, shrieking with pain and altogether conveying the impression that their heart's blood is about to be shed. They have simply been in the saddle so long that they resent any interference as impertinence and they act as though fully expecting freedom to proceed to shriek at the new order of things. But while the liquor men, under one guise or another, are making all the noise, what of the view of the law-abiding element in Chicago? It must be a positive one and it must endorse the position taken by Mayor Thompson in performing his sworn duty under the law. Is not its desire to see law enforcement entitled to quite as much consideration as is the desire of the other element to break the law? When the air clears a bit we think it will be shown that the real sentiment of Chicago will be found upholding the mayor, and it will be well if the incident demonstrates that no city is big enough to ruthlessly trample state laws and do it indefinitely.

Mr. Cline's Announcement.

Congressman Cyrus Cline has made formal announcement of his candidacy for renomination by the democrats of the Twelfth district at the primary to be held in March next, and while it has been generally conceded that Mr. Cline would again be a candidate, the formal declaration of his entrance into the race will nevertheless be received with much interest by the voters of the district.

The Angola man's record in congress is one to which he may point with justifiable pride. He has been assiduous in his devotion to the interests of his constituents in every county in the district, and has given to the position not only close attention but a very high order of ability. Moreover, the rank he has attained by virtue of his term of service in the house has placed him in a position to be increasingly useful to his district.

The newest assurances of Count von Bernstorff make it clear that Germany accepts the American view of the Arabic case, that it disavows the action of the submarine commander in making the attack and is willing to make such reparation as is possible to the families of those Americans who lost life in the torpedoing of the vessel, at the same time expressing regret for the occurrence. In all ways the German attitude in the matter is now gratifying and doubtless complete adjustment will soon be reached. Meanwhile those determined critics of the president who invariably believe he should have taken some other course than that which he pursues in meeting the steadily recurring problems will doubtless demonstrate their resourcefulness by hunting up something else upon which to advise him.

Speaking before the realty men, General Agent S. K. Blair called attention to the value of railways to Fort Wayne, a matter upon which too much emphasis can scarcely be laid. Fort Wayne is notably fortunate in the matter of its railways, and they have been of incalculable benefit in city building. Mr. Blair's suggestion that still others ought to be given assistance and encouragement in reaching Fort Wayne is one which is so important that it should command immediate and favorable attention.

Attacks upon street cars during the present transportation clash in Fort Wayne have not, as a matter of fact, been especially severe, but that they have occurred at all is regrettable. Adjustment of the difficulty is not going to be brought about in that fashion, and the best interests of all concerned—and that includes the general public—will be served by fairness and law and order.

Glaring headlights have resulted in another auto smash near Fort Wayne. Just how many more will be required before we conclude we have had enough and proceed with the sort of regulation that will put an end to the offending?

VOICES ROUND THE WORLD.

Using world's fairs as landmarks of progress, the Panama-Pacific exposition will be identified with nothing more marvelous than the instantaneous transmission of the human voice partly by wire and partly by radio from New York to San Francisco and thence to Honolulu. Of the possibilities of this discovery little need be added to the remark of Mr. Carty, one of the inventors, who on the Pacific coast maintained a conversation with a reporter for the World in this city—that he had had "better results when talking across nearly 3,000 miles of air" than Prof. Bell achieved when he first projected his voice only a few feet over a wire in the 70s. Almost the same success was had between New York and the Sandwich islands, a distance of 4,800 miles.

It is no doubt true, as Mr. Carty says, that this invention will never displace the existing telephone or wireless telegraphy, but the demonstration already made shows that it must have wide and highly important uses. If men sitting at their desks in New York and Honolulu can speak to each other, oceans and deserts, beleaguered cities and hostile territories, even to the greatest of terrestrial distances, will no longer offer serious obstructions to oral communication. To say nothing of war at sea, for most of the purposes of commerce and life saving the spoken word may now carry further and more distinctly than the mystic symbols of the wireless, with fewer physical limitations than attach to that system.

The secret of this accomplishment is to be given only to the United States navy. Probably at no distant day mankind will have the full benefit of it, but meantime it will serve admirably as a patriotic contribution of science to natonal defense.

ELECTIONS IN 1915.

(Indiana Times).

Electoral campaigns this year are to be few. Five states will elect governors in 1915. Massachusetts, Kentucky, Maryland, Mississippi and New Mexico are on the list.

One of the outstanding features in politics in various states is the confidence of the republicans. In some places, notably in Pennsylvania, where the city election in Philadelphia is full of interest, it is being suggested that the republicans are over-confident. The success of Senator Boies Penrose last year in the state of Pennsylvania, apparently has given the Philadelphia republican organization the idea it can win regardless of merit or deserts. Confidence in the case of the Philadelphia republicans verges on recklessness.

Massachusetts has had five successive years of democratic governors, but with the reported swindling of the progressive party in that state the republicans are understood to be exceedingly hopeful that they will win this year with McCall. The democrats are just as confident they will re-elect Gov. Walsh. The progressives have a candidate in the field in the Bay state.

Kentucky democrats seem to be in a position to claim Kentucky, though republicans are planning to make a desperate fight for that state. The Kentucky issue is state-wide prohibition, and the democratic nominee, Stanley, is a local option man, who defeated a prohibition opponent in the primary.

SOCIAL SESSION.

Members of Old Fort council, No. 192, Royal League, their families and members of the Lady Wayne council enjoyed a progressive pedro party and a social session Tuesday evening. Supreme Scribe Charles E. Piper and Advisory Scribe Charles Darling were present and addressed the council on the good of the order. Miss Mary Brown rendered a solo, "The Night of Gladness," which was greatly appreciated.

Neighbor Told Her Cure for Lumbago

Rheumatism and lumbago are awful things and cause great pain and misery, but Foley Kidney Pills can rout them.

Mrs. G. H. Eveland, Duncan Mills, Ill., writes the following letter: "I was stricken down with lumbago and was unable to turn myself in bed. A neighbor brought me a half bottle of Foley Kidney Pills, and said she had been similarly afflicted and that they had helped her. So I tried them and was completely relieved by the use of two or three bottles. I have had splendid success with them and have never known them to fail. I most heartily recommend Foley Kidney Pills."

NEW GERMAN STROKE WORRY TO ENGLAND

Finding Wood Pulp Efficient in Making High Explosives.

London, Sept. 25.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press).—The question whether the Germans are finding wood pulp an efficient substitute for cotton in the manufacture of high explosives has been investigated by the "Paper Maker," which has consulted several experts.

Sir William Ramsay says: "I quite agree that it is highly probable that the Germans are making nitro-lignose from wood fibre. This is the traged of our always being too late. I quite agree that we should declare wood pulp contraband but I hesitate to start another campaign; it takes so much time and energy.

"The Germans have plenty of wood; their country is hugely aforested. As to the relative efficacy of wood pulp and cotton, I am not expert enough to answer that. All I can say is that I am told by French experts that the ballistic power of nitro-lignose is not equal to that of gun-cotton. But Krupp is turning out any number of guns of all sorts, and, doubtless, they are standardized, as regards sights and chambers, for nitro-lignose."

Another expert, Walter F. Reid, sees no value in declaring wood pulp contraband, for "Germany has such large areas of forest containing suitable woods that the present rate of consumption of explosives could be maintained for years without importation of wood pulp." He adds that one of the most popular smokeless powders has been made of wood pulp for more than 30 years.

Clayton Beadle, a third expert, holds a rather different view, saying the German pulp mills could not produce a product that would reach the requirements of explosives for long, adding "to suddenly drop cotton and switch to something new must spell disaster or at any rate, it would be a most serious handicap, and it has not et been proved that it can be done."

KIPLING'S SON IS SLAIN.

Young Man Falls While Fighting in English Army Ranks.

London, Oct. 6.—John Kipling, of the Irish guards, only son of Rudyard Kipling, is reported in the latest casualty list as "missing and believed to have been killed." He was eighteen years old.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR, THICK, WAVY, FREE FROM DANDRUFF

Draw a moist cloth through hair and double its beauty at once.

Save your hair! Dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Immediate?—Yes! Certain?—that's the joy of it. Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after an application of Danderine. Also try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt or excessive oil, and in just a few moments you have doubled the beauty of your hair. A delightful surprise awaits those whose hair has been neglected or is scraggy, faded, dry, brittle or thin. Besides beautifying the hair, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair, but what will please you most will be after a few week's use, when you see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp.

Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating, stimulating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

You can surely have pretty, charming, lustrous hair, and lots of it, if you will just get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and try it as directed.—Advertisement.

ANOTHER BASEBALL SUIT FILED HERE

Bill Essick Wants Wheeling to Pay for Some Players Bought.

Another baseball suit growing out of affairs in the Central baseball league has been filed in the local courts, William E. Essick, owner of the Grand Rapids team and franchise, bringing action in the superior court against the Wheeling Athletic association, owner of the Wheeling team, and Louis Heilbriner, president of the league, as trustee, on complaint in attachment and garnishment proceedings to recover $350. The complaint sets out that the plaintiff and four other persons and associations on March 3, 1915, and prior thereto, were entitled to the services of certain baseball players, which were sold to the Wheeling team for $1,600, payment to be made on or before July 15. Payment was to be made to Louis Heilbrner, president of the league, and the money distributed to the five persons entitled to it. There has been nothing paid, says the complaint, and the plaintiff wants his share with interest. President Heilbroner is made party to the suit because he is custodian of a certified check for $2,000 deposited with him by the Wheeling club as a "guaranty that it would meet its obligations." Out of this guaranty deposit the plaintiff expects to get its pay. Essick himself was sued in the circuit court some weeks ago by Bert Annis, of South Bend, who demanded pay for the Grand Rapids team, of which Annis formerly was owner.

Dager Found Guilty.

Judge Eggeman in the circuit court has found George Dager guilty of obtaining money by false pretenses but has reserved sentence until Friday that the defendant may file a motion for a new trial, a course he is expected to take. The charge was that Dager defrauded Mrs. Leulla Ball Thurber in a real estate transaction that involved a trade of properties. The affidavit alleged grand larceny and false pretenses, the state going to trial on the latter count. The state was permitted to introduce evidence showing that Dager had defrauded Mrs. Elizabeth Kellerman in a real estate deal. The state was represented by Prosecutor H. H. Hilgemann and Deputy Frank R. Dulin, while Emrick & Emrick and R. B. Dreibelbiss appeared for the defendant. Dager is a well known real estate factor.

WILL NOT REVOKE WARTELL LICENSE

Mayor Does Not Believe Auction Sale Case Warrants It.

Mayor Hosey has practically decided that he will not revoke the auctioneer's license taken out by Benjamin Wartell, a jeweler and pawnbroker, at 928 Calhoun street.

Charges were brought against Wartell before Mayor Hosey, alleging that he had misrepresented goods sold at auction in his store and that an auctioneer's license taken out by Wartell for one auctioneer had been transferred to another auctioneer, whereas there was no authority for transferring such licenses. Mayor Hosey gave a hearing on the charges Tuesday and reserved his decision. Claude E. Brown, Nicholas Kramer and Edward Krider were witnesses. Brown said he had bought a watch which was not as represented, as he found later. Kramer also bought a watch the same evening and later returned to Wartell and protested that the article was not the kind he had been told it was when put up for sale and the purchase price was refunded. Wartell stated that Brown had never made complaint to him and had not demanded his money. The license in question shows that it was transferred in the city comptroller's office from the first holder to the second at Wartell's request. Mayor Hosey holds that Wartell had a right to suppose the transferred license was valid and he will refuse to revoke it as well as refuse to apply the fine of $100 asked for in the complaint. There is nothing in the ordinance relating to auctioneers' licenses that forbids a transfer. Brown will doubtless be able to get his money back if he demands it. Mayor Hosey believes that the determination of cases of alleged fraud should be by the regularly constituted courts and not by himself.

PREPARING FOR DEDICATION.

Meeting in Progress With Chairman Hartman of Committee.

A meeting of the committee in charge of arrangements for the formal dedication of the new Harmar school is in progress in the office of Councilman-at-Large Jacob Hartman, the chairman, Wednesday afternoon, and it is expected that a date for the affair will be chosen and other steps taken to insure a proper celebration of the event. Chairman Hartman has appointed the following chairmen of several sub-committees to forward the arrangements:

Committee on Music—Charles J. Steiss, park board secretary.

Committee on Speakers—A. L. Randall, member of the school board.

Committee on Reception—A. H. Keller, councilman from the Seventh ward.

If a day other than Saturday is chosen for the dedication it is probable that the Harmar school will be dismissed during the afternoon in order that the building maya be thrown open for public inspection. The entire Eighth ward is interested in the celebration, which promises to be a most interesting occasion.

COMMITTEE TO FIND OUT.

At a meeting of about a dozen councilmen and other officials and employes of the city in the council chamber, Tuesday evening, a committee was appointed to interview those in the municipal service to ascertain their views as to the organization of a Municipal Efficiency club, as proposed by Councilman J. B. Mills, of the Sixth ward. The committee consists of William A. Bayer, president of the city council; A. L. Randall, of the Fort Wayne school board, and Councilman-at-Large Jacob Hartman, with Councilman Mills, originator of the movement, as an ex-officio member. Another meeting will be called to hear a report.

MONUMENT COMMISSION MEETS.

The Anthony Wayne monument commission, created by the city council, is holding a meeting Wednesday afternoon in the historical room in the court house, having been called by President D. N. Foster. The commission's meeting is made more interesting by the presence of Charles J. Milligan, of Chicago, a sculptor, who has submitted two models for the proposed monument to General Wayne, and came here for a hearing. Colonel Foster, during a recent visit to Washington, procured photographs of half a score of the most famous monuments of military men that adorn the squares and circles of the national capital.

THE DEATHS.

FRANKE.

Mrs. Sophia Franke, the wife of Richard Franke, of 2606 South Calhoun street, died Tuesday at Sawyer, Wisconsin, where she was visiting with her daughter. The message announcing the sad news did not state the cause of her death. Mrs. Franke left two weeks ago on an automobile trip into Wisconsin and at that time was apparently in the best of health.

However, several days ago the members of the family received word that she was dangerously ill, but they heard nothing more until they received the shocking news Tuesday evening that she had passed away.

Mrs. Franke was a life long resident of Fort Wayne and a sister to ex-Trustee Henry Branning. Death came at the age of 58 years. The deceased was a member of Emmaus Lutheran church and was well known in the city. Besides the husband she is survived by the following children: Mrs. Woebster, of Sawyer, Wis.; Mrs. William Baade, Sophia Miller, Emma and Henry Miller, of this city. Miss Sophia and Henry left to accompany the remains to this city.

ZUBER.

Mrs. Mina Zuber, widow of John Zuber, who died ten years ago, passed away at the St. Joseph hospital Wednesday morning, where she had been a patient for the past six months suffering from a stroke of paralysis. She formerly resided at 2900 Reynolds street. The deceased was a member of St. Andrew's Catholic church and of the Rosary and Altar societies of the same congregation.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Regitta Lipkin, and three brothers, Joseph Friedmann, of this city, and two who reside in the east.

WILL REVISE HIS BID.

Contractor Max Irmscher, who submitted the only bid for rebuilding the No. 3 waterworks pumping station on South Broadway, will revise his proposal to exclude certain items, such as the plumbing, which the city prefers to do itself. His bid for the work was $1,978. The board had a meeting Wednesday morning and decided to postpone final action until Thursday morning, when Mr. Irmscher will probably be awarded the contract.

will cause them to change their attitude.

New men are being employed every day with the promise of permanent employment and by Saturday the board will be filled and regular runs will be assigned, according to J. J. Brennan, superintendent of transportation.

"Not a single man is wavering," declared Chairman Didier, of the press committee of the street car men's union. "No man will return to work as individuals. It must be all of us or none of us." This statement was sanctioned by other trainmen who heard him make it.

No Cause for Complaint.

"Everything is going along nicely," declared Joseph C. Colgan, member of the general executive board of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employes. "We have no cause for complaint with the outlook."

Some talk was heard around the Federation of Labor headquarters, Wednesday, of a sympathetic strike, the statement being made that the company's linemen are ready to walk out at any time the car men request it.

Very few people are riding, although the cars are being run on regular schedule on all lines.

Question of Jurisdiction.

Joseph C. Colgan, J. E. Hooper and C. B. Huston, the three men cited for contempt in the federal court at Indianapolis, returned to Fort Wayne late Tuesday night. Late Tuesday afternoon Judge A. B. Anderson announced that he will enter the plea of the attorneys representing the three men as to whether the court has jurisdiction in the Fort Wayne street carmen's case on October 27. There seems to be some doubt on this point. In the event the court finds that it has jurisdiction the hearing will be heard on October 29. Attorney W. H. Latta, representing the United States Mortgage and Trust company, declared Tuesday that further citations would probably be issued within the next day or two.

Barrett is Answered.

The following statement was issued Wednesday by the officials of the Federation of Labor: "We see that Mr. Barrett says the strike is already settled, but there can be no settlement with organized labor until the men return to work."

More Windows Smashed.

Bricks, stones and beer bottles were hurled at passing cars on the second night that the street cars were operated after dark with the result that window panes were smashed in five cars, but luckily no one was hurt. The aforesaid missiles were hurled at two Huffman street cars, an East Creighton avenue car, a Pontiac car and a West Main street car. A beer bottle was used on the last named car, it being thrown from an automobile near Cherry street.

The throwing of the beer bottle was reported to the police and Henry Vollreido, of High street, was taken to police station, but was later released when he denied any knowledge of the thouble, declaring that his automobile did not pass a city car while he was on Main street and that he had not even seen one.

The bombardment took place between 8 and 9:30 o'clock and by 10:30 o'clock all the cars had been taken in and no attempt was made to operate after that hour.

Will Assign Runs.

Announcement was made Tuesday evening by Superintendent of Transportation J. J. Brennan that on Saturday or Sunday the new men now operating the cars would be assigned regular runs, and will be given permanent jobs. Many of them he says are desirous of moving their families here and will make this city their future homes.

"We have held them off, keeping the jobs for our old men," Mr. Brennan stated, "but the old men have shown no disposition to return and we cannot afford to hold the places open longer."

Many Accidents.

Several accidents occurred Tuesday. A car on the Huffman line collided with an automobile driven by Chester Barrett, 614 Archer avenue, the running gear of the machine being damaged and a rear wheel smashed. Paul Bunch, residing on Beach street, reported to the police that his automobile was run into by city car No. 124 near the court house on Main street. Many other minor accidents were reported.

long line of voters there and said the voting was very slow.

"John Banks was very active for the democrats," continued the former mayor. "I told Banks I got mine once and he'd better quit and get away."

"A mild form of intimidation," remarked M. A. Ryan, of the defense and the witness smiled.

Banks is a colored worker and a co-defendant.

Mr. Bookwalter said he saw five men there who did not belong to the precinct, that were active. He said he did not know them, but added that the "chairman of the gang" seemed to know me very well. He said he did not know William Pettit, who testified yesterday that this precinct was the scene of the activities of his "wrecking crew."

Causes Frequent Laughter.

Mr. Bookwalter frequently convulsed the attorneys and spectators with laughter by his replies. He said he saw Mayor Bell at the precinct.

"Mayor Bell was within five feet of me once," the witness said, "but he didn't see me. We were not speaking that day."

Ryan asked the witness, on cross examination, if he had not been in politics for some time and had not made it a business to be a candidate at times.

"I never made it a business, but rather regarded it as a diversion from business," replied Mr. Bookwalter.

"Then you diverted from your business several times?"

"Yes, so often that it almost became a habit."

It was brought out that the precinct is much larger than the law allows and that the voters are about half colored and half white. The witness said it is "one of the battlefields of politics in Indianapolis."

State's Objection Sustained.

The defense then sought to show that there had been lines of voters in the precinct for years, but the objection of the state was sustained after lengthy arguments by both sides.

Mr. Bookwalter said the majority of the colored men in the precinct were considered republicans.

"Is it not true that the democratic challengers in that precinct would necessarily have to exert more activity to prevent illegal voting than the republican challengers," Ryan asked.

"Well, we probably wouldn't lose, if one slipped through," said the witness with a smile. Mr. Bookwalter said he frequently got too close to the polling place and was ordered away as often as any one. He said he apologized, for he knew he was doing wrong. The witness said he did not see the police strike any one or use their clubs. He added that the police stayed farther from the polls than he did. He said he noted Mayor Bell when he came up, "as the mayor of Indianapolis is always an exhibit." He added that he had been "on exhibition some." The witness said he did not see the mayor do anything that he regarded as violation of the law.

"Did you see Mr. Bell threaten any one?" asked Ryan.

"He certainly did not threaten any one. He was smiling. He seemed to anticipate something that didn't happen," replied the witness.

"I think so myself," retorted Ryan. Both were evidently referring to the victory of the republicans in the election which it was believed would be won by the democrats.

MALLOY'S 1018 Calhoun Street

Society

October always starts things going socially as well as in club study circles and the numerous card playing clubs have already begun to make things lively. Many of these clubs have been organized for years and as quite often they are named for day of the week on which they meet, there is sometimes a confusion of what club is meant, when its name only is heard. Among the oldest of these card clubs are the Tuesday Pedro club, the Wednesday Pedro club and the Friday Bridge club. The first of these will hold its first regular meeting next week with Mrs. O. C. Leggett. The first of the Wednesday Pedro club gatherings will be one for the husbands of members to enjoy and will be held on Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Vesey with dinner as the first part of the entertainment. The Friday Bridge club gathered for the first time this season last Friday with Mrs. Margaret S. Olds. The honor guest at the time was Mrs. Charles Guild, of Burlington, Ia. This club was organized about a dozen years ago and of the original eight members, three married and live elsewhere and another member moved away from town soon after the club was formed. Then there are the Tuesday Afternoon bridge club which was entertained this week by Mrs. Edith Andrews, of Lakeside, the Tuesday Auction bridge club, which started off yesterday, too, with Mrs. E. F. Sites as hostess. Another club of fairly good age is the W. D. K. Pedro club, composed of married people and already planning a series of merry evenings with dinner as a beginning each time. The president is Mrs. F. Y. Gross. The Inter Nos card club organized so long ago that the early members, Mrs. J. G. Fratis, and Mrs. J. V. Reul, are not quite sure what year it began. This club has summer meetings as well as a winter series and the last of the warm weather gatherings will be held with Mrs. William Sherbondy on Friday evening. Two weeks later the winter series of meetings will begin. The M. V. is a bridge club eight years old that consists of eight ladies who meet on Tuesday afternoons. They met yesterday with Mrs. Charles Rahus, of Fairfield avenue. A number of small clubs go by names such as the Jolly Eight, the Social Twelve, besides many clubs that are known outside of the members by initial letters of the real name. The South Side Tennis club organized a long time ago, finally became a dinner bridge club with fortnightly meetings which extend all through the winter season. The Friday evening dinner bridge is a club of married people who have not yet started their semi-monthly gatherings. These clubs are some of the oldest of the long list of clubs organized purely for sociability.

Two beautiful parties were given by Mrs. Herbert J. Grosvenor this week, at her home in Suttenfield street. The first was on Monday afternoon, when fifty ladies enjoyed a game of bridge in honor of two visiting guests of the hostess, Mrs. Dugan and Mrs. Schultz, of Richmond. Very beautiful arrangements of flowers, principally gladioli blossoms, were a special delight as well as the excellence of the menu at the luncheon after the game. On Tuesday afternoon Mrs. Grosvenor entertained the "Bowser ladies" at an informal sewing party with decorations and other appointments similar to those of the previous day.

The club consists of Agnes Jauch, Phyllis Mettler, Martha Berghoff, Margaret Reinhart, Juliette Nussbaum, Marie Brink and Gladys Streicher.

A very lovely party of Wednesday evening was given in honor of Miss Hazelhel Tiffany, who is to be married this month, by Misses Lela Fetters and Katherine Clemens, who united their efforts. The rooms were decorated with flowers, hearts and cupids and a centerpiece of asters for the honor guest and smaller one as favors for the rest of the company. The guests were members of the T. J. S. club. On Monday evening Miss Tiffany was given a shower of gifts at the home of Mrs. Gertrude Kruckeberg, of 1342 East Lewis street, who was assisted by Miss Estelle Bennigan. The company was not a large one. All the decorations and supper appointments were in pink and white.

There were present Mr. and Mrs. Claybourne Reed, Mr. and Mrs. T. L. Craig, Mrs. Nancy McClellan, Walter D. Craig, Mrs. J. E. Craig, Master Harold Cothrell, Master John A. Craig and little Elizabeth Fleming. All enjoyed a happy time.

Miss Josephine Ertle was honored by a surprise party at her home in East Williams street, on Saturday night. Music, progressive rhum and other contests were the chief amusements. Prizes were won by Miss Marie Graney and Jack Sears and Roy Wysong. A luncheon was served and proved one of the several details of enjoyment. On the table was a birthday cake ornamented with pink and white candles. Pink baskets of nuts were favors. A toast was written on each card and they were read during the time the guests were eating. There were present Misses Mary Pembroke, Bernadette Mohl, Agnes Brown, Sadie Marsh, Bonnie Petgen, Helen Pembroke, Marie Graney, Ella Fawcett, Hiltrude Mungovan and Messrs. Roy Wysong, Frank Jerles, Mearl Thomson, William Miller, Paul Brockmeyer, Erwin Zollinger and Jack Sears.

Brenizer-Joly.

A beautiful wedding that took place at the Cathedral on Tuesday morning was that of Miss Bertha Joly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Joly, of Lake avenue, and Mr. Clarence Brenizer, a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Brenizer, of Winter street. Rev. Father Kelly officiated at the nuptial mass at 9 o'clock. Miss Isabel Roy and Mr. Frank Hoy were attendants and Messrs. Leland Parrot and Virgil Roy were the ushers. The church was prettily decorated with palms and flowering plants. The bride wore a handsome gown of embroidered net hung over silk. She wore a veil caught to her hair with a wreath of bride rosebuds and her bouquet was of roses that have a faint touch of color. The bridesmaid was dressed in pink charmeuse and she held pink carnations. After the service, at the church, the bridal party drove to the home of the bride's parents where a breakfast was served to sixty-five relatives and friends. The bride and groom have begun housekeeping at once in their newly furnished home at 701 Madison street. They will be at home to their many friends after October 15. Miss Nina Brenizer, of Spencerville, O., J. McCormick, of Dixon, O., and Mrs. Gray of Convoy, O., were out of town guests.

AT THE MAJESTIC.

"Don't Lie to Your Wife"—Majestic Again Tonight.

Campbell B. Casad, author of "Don't Lie to Your Wife," the three act farce produced by C. S. Primrose, which will come to the Majestic again tonight, is a widely known and versatile newspaper man, and the incidents of the play are nearly all taken from real life during his experiences as a reporter on one of the largest New York dailies, viz., the New York Herald. Charles Dickson, who assisted in writing the farce, is the author of "Mistakes Will Happen," "Incog," "The Three Twins" and others of like caliber. Dave Lewis, who also wrote parts of the farce, has had long experience in the musical comedy and farce comedy field, and with three names like the above to conjure with, it is very probable that a high class piece of laughing workmanship has been developed.

Joseph Santley, Once Our Boy Hero, at the Majestic Saturday.

Do you remember the old days when you used to thrill with delight at "Billy, the Kid" and "Arizona Joe" and "From Rags to Riches?" And do you remember the curly headed youngster who used to be the hero of those "ten, twent', thirt'" melodramas? Well, would you believe that the same youngster is none other than our present matinee idol, Joseph Santley, the star of the rollicking musical revue "All Over Town," coming to the Majestic theater for two performances, matinee and evening, Saturday.

Santley was three years old when he made his first appearance on the stage in "Billy, the Kid." "I defended Laurette Taylor through four gory acts," he says. "Yes, it was all great fun, and I really believe that I am not the only one who regrets that the days of the old melodrama have passed."

AT THE TEMPLE.

Temple Audience After Laugh With "Third Party" Attend Reception.

It was a big afternoon for the Temple addicts yesterday, as after laughing themselves to the borderland of hysterics at the absurdities in the farce comedy, "The Third Party," practically the entire audience attended the informal reception held by the Temple Players on the stage. Men, women and children alike attend these weekly receptions at which everyone gets a bit better acquainted with these artists who are contributing immeasurably to relieving the tedium of many people's otherwise humdrum lives. They are held each Tuesday afternoon.

"The Third Party" starts a laugh with the rising of the first curtain and closes in a roar, as fire is discovered in the room which has been assigned Rosamond Gaythorne, the pretty actress and "the third party." As the smoke rolls out onto the stage Rosamond, thinking only of saving her clothes, pitches into the room and is carried screaming and kicking to safety by every male member of the cast, except Colonel Redwood (Warren Hoffman), who, storming and fuming about the room, peels off his coat and laboriously dons a pair of white kid gloves as he shouts incessantly "Save the women," for all the world like the new policeman who shouted when he saw a fight start, "Send for the police."

AT KEITH PALACE

SPECIAL CHILDREN'S MATINEE.

New Palace Will Be Scene of Merry Party Saturday.

A merry party will be held at the New Palace Saturday afternoon when the Alexander Kids will hold a romp on the stage with the children of Fort Wayne as their guests. A special matinee for the youngsters is being arranged and after the usual performance the kiddies will be invited to attend the reception on the stage and meet the clever little girls who are proving one of the week's hits on the Keith program.

The New Palace entertainment this week is a splendid lure for the vaudeville lover as it is a combination of "lots of different things," including Miss Eleanor Gordon's smart little sketch, "The Discovery," a mysterious comedy gem; the Gladiators, a team of athletes whose prodigious strength and remarkable physical development are amazing, and many others.

AT THE JEFFERSON.

"The Fatal Card," the great dramatic triumph by C. Haddon Chambers and B. C. Stephenson, the latest Paramount picture, remains at the Jefferson again today.

No better or more complete a dramatic production has ever been seen on the screen. John Mason in the famous characterization of George Forrester, later known as Marrable, presents a psychological character-study that is simply perfect, while Hazel Dawn, in the role of his daughter, displays the delightful charm and finely developed dramatic power she has indicated in previous Famous Players productions.

Ably directed by James Kirkwood, every element of dramatic interest or power in the original drama has been carefully preserved. Companion picture, Pathe News.

Mrs. Harry A. Perfect was called to Huntington this morning by the death of her mother, Mrs. Wilkerson. Although not in good health for some time, Mrs. Wilkerson's death was wholly unexpected.

WOLF AND DESSAUER HOLD GRAND OPENING

A crowd thronged the Wolf & Dessauer store at its annual fall opening last evening that certainly was flattering and that there will be another one tonight is assured. The store presents a most attractive appearance with its decoration of autumn leaves and real chrysanthemums while the good-looking apparel for women and children, the handsomely dressed living models who are displaying the goods and the fine appearing employes of the store all combine in making the opening one that is metropolitan in every way. Music by the Elks band is a further attraction. Tonight, Indiana's beauty, chosen to represent this state at the Panama-Pacific exposition, will be present. Her name is Miss Segrist and everyone is satisfied that she does the state justice in the matter of good looks. There will be a special feature of dancing this evening by Msis Muriel Larimore. Last night four pupils of Miss Larimore danced very charmingly. They were Helen Pape and Helen Strodel, of this city, and the Misses Niblick, of Decatur. There were also a number of children who acted as models on Tuesday. The windows of the store are very handsome in their display of rich and beautiful fabrics and read-to-wear goods. A "touch of fur," as the modistes say, is seen on everything. "Everything" means all the new and up-to-date stles in everything from glass dishes in the basement to neckwear, gloves, novelties and dress goods on the main floor to the top floor where one can select housefurnishings of stle and quality. Only don't let the elevators pass the second floor without letting you off for that is where you pick your fall suit or cloak or party dress or hat and waists.

The planet has a rather rapid retrograde movement. Prof. Zola is studying it carefully and hopes soon to be able to give further details regarding his discovery.

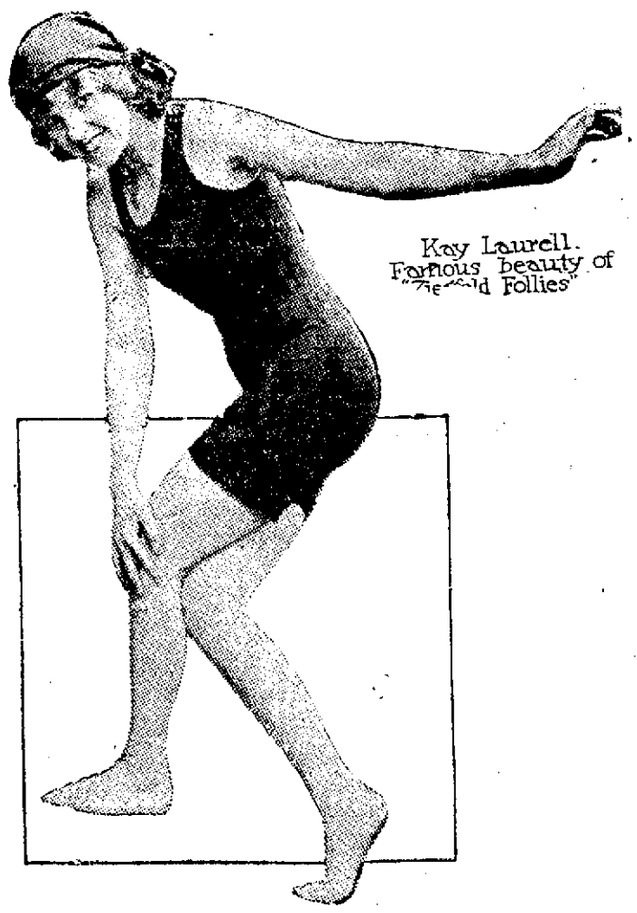
HEALTH TIP FROM ANCIENTS — DISCUS THROWING EXERCISE FINE.



Kay Laurell. Famous beauty of "Ziegfeld Follies"

Practice the postures of the ancient Greek athletes if you would have health, grace and beauty.

One excellent exercise is to go through the motions of throwing an imaginary discus as illustrated in the accompanying picture by America's famous 1915 beauty, Kay Laurell, of "Ziegfeld's Follies."

Take the pose shown in the picture and then energize first one arm and then the other as though one was gathering all one's strength to hurl the discus. Take this pose every morning and night, first pretending to throw with the right and then with the left arm.

GOOD MUSIC — Make Your Reservation Now.

A REAL FLESH BUILDER FOR THIN PEOPLE

Thin men and women—that big, hearty, filling dinner you ate last night. What became of all the fat-producing nourishment it contained? You haven't gained in weight one ounce. That food passed from your body like unburned coal through an open grate. The material was there but your food doesn't work and stick, and the plain truth is you hardly get enough nourishment from your meals to pay for the cost of cooking. This is true of thin folks the world over. Your nutritive organs, your functions of assimilation, are probably sadly out of gear and need reconstruction.

Cut out the foolish foods and funny sawdust diets. Cut out everything but the meals you are eating and eat with every one of those a single Sargol tablet. In two weeks note the difference. Let the scales be the judge. Five to eight good solid pounds of healthy "stay-there" fat may be the net result. Sargol aims to charge weak, stagnant blood with millions of fresh new red blood corpuscles—to give the blood the carrying power to deliver every ounce of fat-making material in your food to every part of your body. Sargol, too, mixes with your food, to prepare it for the blood in an easily assimilated form. Thin people tell how they have gained all the way from 10 to 25 pounds a month while taking Sargol and say that the new flesh stays put. Sargol tablets are a careful combination of six of the best assimilative elements known to chemistry. They come 40 tablets to a package, are pleasant, harmless and inexpensive, and Meyer Bros. Drug Co., Dreier Drug Co., D. & N. Pharmacy, The Family Drug Store and all other good druggists in this vicinity sell them subject to an absolute guarantee of weight increase or money back as found in every large package.—Advertisement.

Mr. Edward Leigh Pell Writes:

You think your "little" is not worth saving; but I have noticed that the cigar man and the theater man and the soda water man have such a high opinion of your "little" that each is glad to get his hands on just a small fraction of it in order that he may carry it to HIS bank and have it placed to HIS account. I suppose it is all the same to the bank—your little is going there anyway—but, say! If it is going there anyway, would it not be better to carry it there yourself and have it placed to YOUR credit?

SCHUMANN-HEINK IS HAPPY NOW, SHE SAYS

Noted Diva Delighted at Getting Rid of Rapp Finally.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Mme. Schumann-Heink is happy. For the first time in years, she says, she can go about her duties with a light heart. She further asserts that from now on she doesn't intend to have any trouble of any kind. She has quit reading the papers because she doesn't want to know anything about the troubles in Europe.

The noted singer made these declarations to a reporter last night when interviewed on the decision handed down by the appellate court affirming the divorce decree granted her from her husband, William Rapp, jr.

Now She Can Sew and Cook.

"I am so happy," she said, "to think that I will be troubled no more by that man. Why, do you know that for the last few years I have done nothing but watch for some new development of trouble from that source. Now I can cook and sew and sit and look out of the window or do anything I please.

"All my life I have had troubles. I have been happy, too, but always there was trouble. In spite of it all I have always tried to love my neighbors and bring up my children to be real men and women. Now all of them except my youngest boy, are married and happy.

She Didn't Raise Her Boy, Etc.

"My youngest boy is at Culver and they are making a man out of him. I visited him Sunday and O, I was so proud to see him standing there with the other fine looking boys. He looks like a real soldier. But God forbid that my boy or any of those other boys ever become soldiers. It makes my heart cry out to think that soldiers are necessary. It all seems so foolish.

"You musn't think I'm a fanatic, because right now I have a son and a son-in-law fighting in Europe. But it is all so unnecessary. I was born in Austria and they say that blood is thicker than water, but they don't have to fight. I want peace and I pray for men who advocate peace. That is the reason I prayed for Mr. Bryan. It is also the reason that I refused to shake hands with Mr. Roosevelt. He is so blustering and so warlike and so fiery.

An American First.

"I am an American and I probably would do as all other American mothers would do if the United States should have a war. I have five sons and my five sons would go to fight for the United States—not for Germany or Austria or any other country.

"O, I love America and Americans. They are so good, and when I am singing and I look down at their faces I feel as if I could go down and throw my arms around the whole audience. But they might not stand for it.

Has Had Three Husbands.

"You know I've had three husbands and they might think it funny. There I go bringing up unpleasant subjects again. Don't you know that lots of people think I'm out looking for another husband. God forbid. My last experience has given me enough trouble. The things I have undergone with that man are hardly unbelieveable.

"I want to forget all about it. During the last year I have tried to forget, but every time the bell rang I just sat in my room waiting for the maid to come and say, 'Madame, another newspaper man wants to know something about the divorce.'

"Now it's over and I can sit and look out of the window and think about pleasant things and be happy and sing all by myself."

For Indigestion.

Never take pepsin and preparations containing pepsin or other digestive ferments for indigestion, as the more you take the more you will have to take. RUN DOWN BY AUTOMOBILE.

Huntington, Ind., Oct. 6.—Clarence Tousch, who was injured when an auto truck belonging to the Huntington brewery company and driven by Jacob Hartman, passed over his neck and shoulders at Washington and Jefferson streets yesterday noon was in a critical condition last evening. Accordidng to the statement of the attending surgeon the boy had sustained a broken collar bone, and showed symptoms of concussion of the brain.

Chronic Constipation.

"About two years ago, when I began using Chamberlain's Tablets I had been suffering for some time with stomach trouble and chronic constipation. My condition improved rapidly through the use of these tablets. Since taking four or five bottles of them my health has been fine," writes Mrs. John Newton, Irving, N. Y. Obtainable everywhere.—Advertisement.

STURGEON NOT INDICTED.

Grand Jury Reported He Acted in Self-Defense in Killing Adams.

Franklin, Ind., Oct. 6.—The grand jury of the September term of the Johnson circuit court made a report finding that Frank O. Sturgeon, who shot and killed Charles Adams last Saturday night, acted in self-defense, and that there was not sufficient evidence on which to return an indictment against Sturgeon. The court ordered Sturgeon released from jail, where he has been held awaiting the result of the investigation of the jury. After his release from jail he was hurried to the home of his mother, Mrs. Robert S. Sturgeon, living a mile south of Franklin, in an automobile. He made no statement except to say he was sorry he had killed Adams.

Our policy of exact illustrations and exact descriptions has resulted in public confidence in our advertising until this store has earned the reputation of "The Store Where the Ads Come True."

Bring this advertisement with you to compare the illustration with the actual cabinet.

Our Only Worry Is That We Won't Have Enough to Supply the Demand

When you consider the reputation of this cabinet, realizing that it is the latest 1915-1916 model with every latest improvement, and that the special sale price is several dollars under the lowest price ever quoted on this cabinet, you'll understand why we are worried about our ability to supply the demand that will be created by them.

The First Orders Placed Will Be Delivered First

To be among the first to receive your cabinet you must place your order early. This remarkable low price and the fact that Hadley terms are made to suit your convenience will cause such a tremendous sale of these cabinets that we will have a hard time delivering them all, and therefore, suggest that you place your order early if you want to begin enjoying your cabinet at once.

BULLET TAKEN FROM HEART OF SOLDIER

German Surgeons Succeed in a Most Amazing Operation.

Berlin, Sept. 20.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press).—The opening of a chamber of the heart and extracting a bullet is reported by Prof. Freund and Dr. Casperon in the current number of the Munich Medical Weekly. The patient was a young soldier who had recovered from a bullet wound through the liver. Upon X-ray examination preceding his discharge from the hospital, a foreign object was discerned in the heart. It moved synchronously with the heart's pulsations, and the physicians decided that it was a shrapnel bullet.

To prevent possible dangerous complications it was determined to remove the bullet. The breast was opened, the pericardium slit sufficiently to permit the heart to be brought forward, a quick incision was made in the right ventricle and the bullet was immediately found and removed. Much blood was lost, but the bleeding stopped after prompt stitching, and the patient made a complete recovery.

The bullet, which weighed twelve grams, had taken a most erratic and extraordinary course. It struck the soldier on the left shoulder from above, as he was storming forward, inflicting but a flesh wound. It passed down and diagonally across the body, barely marking the skin, was deflected by a cartridge box and entered the liver, passing completely through it into the vena cava, one of the two trunk veins that empty into the heart. The blood stream conveyed it thence into the right ventricle of the heart.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

EVEN MONEY ON THE WORLD SERIES GAMES

Odd of 13 to 10 Placed Several Days Ago—Phils Look Stronger.

Philadelphia, Oct. 6—With but two days remaining until the opening contest for baseball supremacy of the world, the National league champion Phillies hoped to complete their regular playing schedule in a double-header with Brooklyn today and set about final reparations for the struggle with the Boston Americans. There is a feeling of confidence in the Phillies camp as to the result of the series. Captain Luderus declared that he feels sure his team will come out victors, although he admitted it would probably be a close race. Alexander and Chalmers are almost certain to win their games, he believes, while both Mayer and Rixey stand an excellent chance to humble the Bostonians. The strength of their opponents in all departments was not lost sight of, Luderus added, and "most anything can happen in such a short series." While the few bets that were placed several days ago were laid at odds of 13 to 10, with the Red Sox the favorites, several wagers were placed last night at even money.

NORWEGIAN STEAMER ESCAPES.

Drammensjord's Captain Says He Was Chased by Submarine.

New York, Oct. 6.—The Norwegian steamer Drammensfjord arrived today from Sandefjord, Norway, and reported having been chased by a German submarine in the North sea, between Bergen and Kirkwall. Captain Stensmark said he escaped by driving his vessel at full speed and at the same time sending wireless calls which brought British patrol. The submarine then gave up the chase.

Captain Stensmark said a steamer of the same line as the Drammensfjord was sunk by a submarine several weeks ago, and he had been warned that submarines were on the lookout for his vessel.

SOX INFIELDER WAS A CHAMPION HURDLER.

"Jannie" Janvrin, the Red Sox utility infielder, was a champion athlete before he became a member of the American league champion ball club. He was a track athlete and the champion interscholastic hurdler.

The Red Sox picked the youngster from a high school baseball team, farmed him out for a season, then brought him back and used him in every infield position, including first base. He can fill in anywhere around the diamond.

BRAINS PLUS THE ARM PLUS THE PUNCH—THESE ARE THE BIG ASSETS OF THE PHILIES FOR THE WORLD SERIES BATTLES.

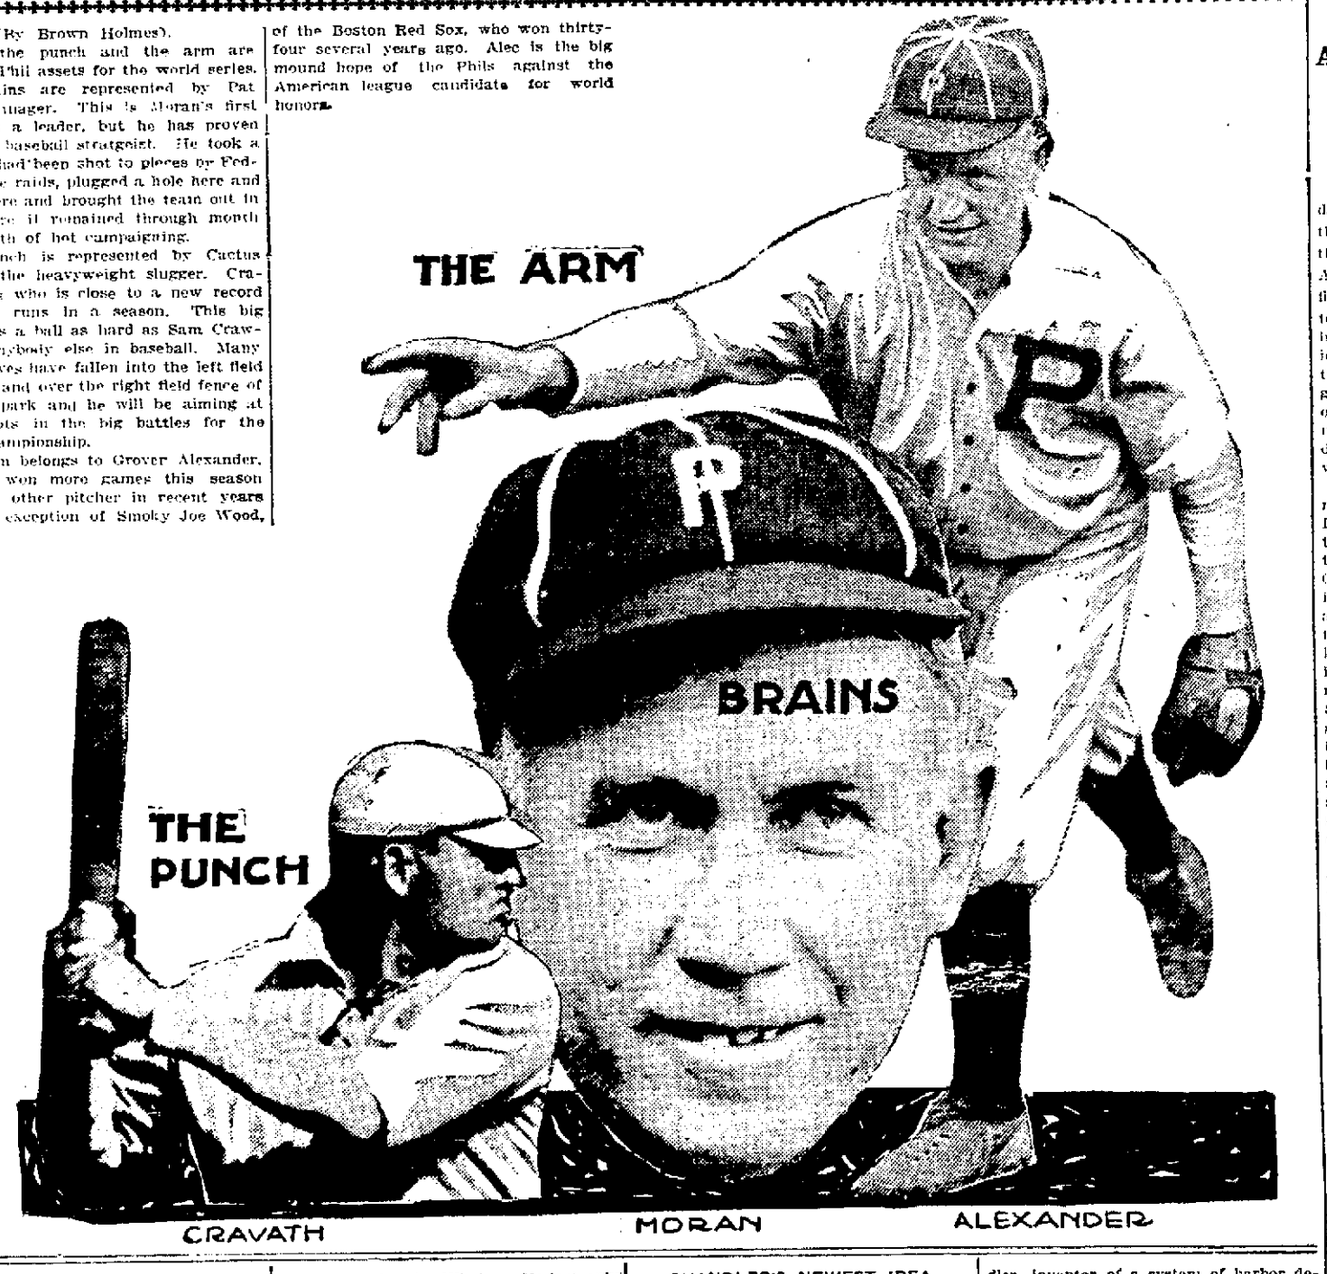
(By Brown Holmes).

Brains, the punch and the arm are three big Phil assets for the world series.

The brains are represented by Pat Moran, manager. This is Moran's first season as a leader, but he has proven himself a baseball strategist. He took a club that had been shot to pieces by Federal league raids, plugged a hole here and a hole there and brought the team out in front where it remained through month after month of hot campaigning.

The punch is represented by Cactus Cravath, the heavyweight slugger. Cravath it is who is close to a new record for home runs in a season. This big fellow hits a ball as hard as Sam Crawford or anybody else in baseball. Many of his drives have fallen into the left field bleachers and over the right field fence of the Phil park and he will be aiming at these spots in the big battles for the world championship.

The arm belongs to Grover Alexander, who has won more games this season than any other pitcher in recent years with the exception of Smoky Joe Wood, of the Boston Red Sox, who won thirty-four several years ago. Alec is the big mound hope of the Phils against the American league candidate for world honors.



THREE FINGER BROWN IN GRAND COME-BACK

Hurls Chifeds to Pennant and Crowds Remember Good Old Days.

The air is not so full of Alexander, Shore and Leonard but what there is room for tribute to one of the old guard, a pitcher who was a hero at this period of years past, and still good, has won another pennant.

Miner Brown, who put the Cubs in the world series of 1906, 1907 and 1908, has put the Chicago Whales on top in the Federal league.

Brown has been out of the limelight several years. Not because he lacked the heart, the head or the arm, but because his left knee, injured while he was trying to win a game for the Cubs, refused to hold him up after he was shunted from the club he made famous.

The three-fingered wonder won seventeen games for the Whales. He lost only eight. Most of his defeats came in the first half of the season, before he was able to use his knee properly. Most of his victories came in the last half of the season.

Stout hearted as ever, Brown was the pitcher Manager Tinker called on when a game had to be won. Did the St. Louis club crowd toward the top? Brownie was assigned to the job of stopping them. Did the Kansas City club threaten? Brown set them back. As in the old days, when in 1907, he pitched five of the last seven games played by the Cubs, he was the man in the pinch.

This was Brown's thirteenth season in the majors. He won't be in the world series, nor even in the Chicago city series, but he's a baseball hero. He's still one pitcher who can win a pennant for his ball club.

WHITE KNOCKS OUT BALDWIN.

Charlie White added another knockout to his already long list when he knocked out Matty Baldwin in the first round of a scheduled twelve-round bout in Boston Tuesday night. It was the first knockout ever suffered by Baldwin.

CHANDLER'S NEWEST IDEA.

Inventor Says He Can Detect Airships by Microphone.

New York, Oct. 6.—Edward F. Chandler, inventor of a system of harbor defenses now being tested by the United States navy by the detection of the approach of submarines with the aid of water microphone, announced today that he had perfected a method of detecting and treating airships by the michrophone. Mr. Chandler said that one of the greatest applications of the airship finder would be a defense against night raidrs such as the Germans have made upon London with Zeppelins. Mr. Chandler said that he could easily discover the range, height, speed and direction of a dirigible or other aircraft in the darkest night.

WHITTED GETS RICH WITH EVERY CHANGE.

Every time George Whitted, Phil outfielder, moves he makes money. He was shifted from the St. Louis Cardinals to the Boston Braves last season just in time to cop several thousand dollars world series coin.

When he was shifted to the Phils this season friends mourned. Boston was picked to get into the series again. But the Braves are out and Whitted is in.

Dugey, Phil sub, was with the Braves last season, too.

UNDERGOES AN OPERATION.

Mrs. J. M. VanCamp, of San Antonio, Tex., who has been visiting with her daughter, Mrs. Charles Bash, jjr., of Kinnaird avenue, was taken suddenly ill, Tuesday, and had to be removed to Hope hospital, where she underwent an operation. She was reported as getting along nicely Wednesday.

BOSTON WILL HAVE NO TIME FOR REST

And Will Have But One Workout on Phil National Field.

New York, Oct. 6.—A workout on Friday morning preceding the first game of the world's baseball championship will be the only opportunity which the Boston Americans will have for practice on the field of the Philadelphia Nationals. Owing to the postponement of yesterday's game between the New York and Boston American league clubs it will be necessary for the Red Sox and Yankees to play two games here today and one tomorrow in order to complete their schedule. This means that the Red Sox will not have a day's rest before the beginning of the world's series.

Carrigan had not disclosed today the name of the pitcher who would oppose Philadelphia in the opening game and there was a great deal of speculation on that point. "I realize that we must face Grover Cleveland Alexander in the opening game Friday," said Carrigan, "and I also know just how wonderfully clever is the curve ball genius of the National league. It seems we must beat Alexander in that first game and we have devised a means which we think will accomplish it. Should we beat Alexander in the opening game the rest will be a lot easier than I have figured. If we fail it will give us a line on Alexander which will make his second game doubly hard to win. Outside of Alexander I don't think any of the Philadelphia pitchers compare with my men."

Carrigan added that he had so much confidence in every one of his pitchers that he would not be afraid to pick any one of them to pitch in the world's series and that he considered the rest of his club the peers of any other ball players.

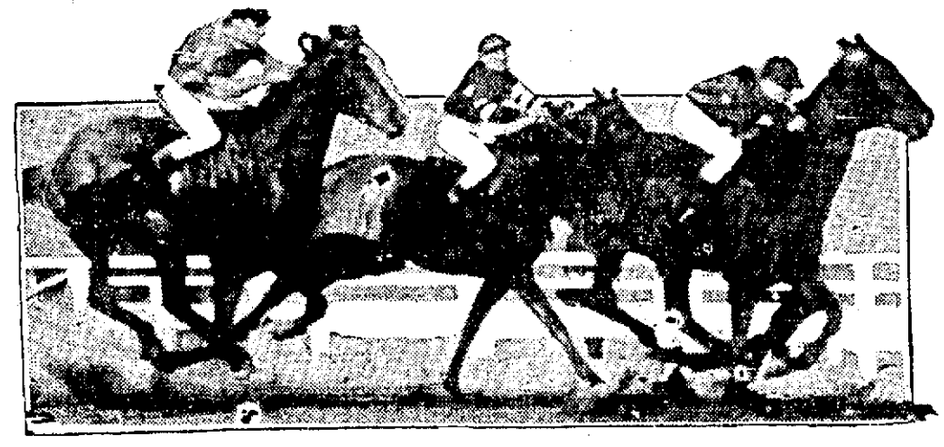
EXPOSITION HORSE RACES DIM HOPES OF RESTORING SPORT OF KINGS IN WEST.



An Exciting Finish at the Recent Exposition Races.

San Francisco, Oct. 6.—Proponents of horse racing and a modified system of betting hoped to reclaim California to the small coterie of states now permitting the sport of kings, through the influence of the recent exposition meet here.

It was intended that this should be a sort of popularizing prelude to efforts that will be made at the next state legislature to revive the racing game.

That the flagrant operations of bookmakers at the exposition course, however, has had exactly the opposite effect is today the belief of many who had hoped to bring the ponies back.

Certainly it has stirred up new antagonism against such proposed legislation.

The state of California, represented at the exposition through a commission, received from the fair authorities a promise that no taint of gambling should bring a breath of criticism against the horse racing.

But from the first day of the meet—attended by crowds that equalled the throngs at famous old Emeryville in its palmy days—the state law was evaded by "the bookies" through oral pool making. A big gambling stake was in constant circulation.

Veterans of the paddock were discreet, but the youngsters flushed with their first winnings, boasted loudly of their gains and aired their superficial knowledge of the "inside."

These vauntings reached the ears of the state commission.

Arthur Arlett, one of the commissioners, found that oral bookmaking was flourishing, and addressed a scorching letter to the exposition heads, reminding them of their solemn promise.

Rudolph Spreckles and other prominent citizens also took a rap at the situation. But the damage, so far as public opinion and antagonism to race track betting was concerned, had been done.

The races themselves, though devoid of any great sensations, were notable. Over 300 fast horses were entered, with some of the best jockeys and drivers in the world up.

There was a revival of the old thrill that had brought its daily thousands to historic Emeryville, across the bay from San Francisco—Emeryville, that put the kibosh on the game on this coast through the violent intemperance of its gambling.

Old track followers were in the crowd, eager, covetous, aflame with the excitement of the professional. Novices, catching the intoxication, rattled their silver; women as well as men. Society smiled on the races. Everywhere it was predicted that the game was coming back in California; that the "Puritans" and "reformers" would be overwhelmed by the revived pro-racing and pro-gambling spirit.

And now the betting fervor is demonstrating itself by wagers laid on the fate of modified race track gambling, probably the pari-mutual system, at the next state legislature. Thousands of dollars are being offered that the game will come back, and the takers are few.

Coroner E. H. Kruse will probably return a finding that the accident at Brackenridge street and Fairfield avenue several days ago, in which Alexander B. The coroner has found a witness who saw Gonzales having trouble with his brake just an instant before the accident.

PRESIDENT WILL VOTE FOR EQUAL SUFFRAGE

Wilson Favors the Ballot for Women in His Home State.

Washington, Oct. 6.—President Wilson will vote for the woman suffrage state constitutional amendment in New Jersey, his home state, at the special election October 19. He said today he would vote, not as the leader of the democratic party, but as a private citizen. Mr. Wilson said he believed the question should not be made a party issue and should be decided by the states, not the national government. The following statement was given out at the white house:

"I intend to vote for woman suffrage in New Jersey because I believe the time has come to extend that privilege and responsibility to the women of the state; but I shall vote, not as the leader of my party in the nation, but only upon my private conviction as a citizen of New Jersey called upon by the legislature of the state to express his conviction at the polls. I think that New Jersey will be greatly benefited by the change.

"My position with regard to the way in which this great question should be handled is well known. I believe that it should be settled by the states and not by the national government and that in no circumstances should it be made a party question, and my view has grown stronger at every turn of the agitation."

Secretaries Garrison, McAdoo, Redfield and Wilson, who will also vote on the question in the near future, have declared in favor of equal suffrage.

CITY OUSTS WOMAN MORALS GUARDIAN

Hoopeston, Ill., Oct. 6.—By a vote of 5 to 3 the Hoopeston city council decided to dispense with the services of Mrs. Agnes Frisinger, police matron during the past five months and whose term of office expires on Nov. 1.

There is much indignation today among the women of Hoopeston over the action of the council and they threaten to take the matter up and compel the board to reconsider their action.

Mrs. Frisinger came to Hoopeston last spring from Chicago where she had been connected with Hull House.

She caused the resignation of two members of the police force, including the chief. With a flashlight and a revolver she went sleuthing at all hours of the night.

A short time ago the mayor was going home from his office late at night. As he went to his home he was stopped by the matron, who was in hiding behind a box car along the railroad tracks. She finally allowed him to go.

PARADE OF CHILDREN BRINGS DRY VICTORY

Danville, Ill., Oct. 6.—"Dry" victories in local option elections held yesterday in Pittsboro and Brownsburg are attributed largely to the efforts of women and children of Pittsboro, who paraded their own streets and then invaded the other town, four miles away. Brown township, including Brownsburg, with two saloons, voted "dry" by 45. Middle township, including Pittsboro, went "dry" by 16, a gain of 104 over the majority two years ago.

School children marched or rode in automobiles in the parade in Pittsboro in the morning, with a number of men and women riding horses. The automobile and horse procession continued to Brownsburg to assist in the demonstration there. Women served lunch at the polls and almost every home in Pittsboro was represented in the parade or at the refreshment stands.

BLAIR ADDRESSES REAL ESTATE MEN

Says Railroads Add Millions to Value of Property in Fort Wayne.

Declaring that Fort Wayne has the best railroads of any in Indiana and that they add millions of dollars to the value of property in this city, S. K. Blair, general agent of the Nickel Plate railroad, was the principal speaker Tuesday evening, at the regular weekly meeting and dinner of the Fort Wayne Real Estate exchange at the Wayne hotel.

While railroads, banks, real estate men or any other class of business alone can not make the city the cooperation of all of these is necessary. He declared that a city's growth depends largely upon the kind of railroads and the direction in which they run and in this respect Fort Wayne is exceedingly fortunate.

Other speakers during the evening were W. E. Doud, George Ashley and Frank H. Hilgeman. Scott R. PAPA IS POOR MARKSMAN; HIS SHOT AT ELOPERS ONLY HELPS THEM.

Harvard, Ill., Oct. 6.—When Joe Elardi, 29, eloped with Mary Graziano, 14, he didn't reckon with the shotgun of Mary's father.

But Cupid did and with more, too.

Graziano lives on a farm near here. Elardi is his partner and was refused the hand of Mary, though she loved him, because Graziano thought him too old.

Elardi determined to kidnap her and, entering the home at midnight, seized the perfectly willing Mary and started off.

Graziano was awakened. In his night clothes he hurried out of his room with his shotgun and fired at the fleeing pair in the hallway. The shot, instead of hitting Elardi, cut the telephone. With phone communications cut off, the excited father, unable to rouse his neighbors and secure their aid in cutting off the escape of the pair, could call only on his farm hands to give chase. They refused.

Mary's name is now Elardi.

Chief Healey Will Enforce Sunday Closing at Chicago.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—"Arrest on sight" was the orders given to commanding officers of Chicago's police stations by Chief of Police Healey after a conference today concerning violators of the Sunday saloon closing law, which goes into effect at midnight, Saturday.

Notice is to be served on every license holder—exclusive clubs, summer gardens, cafes and saloons—that all bars must be closed for twenty-four hours, beginning Saturday midnight. The police captains were told to serve notice on all of the 7,152 license holders immediately so that none could plead that he was not allowed ample time in which to carry out the drastic closing order of Mayor Thompson.

That the mayor's order has had an immediate effect on the financial conditions of summer gardens was indicated when one of the largest filed a petition for a receiver yesterday. It could not continue to operate, it was said, with the Sunday liquor business cut off.

TICKETS TWO FOR STATE PENAL FARM

Kelsey Lewis, Thief, and Joe Morgan, Alcoholic, in City Court.

Kelsey Lewis, a young colored man who has been in the city for two weeks, was found guilty in the city court, Wednesday morning, of petit larceny and was fined $10 and costs and given ninety days at the state penal farm. His sentence will keep him there 110 days. Lewis was arrested at the Wabash depot and he was just about to take a train for Danville, Ill., when Detective Sergeant Charles Spillner pinched him, having bought a ticket for that city. He was charged with stealing $6 from the clothing of Ed Sperr, an employe in the Shryock garage. Tuesday morning. Lewis had been employed there for a few days as a laborer. He strenuously denied his guilt, but the circumstantial evidence was strong, it being shown that he had left the garage in the morning, saying he was going to get something to eat. He had $1.50 due him in wages which he did not ask for.

Hopes to Help Joe Morgan.

Judge Kerr made good the promise he made Joe Morgan, a young but incorrigible booze-fighter, when he was in the city court less than three weeks ago and turned loose with the warning that his next appearance would get him a term at the state penal farm. He was arrested Tuesday evening drunk and Wednesday morning pleaded guilty to that charge with three previous convictions. Judge Kerr told him he had investigated Morgan's court record and found conviction after conviction until he had lost patience for further search. The court fined him $100 and costs and added thirty days at the penal farm, which will keep him there 140 days unless the fine is paid.

Other City Court Cases.

John Dairy, who had not been drunk for a year prior to his arrest a week ago, was in court thoroughly sober after his period of enforced abstemiousness in jail and looking more like himself. He was turned loose to show how he is going to perform.

Dave Herbert, who says he is a molder and hails from Cincinnati, went to jail for eleven days o na drunk charge. He had been making an indecent spectacle of himself on the street when Officer Madden arrested him.

John Steinman, a jitney driver, was charged with exceeding the speed limit and the case was continued until Thursday. He was in collision Sunday at Calhoun and Washington streets with the car driven by W. F. Geller, proprietor of the Broadway bakery. He was arrested by order of Chief Lenz.

John Varner, who was arrested on a drunk charge at the instance of his wife, was given an indefinite continuance on his promise to keep sober and treat his family well. He is the father of six children, the oldest of them eleven years of age.

The case against Robert Jones, a colored man charged with obtaining goods by false pretenses, was continued until Thursday and his bond fixed at $1,000. He was arrested with Charles Moore, another negro, for obtaining narcotic drugs at the Christen drug store by means of prescriptions to which the name of Dr. Dean Metcalf had been forged. The continuance was taken to await the outcome of federal proceedings against the two men for violating the United States laws relating to the sale of narcotics.

Harry Lyons, a drunk who had also been an invalid for several days, was allowed to go, as were Omar Ward and Thomas Ward—not of kin, so they said—who were arrested for vagrancy several days ago.

BLAMES JITNEY DRIVER.

Henry Duell, who resides near the Four Mile house on the Lincoln highway, reports to the police that a rig in which he and his father were riding was run into by an automobile driven by Clyde Blaising, who operates a jitney bus between Fort Wayne and New Haven, at Maumee and Lumbard streets, and that both he and his father were thrown from the vehicle, the elder Duell receiving painful injuries. Chief Lenz notified his officers to instruct Blaising not to operate his bus inside the city limits until he is given permission.

NEW FIGHT LOOMS OVER WATER POWER

Historic Dam at Rome May Bring Forth New Wrangle.

That the old water power at Sylvan lake, Rome City, may be the occasion of another legal wrangle as to its ownership is indicated in developments of the past few days which have brought to local newspapers an advertising notice from Indianapolis people who assert they are heirs of the original owners of the water power lease.

The history of the water power is an interesting one as it is recalled by Attorney W. S. O'Rourke, of this city, whose professional interests have led him to an investigation of the situation. The dam was constructed back in the 40's by the state as a part of extensive waterway development plans, and it was designed as a source of water supply for the Wabash and Erie canal. The state overreached itself financially, however, and the complete project was never carried through.

Frank Comparet, of Fort Wayne, was the builder of the dam, but was unable to collect for his work. Later his heirs sued the state, and in the settlement, J. K. Edgerton, of Fort Wayne, was named as commissioner to deed five acres of land at Rome City, including the dam, to the state. In 1850 the state legislature gave the dam and water power to the commissioners of Noble county, with the provision that the revenues should go to the common school fund. Noble county leased it to John Weston for a period of ninety-nine years at an annual rental of $30. It was later sublet a number of times, finally passing into the hands of Jacob Geisendorf, and the lease ultimately passed into the hands of the Grand Rapids and Indiana railroad. When the latter road was building in 1865 it was confronted with the possibility of having to divert its line about the lake or build extensive trestle work. J. K. Edgerton, then president of the company, solved the problem by securing the passage of a law permitting railroad companies to use public dams as right-of-way contingent upon the maintenance of the property by the railroad. In this way the railroad was enabled to build upon the dam.

Fort Wayne cottage owners, with others at Rome City, have been protesting against the annual practice of the railroad in lowering the water in Sylvan lake, and the matter has been taken up by the commissioners of Noble county. In the years that have passed and the entangled leaseholds upon the property, much of this history was lost, and the present commissioners of Noble county were greatly surprised a few days ago when informed by Attorney O'Rourke that they were the owners of the water power at Rome City.

The Lutheran Hospital Alumni association will hold its regular business and social meeting at the hospital Wednesday evening.

Bayer Building Under Consideration by the Eagles

Tonight the Fort Wayne Order of Eagles will decide on their new clubhouse, lodge rooms and its location. Several propositions will be considered, among them the Bayer building at the corner of Wayne and Barr streets. It is now a two and one-half story building and in the event the lodge would purchase this property and complete the third story it will make one of the attractive buildings of the city. However, it no doubt is large enough at present without completing the third story.

The building is centrally located. It is one block from the city hall, within two blocks of all the theaters and accessible from all points of the city.

A handsome sum can be realized from rentals on the first floor, also from the lodge room on the third floor when not used by the lodge. The second floor can be used for club rooms and parlors.

A more ideal location would be hard to find.

NOTED "ZAZA" NOT AT ALL LIKE CHARACTER

Interesting Glimpse Into Life of Mrs. Leslie Carter.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 6.—Wrapped in a most un-Zaza like kimona with her feet in flopping velvet slippers, Mrs. Leslie Carter, now playing a tabloid "Zaza" in vaudeville, recently presented herself in a new role in the privacy of her dressing room.

"If the public could only know me like this!" she exclaimed, "all my life in the eyes of the world I have been the real Zaza! I have been accredited with a flame colored disposition and life to match my hair and my play, and no one has ever dreamed what I am really like."

Outside the theatre there lounged crowds of curious spectators.

"They are waiting to see me come forth in a velvet wrap and costly furs," she said, "and they probably expect me to enter a taxi and be driven to an elaborate dinner. Now, as a matter of fact, I never leave my dressing room between the matinee and the evening performance. And I do not eat dinner."

Mrs. Carter suddenly arose and drew the kimona tightly around her uncorseted figure, then whirled gracefully several time round the room.

"See! I have still the figure of a girl, have I not? I eat only one meal a day—after the theatre at night. In the morning I drink a single cup of coffee and that is all that passes my lips till my work is over. I do it partly for my figure, bu tprimarily for my work. Art is not created on a full stomach.

"You can see how different my life is from the career of a Zaza. I work and study and work again. For recreation I like horses and dogs——"

"And men?" it was suggested.

"No—not many," was the quick and apparent genuine response. "Not many men and not many women. I learned early in life to wrap myself away from the world at large, and this was partly for protection. As I mingled among people I heard terrible things about myself—the idle, unknowing things people say of stage women. I early learned that I was supposed to out-Zada all my most sensational heroine roles. It hurt me and I withdrew from the world at large."

A FINE TREATMENT FOR CATARRH

EASY TO MAKE AND COSTS LITTLE

Catarrh is such an insidious disease and has become so prevalent during the past few years that its treatment should be understood by all.

Science has fully proved that Catarrh is a constitutional disease and therefore requires a constitutional treatment. Sprays, inhalers, salves and nose douches seldom if ever give lasting benefit and often drive the disease further down the air passages and into the lungs.

If you have Catarrh or Catarrhal deafness or head-noises, go to your druggist and get one ounce of Parmint (Double strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint of hot water and 4 ounces of granulated sugar; stir until dissolved, take one tablespoonful 4 times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head-noises, clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and mucus stop dropping into the throat.

This treatment has a slight tonic action which makes it especially effective in cases where the blood has become thin and weak. It is easy to make, tastes pleasant and costs little. Every person who wishes to be free from this destructive disease should give this treatment a trial.—Advertisement

WOMEN STRIVE FOR HIGHER EDUCATION

Marked Change is Noted in the Universities of Germany.

Berlin, Sept. 20.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press).—Women have taken advantage as never before of the absence of men from the various German universities to strive for the higher education that not so many years ago was denied them.

During the last semester which fell entirely in peace times, 4,130 women were registered at the various institutions. This number has increased to 4,570 during the past year, constituting a percentage increase of women attending German universities of from 6.74 to 8.54. In the entire past six years the percentage had increased only 2.7.

The actual increase in point of numbers is not as great in two earlier years, when the figures jumped by 680 and 478 respectively. The 1915 figures, however, have been held down somewhat by the absence of the Americans, Russians, English and Swiss women who customarily are enrolled and who, during the war, have been absent.

The number of women studying medicine shows the largest increase, rising from 974 to 1,150. Five years ago there were but 512. There are 2,258 studying philology and history, against 2,120; 862 studying mathematics, against 761; 170 studying political science, against 132; 73 studying law, against 57; 42 studying dentistry, against 51; 7 studying theology, against 16; and 12 studying pharmacy, against 14.

The southern German universities have suffered losses, and the Prussian institutions have gained in number of women students. The attendance includes: 1,023 at Berlin, 492 at Bonn, 338 at Munich, 227 at Marburg, 252 at Heidelberg, 242 at Goettingen, 240 at Muenster, 230 at Leipsic, 225 at Breslau, 171 at the new University of Frankfort, 151 at Freiburg, 150 at Koenigsberg, 137 at Jena, 122 at Halle, 98 at Kiel, 78 at Greifsald, 50 at Tuebingen, 56 at Strassburg, 43 at Wuerzburg, 32 at Giessen, 28 at Erlanger and 34 at Rostock.

The number of women students at German technical schools has increased this year to 119, as against 82 last year, and 68 two years ago. Of these, 20 are taking architecture, 26 chemistry and pharmacy, two engineering, four electrotechnic, and 65 languages.

When Baby Has the Croup.

When a mother is awakened from sound sleep to find her child who has gone to bed apparently in the best of health struggling for breath, she is naturally alarmed. Yet if she can keep her presence of mind and give Chamberlain's Cough Remedy every ten minutes until vomiting is produced, quick relief will follow and the child will drop to sleep to awaken in the morning as well as ever. This remedy has been in use for many years with uniform success. Obtainable everywhere.—Advertisement.

STOCKMAN IS INDICTED.

Charged With Poisoning a Farm Neighbor's Jersey Cows.

Kokomo, Ind., Oct. 6.—The Howard county grand jury returned an indictment charging Thomas Ruse, farmer and stockman, with poisoning the dairy cattle of Aaron Deardorff, a neighbor. The alleged crime was committed on June 19, last. Six fine Jersey cows died. Paris green had been put in their feed. Ruse was suspected by Deardorff from the first. There had been differences growing out of business jealousies. Ruse expected the indictment. While the case was being investigated, he went before the grand jury against the advice of his counsel and protested that he knew nothing about the poisoning.

BOMB PUT IN BAKER'S OVEN.

Gary Police Have Another Mystery—Slight Damage Done.

Gary, Ind., Oct. 6.—The Gary police are confronted with another bomb mystery. A partly exploded bomb in the ovens of the Miller & Narvaish bakery, at Tolleston, near the home of the Rev. Edmund Kayser, slain five weeks ago, did slight damage. Michael Adonowies is suspected. Lack of a fuse prevented a full explosion of the bomb, which was disguised as a log.

"ADMIT THE BEARER"--A SINNER

"So, John, you've got fairly into the kingdom. You have been long seeking, how did you get in at last?"

"Oh, it was the simplest thing in the world; it was just by presenting the right ticket. I held it out, the door was opened, and I was in. And the strange thing is, I found that the ticket of admission had been in my possession from childhood, and I had carried it in my breast pocket for the last twelve months, and never had the sense to use it."

"That is strange, for you were so anxious to get in. What kind of a ticket was it, and what was written on it?"

"Why, it was as plain a ticket as you ever bought for a public meeting, and it had nothing on it but the words, -

"Admit the Bearer,
Luke 18. 13, 14.

"Was that all?" "Yes. And what kept me so long from getting in was, that I always added something to the words on the ticket, when I presented it. Whenever the Lord saw anything of my adding, it was refused. The first time I went, I wrot at the bottom, 'But not so great a sinner as many of my neighbors.' That would not do, so I rubbed it out and put down, 'But is doing the best he can to improve.' That would not do either, so I became more anxious, and prayed and wept awhile, and then, under the words, 'Admit the bearer, a sinner,' I wrote, 'Who is praying and weeping for his sins.' Even that wouldn't do. After that I began to despair, and wrote down, 'Too great a sinner to be saved.' That only made matters worse, and I had almost given up, when I looked at Christ and heard him say, 'I am the door; by Me if any man enter in, he shall be saved' (John 10. 9), and 'Him that cometh to Me I will in no wise cast out' (John 6. 37), 'And ye will not come unto Me, that ye might have life' (John 5. 20), and those precious words, 'Whosoever will, let him take of the water of life freely' (Rev. 22. 17). I looked again at that parable of the Pharisee and Publican, and I saw that it was simply as a sinner that he went and was justified. He did not make his sins too great to be forgiven, nor too little to need forgiveness. He went just as he was, 'a sinner,' and trusting to the promised grace of God, he went down to his house 'justified.' I remembered that Jesus had said, 'I came to call sinners to repentance,' so pulled out the old ticket, and without adding a word, presented it. It was accepted and I entered."

Reader! go thou and do likewise, and, as God is true, thou also art justified.

POOR RICH AND RICH POOR.

Do you know why Jesus is so rich in love? It is because he gave so much. "For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that, though he was rich, yet for your sake he became poor, that ye through his poverty might be rich."

My Passport to Glory

When, in the darkness of the midnight train, the conductor's lamp is seen glimmering from carriage to carriage does he hold it to your face to learn who you are, in order to be satisfied of your right to proceed? No! he lets its light fall on the ticket which you hold out to him, and if that is right, you are right, no matter who you are—rich or poor, rude or noble. So Christ, and Christ alone, is our passport to glory. Never can we say, Lord, look upon me, for I am holy—never; but upon Christ, who is my passport. Unworthy? Most assuredly you are. And, if you live to be the veriest saint, you will be unworthy still. God has chosen to save you. It is not a question of what you deserve, but what Christ deserves. It makes all the difference when, instead of putting your own value upon the work of Christ, and accepting it merely as meeting our need, we learn God's estimate of that work.

"Be not afraid, only believe."

And that is the secret of getting rich - giving to others. Jesus said, "it is more blessed to give than to receive." Solomon, the wise king, wrote: "There is that scattereth, and yet increaseth; and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty. The liberal soul shall be made fat: and he that watereth shall be watered also himself." "There is that maketh himself rich, yet hath nothing: there is that maketh himself poor, yet hath great riches." Here we have it in scripture, the "poor rich" man, and the "rich poor" man.

THE STAR OF BETHLEHEM

WHAT SHALL THE HARVEST BE?

Up till joining the army, L—— had never tasted intoxicating drink, and the first glass he had he relished, and longed for more. In the same week that he had liquor for the first time, on three evenings he went to bed drunk. His mother hearing of his conduct, expostulated with him, and urged him to give it up altogether; but he replied that the officers all drank, and if he did not he would be considered singular, and would be looked down upon; and the result was, before he was 21 years of age, he was one of the worst gamblers and heaviest drinkers in the army. The appetite for drink, day by day, and month by month, increased, until at last it became uncontrollable, and he indulged in it without restraint.

On being married he resolved he would renounce drinking for the sake of his wife, whom he dearly loved. One evening he said to himself, "This is my last drink; I won't take any more;" but, alas! little did he know the power of the chains that bound him.

"I shall never forget," to quote his own words, "that terrible struggle: I shall never forget the despair that settled upon me after I made my first endeavor to quit drinking. During the course of my life I have passed through moments of personal danger; I have stood in places more than once where I expected the next moment would bring me face to face with my God, but I never felt such fear, I never felt such a shrinking of the heart as I did that day when I found I could not leave my cups alone—that I could no longer say, 'I will take a drink or I will leave it alone as it suits my pleasure.' Then I realized that my appetite had become my master and that I was bound by it. From that day forward I fought against it; year by year I never gave way one foot; I never gave one inch without making a struggle, for I knew that my appetite was taking me to a terrible doom, and sometimes I succeeded for a time. Once I quit for nine months; and again for three months; and again for weeks. But every time I quit—every time I tried to stop—I got down again. There was all the time in me a gnawing, craving, growing appetite for drink. I could not resist it, and though for a while I would abstain, yet, by and by, I would go down again."

Saved From Committing Suicide.

After being ten years in the army he resigned his commission and led a life of dissipation and debauchery. Every now and again he made resolutions to amend his ways and "turn over a new leaf," but soon he was as bad as ever, and eventually his wife and children, on account of his conduct, separated from him.

While in the city of Washington, his eldest child, a girl ten years old, said to her mother, "Mamma, I would like to go to Washington to take care of papa."

"No, said her mother, "there is no use in you going; father would abuse you."

"Oh, no, mamma," said the child, "papa won't hurt me; and, besides, there is no one to care for him. I do wish to go."

Mother's consent having been obtained, she proceeded to Washington, and reached the house where her father was staying, and found the way to his bedroom. On awakening from a drunken sleep he found his little girl by the bedside tenderly watching over him. One evening while returning to his lodgings, having been more successful in gambling than usual, he said to himself, "After all, of what use is the money to me? Tomorrow it will be all gone. I am going down, down!" At the remembrance of his past conduct, his life of sin and misery, despair took possession of him, and he resolved he would put an end to his wretched existence.

With this object in view he purchased a bottle of chloroform, and on reaching his lodgings retired to his bedroom, undressed, and went to bed with the poison in his hand.

Just as he was about to plunge into eternity his child knocked at the door, and opening it, said, "I want to sleep with you tonight, papa."

"I want you to go to your own bed-

"Papa, I want to Stay With You."

room and sleep there," was the father's reply.

"But papa," said the dear girl, "I want to stay with you; I have been thinking of mamma all day, and I'm so lonesome"; and, getting into the bed beside her father, she put her arms round his neck, and he had not the courage to put her away.

Thus was he mercifully spared from rushing unprepared into the presence of a holy and sin-hating God. Oftimes his little guardian angel would put her arms round his neck, and say, "If you will only believe in Jesus, papa, He will make you a good and sober man."

What Shall the Harvest Be?

Deeper and deeper he sank in the moral scale, and gave free reins to his lusts and passions. Finally he left Washington and removed to the city of Chicago. Here he resolved that he would never touch a drop of drink; but not very long after he was overtaken, and became worse than ever.

"It is of no use in me trying to stop drinking," he said; "I cannot."

Into the lowest depths of vice he went, drinking, playing cards, and gambling. Sometimes he had food to eat, and sometimes he had none; sometimes he had plenty of money, and at other times he was without a cent; sometimes he had a bed to lie on, and at other times he had to sleep wherever he could get a place to lay his head; but there never was a time when he could not get drink.

Bloated and besotted he entered a large building in the city of Chicago, which was being used for gospel preaching, and taking a seat in one of the back galleries he watched the people as they entered. When the hour arrived there was a dead silence; all eyes were turned towards the platform, and in a clear, full voice a hymn was sung, the refrain of which was,

"Oh, what shall the harvest be?
Oh, what shall the harvest be?"

The question, "Oh, what shall the harvest be?" was carried home in wondrous power to L——'s conscience. Bygone days were recalled. He remembered his father's prayers and his mother's tears; his wife's pleadings and entreaties, and his child's tender care and love; his sin and folly, vows and resolutions, and he was stung to the quick.

"What shall the harvest be? What shall the harvest be? rang in his ears and made him tremble. He knew that the harvest for him, if he continued in sin, would be a dreadful one—an eternity of misery and despair in the lake of fire. The address followed the singing, but he heard it not. His whole being was absorbed by the question, "What shall the harvest be?" During the night while in bed, he seemed to hear one asking, "What shall the harvest be?" and in the darkness he fancied the words were written on the walls in letters of fire. Whatever he did, wherever he went, the question followed him. He did his very best to forget; he strove hard to banish all thoughts of the harvest of anguish, agony, and remorse that awaited him. But it was of no use. The arrow was fastened in a sure place, and do what he might he could not get rid of it. Again he plunged into dissipation and debauchery, but in the saloons and gambling hells the words were always before him, and he became greatly agitated and alarmed.

Unsaved reader, have you thought of the reaping time that lies before you? Remember what Jehovah has said, "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." (Gal. vi. 7 St. Throughout your lifetime you have been sowing, and, oh! let me ask, "What shall the harvest be?" Think of your past life all stained with guilt, all criminal with rebellion. Look forward to the day when God shall judge the secrets of men by Jesus Christ. When you stand before the great white throne, and have your sins brought to your recollection—sins of omission and commission: sins of thought, word, and deed—what will you say? When you hear the sentence passed upon you, "Depart from me, ye cursed, into everlasting fire," how will you feel? Horror, gloom, and despair will take possession of your spirit, and you will be speechless. You will then see that you might have been in heaven, that the Lord Jesus had earnestly desired to save you, and that it was all your fault. If you continue neglecting or rejecting the salvation of God you will be damned to all eternity, for He has said, "The wicked shall be turned into hell, and all the nations that forget God." Psalm ix 17.)

Victory.

The thought of the harvest of shame and misery that awaited him became so insupportable that L—— determined he would bear it no longer, and he resolved to go to the tabernacle where the gospel services were being held, and see if anything could be done for him. It never entered into his mind that he could receive the full and free forgiveness of all his sins without first becoming "good." He had supposed that in order to become a christian he must renounce his bad habits, reform his ways, and amend his life, and God would save him.

One evening at the close of the gospel address he found his way into the "inquiry room," and was spoken to by an earnest christian worker, who sought to show him his guilt and danger.

"Oh!" was the reply, "you don't mean to tell me that; I know what a sinner I am."

"Don't you wish, then, to become a christian?"

"I do; but I cannot stop drinking. I have tried it and cannot stop, and I don't believe that there is any hope for me."

"If you believe in the Lord Jesus," said the servant of the Lord, "He will take the appetite away."

This was something altogether new to L——.

"I had never," to use his own words, "dreamt of such a thing—I had never heard such a thing as that the Lord Jesus would save a drunkard in his drunkenness, and make him whole every whit."

That night, when the gospel was presented to him in its simplicity and fulness, he believed it and rejoiced in the knowledge of sins forgiven. He believed that the Lord Jesus bled and suffered for him on the cross of calvary; that He had paid the ransom price with His precious blood, and by receiving the "glad tidings" made known to him in the word, he was saved and had eternal life. ((John iii. 16, 36; v. 24).

Several years have passed since that happy day when Jesus washed his sins away. During that time he has been manifesting the change wrought on him, by works of faith and labours of love. At the present time he preaches the gospel of the grace of God, and the writer, when in Chicago recently, had the pleasure of hearing him. Since that memorable night he declares that he never had the slightest desire for drink. The appetite has been completely taken away, and he seeks wherever he goes to

"—Tell to all around,
What a dear Saviour he has found."

Reader, whatever you are, or have been, God is sincerely desirous of saving you now. Religious or irreligious, moral or immoral, educated or illiterate, "Ye must be born again" John iii. 7). You may or you may not have been addicted to drinking; but one thing is certain, you need the precious blood of the Lord Jesus. You may again and again have "tried" to become "religious," to "give up" your bad habits, or break away from your companions, but you have miserably failed, and you think there is no use "trying" again. Renounce all such foolish efforts. Take your place as a lost, hell-deserving sinner, and receive the gift which God is beseeching you to accept. "The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life." (Rom. vi. 23).

MY FIRST LESSON IN FAITH

"My first lesson in faith," said a devoted minister of the gospel, "was when I was a little boy. My father was one of the early volunteers within the war of the rebellion. He had purchased a few acres of land, with a small house situated upon a bleak hillside. Even this home was not entirely paid for when our country's call echoed over hill and valley, and my father, aroused through his patriotism, left us for the seat of war.

"There were five of us left within the little house; my mother, who was always a frail woman, one sister who was the eldest of us children and just married, her husband also enlisting, a brother younger, and a little sister who was the pet of the family.

"My father lived only a few months, died of home-sickness the same as many another one of whom I have known, and was laid away where we could never visit his grave. Just about this time my sister's husband was among the missing, after one of the many large battles.

"Before the poignancy of my sister's grief had lost its keenness, she sickened with a fever and died. My mother seemed benumbed by her grief, sitting in a kind of a listless way, until our dear little Delia, who was the sunshine of our home, sickened and died so suddenly we grew appalled. Soon after this my mother had a slight stroke of paralysis, which not confining her to her bed for a great length of time, still rendered her unfit for labor. We found great difficulty in procuring even the necessaries of life.

"My brother was too young to work, and I could do but little. One day my mother showed me how to stir up a batter for griddle cakes out of a little meal, and bake them. After eating the cakes, for this was all we had, she called us boys to her side and said, 'My children, we have no more provisions in the house; neither can I obtain any unless the Lord helps us to them. I am going to ask Him now, and you kneel down with me while I ask.'

"So we knelt while my mother poured out her soul in prayer. I have heard a great many prayers, yet I think I never heard one so full of faith as that. Little boys as my brother and myself were, we were both melted to tears long before she finished. Arising, my mother sang a beautiful hymn; afterward saying, 'I am sure the Lord is about to answer my prayer, and my little boys will have bread.'

"It was not more than a couple of hours before there came a rap on the door, and going to open it, I saw a young man who came in, saying to my mother, 'Father was looking over his accounts today, and found he was owing your husband seven dollars; he thought maybe you would need it, so I came over with it.'

"My mother could not restrain her tears of thankfulness, even until the man was gone. It was a debt my father had tried to get years before, and as my mother said, 'It's all owing to the Lord's causing him to pay it to us to supply our needs.'"

back; tell me I'm not going to die, Father," he said, "'twas you who taught me this, you who led me on in this way; and now you say I'm going to die. Stand back!" he shrieked; "I will not die!" And a torrent of invective issued from his fever-parched lips, so terrible in their madness that it seemed like a wail from the sea of woe. No wonder the poor mother was borne, fainting from the room, and the father's brow was corrugated, while great drops of agony rested there. Oh, that infidel father! How must his heart have bled in that dreadful hour, when, in the midst of dire cursings, his gifted son fell back a corpse!

A BURNT HEN.

During a long, dry summer in the northwest of America, a prairie fire suddenly sprang up in a district where there were many settlers; it raged along the country, burning in its course several farm-yards and wooden houses—in some cases the farmer and family being unable to escape.

After the fire had passed over, a relief party rode out from a neighboring town, to see if any one might perchance have escaped the flames and would be requiring relief. Riding past a charred cottage, one of the men saw what appeared to be a black hen sitting on the ground. On going to it, he found that it evidently had been a hen, but was quite dead, the head and back being burned to almost a cinder, but the bird sat in such a striking way, with her wings partly spread out, that he gave her a kick with his foot, when three little chickens ran out.

Bravely the poor mother hen had covered them, in face of the roaring fire; and bravely she had sat still in the midst of the scorching flames, choosing rather to be burned to death than that one of them should perish.

This true story shows us how the Lord, who planted this instinct in the heart of the timid hen, to defend her young in the hour of danger, would bring with great force to our memory His words, as He wept over Jerusalem: "How often would I have gathered thy children together, as a hen doth gather her brood under her wings, and ye would not!" Had the little chickens taken no heed to their mother's cry of "Chick, chick, chick," when she saw the fire coming, or had they said to themselves: "We shall be safer in the farmer's house; see the big strong walls; they can better resist the flames than our poor, weak mother," they would certainly have perished.

The Little Girl's Prayer

This is a true story of a little girl named Alice, who had been surrounded with plenty and had known no care until she was about eight years old. Then her father decided to go west and try a new country. Everything was sold except a good wagon and a fine team of horses. With these the father decided to travel through the country to the place he wanted to go with his wife and five children. After a long, tiresome journey they reached their destination. The country, of course, being new, was very thinly settled. As only a few people lived there, few crops had been raised. Soon the money of the newcomers was gone, one of the horses died, and one adversity followed another. The first year there was a drought. The next spring the father planted his crop, but it seemed as if there would be another drought.

When the father came in one evening he said, "If it doesn't rain soon, we won't raise anything this year, and we will all starve."

Oh, how this touched the heart of Alice, who was next to the oldest of the children! By this time there was another baby brother. How could she see these brothers and sisters whom she loved so dearly starve to death?

She went into a dark corner of the room and cried and prayed. Her mother had taught the children to pray that little prayer which begins, "Now I lay me down to sleep," but this time Alice prayed more than that.

When supper was ready the mother wanted to know where Alice was. She finally found her and asked what was the matter, but Alice would not tell. Nor would she eat any supper. Anxiously she waited for them to go to sleep. All the family slept in one room. When all was quiet she slipped out of bed.

She knelt by the side of the bed and began to pray. She asked God to let it rain so the children would not starve. While she prayed, a beautiful light brighter than diamonds came from heaven down to her beddside. It was like a shining path (lightning). Oh! how happy she was! She had asked the Lord for rain, and He was going to let it rain. She was so happy that she could scarcely keep still. She feared to make a noise that would awaken her father, for he was a very stern man and she was afraid of him.

She got in bed and listened for the raindrops. She knew it was going to rain. In a few moments raindrops pattered on the roof. She was so happy she could scarcely contain herself. Finally, she went to sleep.

Next morning there was a surprise for her father. He wondered why it had rained when there was no sign of it the evening before. Now there would be a crop and all would be well.

He Died as He Lived

"Begone!" cried a young skeptic to a clergyman; "I want none of your cant," when he showed him the great need of repentance. "I am not going to die, and, if I were, I would die as I have lived." The physician came, to whom he said, "O tell me I'm not dying; I will not die!" "My poor friend, I cannot speak falsely to you; your soul will, ere long, be with your God." "My God!" he said. "I have no God save the world; I have stifled conviction, I have fought against God I have resisted my mother's pleadings; and now you tell me that I must die. Do you know," he added in an awful whisper, "all that means? If I die today I shall go to hell! Take it

GOD WAS WITH HIM

Away on the Black Mountains in India, inhabited by black tribes of heathen, a young man learned to read the bible. He was charmed with the story of Jesus, and said, "No more Mohammed for me," declaring his faith in Christ. His father, when he saw his son's change in life, threatened to shoot him on the spot, but his mother persuaded his father into offering him three months to consider his position, after which time, he said he would shoot him if he did not give up his faith. During this time he grew unwell, and the father said the illness was a punishment for his sin, so that after all he would not need to kill him. But he recovered, and his cousin, who did not want to see him die, pressed him to flee when he was well enough, which he did, and arrived at the headquarters of the church missionary society's work in Punjab. There the missionaries took care of him for a few weeks, but one day, in a bazaar the boy caught sight of his father, for he had been tracking him. He fled for his life to the doctor's house, and the missionary reasoned with the father, and took care of him for some days. Then they said to him, "Will you read this book?" handing him a copy of the New Testament. "Yes," he replied, "I will if you wish me to; that is not much to ask." He read it, and was so interested that he returned to the doctor, and said, "I have never read anything like it. I see it is the New Testament. Is there an older one? If so, let me have that as well." He was given a complete bible, and after eight months his hard heart melted, and at the age of seventy-two he was like a little child. He had been a murderer, but at that great age he had his sins washed away in the blood of Jesus, and went back to his own black tribe a witness for Christ.—Christian Worker.

He Will Not Turn Us Aside

A landholder in a European country was fond of the chase, and near his estates the woods abounded with wild deer. One day walking across a field he heard the baying of hounds, and presently saw a little fawn fleeing before them. It was nearly spent; its tongue was hanging from its mouth, and its sides were white with foam. Nearer and nearer came its foes. In a frenzy of fear, it just managed to leap the fence near the man, and stood trembling, and casting wide, frightened eyes in every direction. Soon a hound leaped the fence at a little distance, but the poor little creature was too exhausted to run further. It came and fell in a heap at the feet of the human being at hand, as if pleading for protection. His heart was filled with pity for the little fawn, and for half an hour he fought off the dogs. The helpless had appealed to his strength. After dispersing the persistent hounds, he lifted the small creature to his shoulder, and carried it home. It was his; purchased by battle with its foes. A few months afterward, there might have been seen on that estate, a beautiful, graceful young deer playing with the children, and evidently very much of a family pet. So our helplessness appeals to Christ's power, and He will turn none aside who come to Him for succor.

Spurning the Remedy

A man said to me not long ago, "Do you think there is any justice in my being condemned because a man sinned six thousand years ago I don't believe a word of it." Now let me say, there will be no one lost on account of Adam's sin. But I hear some one say, "That's a plain contradiction. You have said we should be, and now you tell me we shall not be."

Let me see if I can illustrate it. Suppose I am dying of some terrible disease, say consumption, and I am given up by the physicians, who say I must die. But there comes a man whom I have known for years, and he says, "You are a dying man!" I say to him, "I know it; I don't want any one to tell me that." He says to me, "But there is a remedy." I say, 'I don't believe there's any remedy; I have tried all the leading physicians and they say there is no hope."

"I tell you there is a remedy!" says he "twenty years ago I was as far gone as yourself, and I was given up by all the physicians to die, but I took that medicine (and he holds it out to me), and it cured me. Listen now—there is the medicine, it shall not cost you a farthing, just take it, and you will get well." But I do not take it, though I have every reason to believe the man is speaking the truth. To be sure I shall die of consumption, but that is not the reason why I die; it is because I spurn the remedy. And if men die eternally, it will not be God's fault, but because they have despised the remedy. They are not lost because they are sinners, but because they reject the Saviour.

PASTOR AND HIS LABOR SERMON

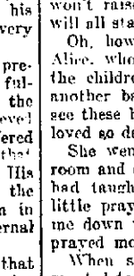
It is unfortunate that while very few workingmen reject Jesus Christ as the Son of God, they have thought of him as coming on a purely social or economical mission. True, Christ came to free the slave of labor. But Christ also came to free the slave of sin. Indeed, that was his chief mission.

Christ himself said: "I am come to call sinners to repentance." There is no greater obstacle in the way of solving the labor question than sin. If sin could be eradicated the labor question would be solved. Admitting this, you must see that the preacher who boldly performs his duty by denouncing sin in every form, the sin of both the employer and the employe, is a friend of labor, even though he never preaches a so-called labor sermon.—Rev. Charles Stelzle.

"Chew Your Food" is Cardinal Rule for Health

DIGESTION.

There would be fewer dyspeptics if people saw to it that digestion begins in the mouth.



The more thoroughly food is chewed the more thoroughly does it become mixed with saliva, which partly digests the starchy elements of the food.

Worry is one of the great causes of indigestion and anything that disturbs the happiness or equanimity of the mind either before or immediately after a meal is apt to lay the foundation of indigestion.

Too much alcohol, tea, coffee or tobacco, excessive eating of fried foods and pastry, irregularity of meal times, overwork and want of proper exercise are other "good" causes of indigestion.

There are also certain ailments of the human system which bring on dyspepsia. Among these are eye strain, diseases of the heart, liver and kidneys, nervous troubles, and last but not least, decaying teeth.

Extremely hot or extremely cold liquids or solids are aids to indigestion, because when they enter the stomach they seriously interfere with the activity and digestive power of the various juices.

Wrong use of the common frying pan is also a sure way of bringing on stomach disorders. Food, fried for a long time in the ordinary frying pan becomes hard, toughened and saturated with grease so that when it enters the stomach the digestive juices have but comparatively little effect on it.

The proper amount of meat for daily posed to consumption may be inherited, general way. Persons living and working a great deal in the open air needs and their system can stand a great amount of fish and eggs. But people living more or less sedentary lives will find their general health better if they eat but sparingly of such heat making foods.

TUBERCULOSIS.

People most liable to be infected by the germ of tuberculosis are those who live unhygienic lives, or who are compelled in order to a livelihood, to work amidst unhealthy surroundings.

Overcrowded, unventilated dwellings, offices, and workshops, sedentary occupation with lack of exercise, trades causing much dust, which, by irritating the lungs, produces favorable conditions for the growth of the germ, poor food and insufficient clothing, uncleanliness of person and surroundings, are all factors in predisposing persons to consumption; but it must be remembered that nothing can actually cause consumption except the entrance of the germ into the body.

It is commonly said that certain families inherit tuberculosis, and it is beyond doubt that a constitution predis-

Andrew Yaggy, of Woodburn, was a but the real reason that generation after generation in some families has died of the disease is generally that the sick members of the family have infected the well.

No matter where the germs are accidentally lodged, whether on floors, sidewalks, vehicles, on clothing or utensils, their vitality is fostered by dirt, dampness and darkness. On the other hand, sunshine, pure air and cleanliness are most valuable means of resisting and destroying the infection and of curtailing the disease when early recognized.

But the only sure way of preventing infection is to destroy all the sputum of every consumptive, for it is almost always by means of the sputum that a consumptive infects another person.

GERMANY YIELDS ON EVERY VITAL POINT

Disavows Attack on Arabic and is Willing to Pay Indemnity.

Washington, Oct. 6.—Germany has completely acceded to the American demands for settlement of the Arabic case. The imperial government in a letter presented by its ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, to Secretary Lansing, disavows the sinking of the vessel, announces that it has so notified the submarine commander who made the attack, expresses regrets for the loss of American lives and agrees to pay an indemnity to their families.

Official Washington was both gratified and relieved by the diplomatic victory. The communication delivered by the ambassador pursuant to general instructions from his government spread absolute confidence that there would be no more submarine controversies between the United States and Germany, for the document reveals that stringent orders have been given to submarine commanders to prevent a recurrence of such incidents as the Arabic. Since this case embraces the principles for which President Wilson contended in his notes following the torpedoing of the Lusitania and the Falaba, the concessions made by Germany to the American viewpoint were generally regarded as paving the way for amicable settlement of all the cases which have threatened severance of diplomatic relations between the two countries.

Text of the Letter.

Secretary Lansing gave out the text of a letter received today from Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, which was as follows:

"My Dear Mr. Secretary:—Prompted by the desire to reach a satisfactory agreement with regard to the Arabic incident, my government has given me the following instructions:

"The orders issued by his majesty the emperor to the commanders of the German submarines, of which I notified you on a previous occasion, has been made so stringent that the recurrence of incidents similar to the Arabic case is considered out of the question.

"According to the report of Commander Schneider of the submarine which sank the Arabic and his affidavit, as well as those of his men, Commander Schneider was convinced that the Arabic intended to ram the submarine.

"On the other hand, the imperial government does not doubt the good faith of the affidavit of the British officers of the Arabic, according to which the Arabic did not intend to ram the submarine. The attack of the submarine was undertaken against the instructions issued to the commander. The imperial government regrets and disavows this act and has notified Commander Schneider accordingly.

"Under these circumstances my government is prepared to pay an indemnity for American lives which, to its deep regret, have been lost on the Arabic. I am authorized to negotiate with you about the amount of this indemnity.

"I remain, my dear Mr. Lansing, yours very sincerely.

OLD FOLKS NEED "CASCARETS" FOR LIVER, BOWELS

Salts, calomel, pills act on bowels like pepper acts in nostrils.

Enjoy life! Don't stay bilious, sick, headachy and constipated.

Get a 10-cent box now.

Most old people must give to the bowels some regular help, else they suffer from constipation. The condition is perfectly natural. It is just as natural as it is for old people to walk slowly. For age is never so active as youth. The muscles are less elastic. And the bowels are muscles.

So old people need Cascarets. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect this gentle aid to weak bowels. The bowels must be kept active. This is important at all ages, but never so much as at fifty.

Age is not a time for harsh physics. Youth may occasionally whip the bowels into activity. But a lash can't be used every day. What the bowels of the old need is a gentle and natural tonic. One that can be constantly used without harm. The only such tonic is Cascarets, and they cost only 10-cents per box at any drug store. They work while you sleep.—Advertisement.

Indianapolis, Oct. 6.—Robert A. Brown, of Franklin, was elected grand keeper of records and seals and Thomas L. Neal, of Lebanon, was elected grand outer guard when the Indiana grand lodge, Knights of Pythias, named new officers at the opening session of its convention at the Indiana Pythian building last night. Mr. Brown succeeds Harry Wade, of Indianapolis, who succeeded the late Union B. Hunt as head of the insurance department of the order.

These were the only offices over which contests were waged, the office of grand outer guard being the stepping stone to the highest office in the order and that of keeper and records and seals always being an attractive one.

There were four candidates for the three places as supreme representatives—John W. Gaither, New Albany; John M. Lewis, Seymour, and Arla M. Brown, Lynn, being elected over Frank Dunten, Lagrange. U. H. Grant, Elletsville, defeated Adolph Biccard, of Rochester, for grand trustee.

The other officers advanced to a position just above the one they have filled during the last year are as follows:

PROPER SELECTION OF SEED CORN

There Are Three Important Factors Which Aid in Increasing Corn Yields—First, the Soil: Second, Proper Tillage; Third, the Proper Selection (Which Should be in the Field) and Storing of Seed Corn.

By C. P. BULL and L. H. ROBBINS.

In case one has no "special seed plot," in which his best and earliest maturing ears were planted, it is then necessary that his seed corn be selected from the field. The most practical method to do this is to go through the field with a sack tied across one's shoulder and select the choicest and best-matured ears. Two rows of corn may easily be examined at once. During the process of selection, consideration of the strength and character of the stalk, the height of the ear from the ground, and the size of the shank, should be noted. A stalk does not necessarily have to be large to be a big producer. A tall spindling plant lodges very easily. The stalk should be of good size and strong at the base, gradually tapering, and not necessarily tall. Strong, vigorous stalks of medium height, usually produce the best and earliest-matured ears. The ear should be attached to the stalk by a medium-sized shank, which is long enough to allow the tip of the ear to hang down.

Selecting Corn in the Field.

All ears in a corn-field will not mature at the same time. A variation of fifteen days in maturing of ears in a field is not uncommon. One of the reasons why a good selection of corn can not be made from the shock, or from the field late in the fall, is that one is not able to tell the time the ear matured.

Desirable ears may mature ten or fifteen days later than the average freezing-time; and, if those are selected, they will insure a late-maturing crop. Again, if corn is left unhusked until late, the husks prevent the ear from drying out properly; and, as a consequence, it is likely to be frozen before it is husked, or at least before it has had time to dry out after husking.

In the choice of corn for seed, one selects the ears that he believes will give him the largest yield of good corn the following year. It is a good plan to choose an ear of corn that is as near the type wanted as possible; then keep this ear from year to year, or until you get a better one. At any rate have a sample ear that you can look at occasionally to help you in following one type. Keep this type-ear handy when selecting corn in the fall; and in the spring, when the final selection is made, it is well to compare all ears carefully with the type-ear.

A common practice is to select ears that are too large. It is much better to grow three medium-sized mature ears to the hill than it is to grow three larger immature ears per hill. As a general rule, the larger the cob and the deeper the kernel, the longer it will take the ear to mature.

Indications of maturity are looseness of kernels on the cob, a high percentage of moisture, chaffiness (or thin, small, poorly developed kernels), adherence of the tip cap to the cob, and generally a large amount of white starch.

It may be well to emphasize the fact again that many are inclined to select ears that are too large. This is a very natural thing to do, because everyone likes large ears of corn better than small ones; but it is yield per acre rather than large ears that determines profit. And if one allows himself to select ears so large that they will not mature, he is the loser thereby.

It has been learned, by many tests, that ears of a certain form yield more than other ears different from the standard form. Ears of corn likely to give best results, carry the butt diameter well towards the tip; they are free from indentations or other irregularities that would tend to decrease the yield of the ear; they have straight, regular rows of uniform kernels, and have kernels extending well over the tip and butt.

It costs just as much to grow an ear of corn that has kernels covering three-fourths of the cob as it does to grow one with kernels covering the whole cob. The kernel contains most of the feeding value. The cob is of very little value as food, hence the rows of kernels should round well down over the butt and extend well over the tip (not necessarily clear over) thus insuring a good proportion of corn to cob. The rows should run straight from the butt to the tip; because, in crooked rows, there are more irregular kernels, and kernels of irregular size make it impossible to plant a uniform number in each hill.

To get the most feeding value out of an ear of corn there should be no space between the kernels at the cob. It is the tip of the kernel—the end that contains the germ—that is richest in food nutrient. Pointed, chaffy tips indicate low feeding value and poor germinating power. Every precaution should be exercised to select seed corn that will grow and produce strong, vigorous plants. Space between the kernels at the cob, and lack of furrow, usually indicate a low proportion of corn to the cob, immaturity and poor vitality. The tip of the kernel should be wide, allowing room for a long, broad and deep germ.

Nothing will aid more in making a high yield of shelled corn than a deep, well-formed kernel. But do not select a too deep kernel; because the deeper the kernel, the greater is the length of time required to mature it; and, above all other things, maturity is the first consideration. To secure uniform planting, the kernels of selected seed corn must be all of nearly the same size, not only on one ear, but throughout the whole selection.

A few ears of yellow corn, in a field planted to white corn, means there is a mixture and that seed from that field will not be pure. Pure-bred corn, like pure-bred cattle, always sells better; not necessarily on account of superiority in the individual, but because it is well known that a pure-bred plant or animal will be likely to transmit its character to its offspring, while scrubs or mixed varieties may not. Intelligent crossing of either plants or animals often brings good results, but it is seldom that an unskillful cross brings increased production. Field mixtures of corn (crosses) are usually associated with decreased yields and anything but uniformity. A breeder of corn should have his ideal type of corn in mind, and breed towards that ideal; and the longer one selects to one type, the more certain he is that his crop will be like the seed he planted. The shape of the ear, the shape of the kernel, and color of the grain, should adhere closely to the type of corn desired. If mixtures of shades or colors appear, one may be sure that his corn needs more rigid selection. Variation in color of cob indicate a mixture of varieties. White corn should have a white cob; yellow, a red cob; and white-capped yellow, a red cob.

Ears with large cobs are to be avoided, on account of being hard to dry. A great variation exists in the amount of corn to cob different ears will shell. The variation usually comes between seventy and ninety per cent corn and ten to thirty per cent cob. From this it is seen that if one feeds one lot of hogs a bushel of corn that is but seventy per cent shelled corn, and another lot a bushel which is ninety per cent shelled corn, one lot will get forty-nine pounds of shelled corn and the other lot sixty-three pounds. Indications of per cent of corn to cob are size of cob, depth of kernel, furrow space, and space between the kernels at the cob.

One does not have to own a large fruit farm to enjoy excellent fruit of his own raising.

Thrift and Beauty on the Farm

No farmer is doing justice to his family or to himself unless he provides a comfortable abode. When a dwelling is snug and sanitary, it may just as well have a touch of cheerfulness and beauty about it.

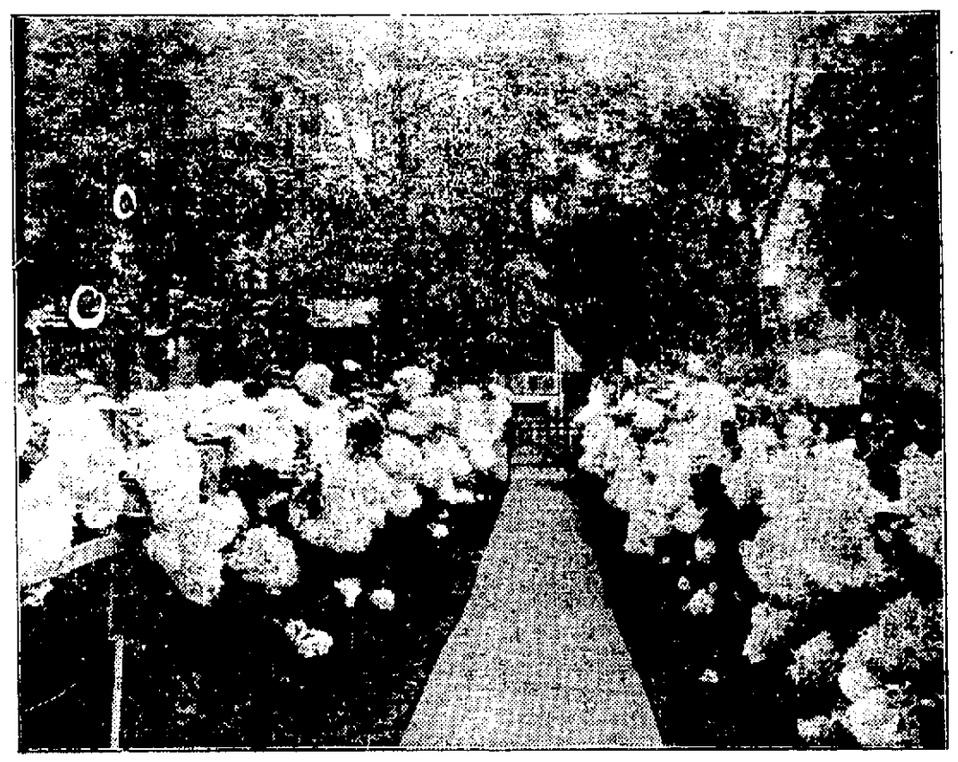
A farm home does not have to be of great cost to be beautiful. Nature does much more for the rural family than for dwellers in the city. It is easy to embellish a frame cottage or a log cabin with woodbine or ivy. It costs nothing to have lilacs and roses in the yard, and surely the smallest of farms can spare the half acre needed for a green lawn with shade trees and flower beds.

A good home, therefore, has elements of beauty around it, although it may be plain and inexpensive. This should be considered a birthright of farm boys and girls, and it is high time for American farmers to realize that they cannot keep young people in the country unless the farm dwelling is made reasonably attractive.

The farmer of the soil is only serving his own material interests when he gives some time and thought to the adornment of his premises, in addition to providing stout walls and tight roofs against stormy weather. He should keep in mind the fact that his best assets are a tasteful dwelling and a happy family. His life is a failure unless he can show these, no matter how large his farm, nor how great his bank account.

It is worth while for farmers to make lawns and gardens, because these things will add to the attractiveness and comfort of home. It is not necessary to be extravagant. One can be progressive in spirit and show taste around the dwelling without wasting money.

A garden is easily made a source of profit as well as a thing of beauty, for flowers and vegetables pay better than almost any other kind of products. In order that the practical shall not be wholly sacrificed to the sentimental, the front yard may serve as part of the orchard



A Splendid Hydrangea Border.

Interest in Bird Migration Goes Back to a Remote Period—Marvelous as Were the Tales of Spring and Fall Movements of Birds as Told by Early Observers, Yet Hardly Less Incredible Are the Ascertained Facts.

By W. W. COOKE.

Bird migration has proved a fascinating subject for speculation and study from earliest times. Long ago it was noticed that birds disappeared in fall and reappeared in spring, but not knowing where they spent the intervening period, many fanciful theories were advanced to account for their disappearance, as hibernation in hollow trees or in the mud of streams or ponds. Within the century stories were current of whole flocks that were seen to disappear beneath the waves of the Mediterranean to winter in its depths. With later years, however, has come a fuller knowledge of migration, especially of the particular region in which each species passes the cold season. But fuller knowledge has served to increase, rather than lessen, interest in the subject. More persons today are watching birds and noting their times of arrival and departure than ever before. Indeed, the Biological Survey has received migration notes from more than 2,000 different observers, showing how widespread is the recent development of this important phase of nature study.

The Survey has been collecting data on bird migration for more than 25 years. Investigations by its field naturalists extending over the North American continent from Panama to the Arctic circle have resulted in voluminous notes, and in addition the assistance of ornithologists throughout the country has been enlisted, so that each year reports are received in spring and fall from hundreds of experienced observers. Lighthouse keepers have also supplied valuable information concerning the destruction of birds at their lights. The facts gathered—500,000—from these various sources, form the largest amount of data on bird migration ever collected in this country, and permit broader and safer generalizations than have hitherto been possible.

For more than 2,000 years the phenomena of bird migration have been noted; but while the extent and course of the routes traversed have of late become better known, no conclusive answer has been found to the question, why do North American birds migrate? Two different and indeed diametrically opposite theories have been advanced to account for the beginnings of these migrations.

According to the more commonly accepted theory, ages ago the United States and Canada swarmed with non-migratory bird life, long before the Arctic ice fields advancing south during the glacial era rendered uninhabitable the northern half of the continent. The birds' love of home influenced them to remain near the nesting site until the approaching ice began for the first time to produce a winter; that is, a period of inclement weather which so reduced the food supply as to compel the birds to move or starve. As the ice approached very gradually, now and then receding, these enforced retreats and absences—at first only a short distance and for a brief time—increased both in distance and duration until migration became an integral part of the very being of the bird. In other words, the formation of the habit of migration took place at the same time that changing seasons in the year replaced the continuous semi-tropical conditions of the preglacial eras.

As the ice advanced southward the swing to the north in spring migration was continually shortened and the fall retreat to a suitable winter home correspondingly lengthened, until during the height of the glacial period birds were for the most part confined to middle and South America. But the habit of migration had been formed, and when the ice receded toward its present position the birds followed it northward and in time established their present long and diversified migration routes.

Thus those who argue that love of birthplace is the actual impulse to spring migration call attention to the seeming impatience of the earliest migrants. Ducks and geese push northward with the beginnings of open water so early, so far, and so fast that many are caught by late storms and wander disconsolately over frozen ponds and rivers, preferring to risk starvation rather than to retreat. The purple martins often arrive at their nesting boxes so prematurely that the cosy home becomes a tomb if a sleet storm sweeps their winged food from the air. The bluebirds' cheery warble we welcome as a harbinger of spring, often only to find later a lifeless body in some shed or outbuilding where the bird sought shelter rather than return to the sunny land so recently left.

As a matter of fact, however, only a small percentage of birds exhibit these preseasonal migration propensities. The great majority remain in the security of their winter homes until spring is so far advanced that the journey can be made easily and with comparatively slight danger; and they reach the nesting spot when a food supply is assured and all the conditions of weather and vegetation are favorable for beginning immediately the rearing of a family of young.

If, however, a longing for home is considered the main incentive to their northward flight, there arises the question as to why birds desert that home so promptly after the nesting season is over. Data recently collected at the Florida lighthouses show that southward migration begins at least by the 10th and probably as early as the 1st of July. Indeed, most birds start south as soon as the fledglings are able to shift for themselves. The orchard oriole, the redstart, and the summer warbler of central United States, and the nonpareil of the south, all begin their southward journey early in July, long before the fall storms sound a warning of approaching winter and when their insect menu is particularly varied and abundant.

According to the opposite migration theory, the birds' real home is in the southland; all bird life tends by overproduction to overcrowding; and, at the end of the glacial era, the birds, seeking in all directions for suitable breeding grounds with less keen competition than in their tropical winter home, gradually worked northward as the retreat of the ice made habitable vast reaches of the virgin country. But the winter abiding place was still the home, and to this they returned as soon as the breeding season was over. Thus, in the case of the orchard oriole mentioned above, many individuals that arrive in southern Pennsylvania the first week in May leave by the middle of July, spending only 2½ months out of the 12 at the nesting site.

Whichever theory is accepted, the beginnings of migration ages ago undoubtedly were intimately connected with periodic changes in the food supply. While North America possesses enormous summer supplies of bird food, the birds must return south for the winter or perish. The overcrowding which would necessarily ensue should they remain in the equatorial regions is prevented by the spring exodus northward. No such movement occurs toward the corresponding southern latitudes. South America has almost no migratory birds, for bleak Patagonia and Tierra del Fuego offer no inducements to these dwellers of the limitless forests of the Amazon.

The conclusion is inevitable that the advantages of the United States and Canada as a summer home and the superb conditions of climate and food for the successful rearing of a nestful of voracious young far overbalance the hazards and disasters of the journey hither.

PRIME ESSENTIALS IN HOG-RAISING

By S. C. MILLER

There are three essentials for health, thrift, and gain to be considered in the management of hogs, in order to obtain the best results; these are clean food, pure water, and dry, comfortable sleeping places.

It is a law of nature that the excrement of all animals is poisonous to themselves, and while pigs may profitably follow cattle, it is of vital importance that their food be not contaminated with their own excrement.

First Prize Small Yorkshires.

The food of the pig should be as clean as for any other farm animal—that is, it should not be mixed or contaminated with any substance that contains no food value. Dirt and filth taken into the stomach along with food, impair digestion and reduce the gain; they also affect the appetite and general health of the pig. Then, too, a considerable part of the food consumed is required to develop energy to separate and expel the indigestible matter.

This means that pigs should never be fed on the ground in a yard or pen where their own excrement abounds. Feeding on the meadows or pastures, moving about from place to place is a good way in summer. In the winter, of course, feeding from the cribs is necessary, and to insure cleanliness at that time, there should be a feeding floor which should be cleaned after every feed.

Over 40 per cent of a fat pig is water and a reduction of water supply below the natural requirements, will reduce the gain just as surely as a reduction of food will. Well or spring water is better than water from ponds or streams. Standing, or stagnant water about the barns or lots should not be tolerated. Pigs should have clean, pure water always at hand, day and night; they drink but little at a time, yet often, and if it is not always accessible, they will not get as much as is required for normal development.

Anything that can be done to increase the comfort of the pigs will add to the gain and profit in feeding.

Good care of pigs means good breeding, good feeding, constant watchfulness, more labor, closer attention to little details, and finally, more dollars in the pocketbook.

Feed the old and young sows separately, as the old ones may hurt the younger ones, and they will get more than they should. The mature sows are more desirable, but it is always necessary to grow a few gilts to replace some of the older ones.

Breeders should prize above all others those big, growthy, long-bodied, rather loosely made young sows, no matter if they have big ears and rather coarse heads.

Avoid being a market-chaser, and sell when the hogs are ready to go; that is, when they have reached a condition when it is no longer profitable to feed them, except for speculative purposes.

It does not require great ability in figures to show that there is a great deal of waste in selling hogs when they are only half fed out.

It seldom pays to feed corn to pigs after they are ready to be marketed. Corn is not as perishable as fat hogs. It can be kept until the market advances.

As a general proposition the pig of 200 to 250 pounds is what every grower should aim at, and it is the pig that pays both killer and feeder better than any other.

Nicotine Spray Will Destroy Insects

A concentrated nicotine solution of which there are several brands on the market, properly applied, is fatal to the larvae of the cucumber beetle which sometimes does a large amount of damage to cucumbers whether in the cold frame or in the field. One teaspoonful of a 40 per cent solution of nicotine to a gallon of water is enough.

The gardener should look for the larvae of the beetle just at the surface of the soil. When he discovers them he should pour his nicotine solution on carefully with a narrow half pint cup, being sure to let it run down all sides of the stalk.

Fighting the larvae of the cucumber beetle is better than fighting the adult beetle itself, as the adults work chiefly on the leaves and do not get at the vital parts of the plant.

Extract of tobacco containing 40 per cent nicotine in the form of nicotine sulphate will destroy plant lice or aphids on trees and shrubs, if properly used. This material is on the market. One-half pint of this in 50 gallons of water is very effective if sprayed on the plants in such a way that every insect is touched with a small particle of the spray. This material is even more effective if mixed with whale oil soap—one pound of whale oil soap to ten gallons of the diluted nicotine solution.

PLAN NOW FOR THE FUTURE.

The time to build up a reserve, a safeguard for the future, is now when you are strong and able to work and sacrifice. You don't know about the future, but you do know that now, today, you are able to earn and save. Make the most of your present opportunity and prepare yourself for greater ones later on.

FORCED COWS GIVE OUT QUICKLY

By M. KELLY

In the feeding of a herd of dairy cattle we must consider that the animals have been artificially bred and developed until they stand before us very unbalanced and abnormal animals. The feeding of dairy cattle has been largely from the standpoint of production at the pail, and not attention and study enough have been devoted to the selection of foods best adapted to the health of the cows, and to the calves they are carrying.

On the other hand, there are many dairymen who are feeding for production and not for profit. You may ask if feeding for production is not feeding for profit. Not always. It is not the men securing the most milk who are making the most clear money from their dairy business. There is a limit as to how much feed the cows can utilize at a profit, just the same as there is a limit to how much grain feed the cows can consume without doing serious injury to their digestive systems.

When we speak of the productive qualities of the cow, we should not fail to keep in mind that productive qualities include the calf as well as the milk. Whenever we conduct our feeding on any other basis than this, we are doing it at the expense of the vitality and health of our cows as well as the calves they are carrying.

It is not alone for present results that we are feeding, but for the development of the calf that is to some day take the place of its dam in the herd. The old saying that "a calf well born is half grown" is eminently true, and no calf is well born from a cow that is not fed a nourishing ration while she is carrying it.

The danger of this is greater among dairy cattle than among other breeds of cattle, for the reason that they possess an inherent quality of throwing their food into milk. Cows that are carrying calves should be fed plenty of bone and muscle forming foods in connection with some form of good nourishing, succulent foods, either roots or ensilage.

The dairy cow should have a period of rest after each milking season, so that she may have time to build up her energies and nourish her calf. She will need a period of rest after she drops her calf, so that she may be in good, vigorous condition when bred. Cows need rest, and time to regain their normal condition before they are bred again. Have you ever stopped to think how fast we are running the cow-machine when we force her to keep up a heavy flow of milk, beside nourishing a calf, during the larger portion of the year? Is it any wonder that dairy farmers are alarmed over the health of their herds, and are sending for tuberculin, hypodermic syringes, and thermometers, when they are forcing their cows to their utmost capacity?

Is it strange that they have abortion, defective teats and udders, and other ailments, when we compel them to put all their energies into producing dairy products for us? What we need in the dairy business is plain cow sense, and a knowledge of the laws of health and vitality in our dairy herds.

A Beautiful Jersey Cow.

The layers of fat on the hog will aid him in withstanding the cold, but he has to have a warm place to sleep in the cold weather. You can not afford to let him run down.

The farmer must not treat lightly the market problem. It is a problem worth your while to study.

We observe that some of the magazines are telling "how the farmer's wife can earn money," just as though she were not every day earning a great deal more than she gets.

Usually a mixture of grasses will give more hay or pasture than a single crop.

In the matter of diseases of fowls we should not forget that prevention is the main point. Little things remedied in time will save great losses later.

CHICAGO GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Oct. 6.—Wheat values bulged today, influenced by a continued falling off in receipts northwest and by the meagerness of arrivals here. Opening prices, which ranged from 1¼c to 1½c higher, with December at 99⅞c to $1.00¼, and May at $1.00½ to $1.00¾, were followed by decided further upturns.

The close was strong and higher than before, with December at $1.06 and May at $1.07⅞, a net general advance of 6¼c to 7⅝c.

Widespread frost gave strength to the corn market. After opening ¼c to ½c higher, prices scored a material further advance.

The close was strong, 1¾c to 2¾c net higher.

Oats rose with other grain.

Fresh advances in provisions resulted from the excellence of cash demand.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Oct. 6.—Measures taken by the stock exchange yesterday to curb riotous speculation in war shares resulted in an irregular opening today. Some of those issues, especially Continental Can, Railway Steel Springs, Republic Steel, General Electric and Goodrich were down one to two points, while Industrial Alcohol, American Coal Products, American Car and Distillers' securities were that much higher. International Nickel selling ex-dividend of 10 per cent. stock dividend, rose a fraction. United States Steel on an offering of 4,000 shares, was half a point lower at 78⅝. New York Central, Union Pacific and Pennsylvania were firm features of the railway business.

The rise in the railways stiffened prices until another avalanche of selling overtook the market, wiping out a considerable part of the gain in railways and forcing some specialties below yesterday's lowest figures. Crucible Steel crumpled rapidly, losing over ten points from its opening price of 96¾. Bethlehem Steel stood out with its new high record of 401. Bonds were irregular.

Lowest levels were reached in the final hour on the heaviest selling of the session. Rallies of one to four points were scored. The closing was heavy.

sentative there has not been a breath of suspicion linking him with an unholy alliance of any character. While in the series of federal investigations made in recent years scores of congressmen, irrespective of political affiliations, have been caught in the mesh and charged either with flagrant violation of the confidences of their constituents of unsavory alliances with special interests, the finger of suspicion has never pointed at the Twelfth district representative.

The years of experience in congress during which time he has been a careful student of governmental affairs have splendidly equipped Mr. Cline for effective service in the future. During that time his faithful and efficient service has been rewarded by such committee appointments which carry with them responsibility of the highest character and he has risen splendidly to the responsibility thus assumed. During the last session of congress he was an important factor in the carrying out of the program outlined by the Wilson administration and at all times has held a place high in the esteem and confidence of the president.

When important measures involving the interest of the masses of American people were before the house of representatives, Mr. Cline did not neglect an opportunity to support them.

At all times Mr. Cline has been accessible to citizens of the district who desired any service performed. He has found pleasure in acting promptly, when called upon for the performance of a service whether it was in the line of his official duty or not. No person has commanded him without enlisting his best efforts and this feature of Mr. Cline's official career stands out prominently in his record as a public servant.—Advertisement.

Help You Dye

Renew the life of your shabby laces, dresses, ribbons, feathers, etc., by using the right kind of dye on them. Here are a few suggestions for inexpensive dyes for almost any kind of article.

EASY DYES cost 15c. They work instantaneously and require no acids or salts to "set" them. They are particularly good for feathers and textiles, are easily applied and give excellent results.

DYOLA is a 10c dye. It is good for silks, woolens, cotton or mixed goods.

PUTNAM'S DYES are also 10c, and are recommended for any kind of fabric.

ANGEL DAINTY is another 10c dye good for all kinds of fabrics. May be used to advantage on laces, organdies, curtain draperies, tidies, dresses, waists, etc.

DIAMOND DYES, 10c dyes, come in all colors for all purposes.

Dry Cleaners

Many articles are only soiled and do not need dyeing. A good dry cleaner will then answer the purpose best. We carry a large stock of the best dry cleaning compounds, some to be used with gasoline, others that do not require gasoline. These latter are non-combustible and for that reason are prefered by many.

CLOSING ORDER TO HIT BLIND TIGERS

Drastic Action Expected to Follow a Killing at Muncie.

Muncie, Ind., Oct. 6.—As the result of the killing of Isaac Cox, laborer, in a free-for-all fight at the rear of an elleged blind tiger, Prosecutor J. Frank Mann will file temporary charges of manslaughter against Mike and Albert Brumback, James Dawson and Harrison Williams, four of the men taken into custody Sunday evening. Roy Cremean lived in the house where the men are said to have started their quarrel, and is charged with operating a blind tiger.

Coroner J. F. Downing, at the conclusion of an autopsy held over Cox's body yesterday, stated that death was due to a hemorrhage at the base of the brain. The prosecutor's office is said to have obtained strong evidence that Cox was struck a fatal blow with a pair of knucks by Mike Brumback.

The general belief is that authorities will order the closing of all blind tigers and gambling rooms, as the citizens have become greatly aroused over the sixth homicide within two months, and there is talk that if "a closing" order is not issued impeachment proceedings will be started against certain officials.

WARRANT ISSUED SECRETLY.

Former Prosecuting Attorney is Accused at Laporte.

Laporte, Ind., Oct. 6.—It became known here today that a warrant was issued secretly several days ago for the arrest of Walter Fabing, of Valparaiso, member of a prominent and wealthy family of that city and formerly prosecuting attorney of Porter county, who is charged here with forgery and at Valparaiso with embezzlement. Fabing came here about ten days ago and is said to have added a cipher to a check, getting $200. It is also charged that Fabing is a defaulter for a large amount to the Loyal Order of Moose lodge at Valparaiso. He was treasurer of the lodge. Mrs. Fabing recently appealed to friends to aid her in finding her husband. She fears he may have committed suicide.
